HITLER PLEADS WITH FRANCE TO END HOSTILITY

Says Germany Will Win Back Saar.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COBLENZ, Germany, Aug. 26.—Speaking from the topmost bastion of the Fortress Ehrenbreitstein, from which the Stars and Stripes floated during the period of post-war occupation, Chancellor Adolf Hitler today stretched out his hand to France. The dictator offered peaceful coöperation after the settlement of the Saar problem, which, he said, was "the last territorial difference separating France and Germany."

"There is no reason whatever why two great nations should remain forever hostile," the Fuehrer cried.

In the next breath he predicted the return of the Saar to Germany when that rich region votes on the question Jan. 13.

Ready to Celebrate Event.

"The happiest moment of my life will be when the nation shall celebrate the reunion," he said. "When the bells ring Jan. 14 heralding the joyful event and the return of 800,000 Germans in the Saar to the fatherland we shall forget the past. We shall do everything to heal the wounds, not because it is our debt of honor but because it is the dictate of the heart.

"Once the question of the Saar is settled, I hope that the desire to work with us for sincere peace will be awakened in France.

"Perhaps our former opponents will realize that it is sounder to coöperate with us than to make war on us and will join us in an effort to solve the real difficulties facing the world. I have confidence in the world's common sense."

Peace Keynote of Speech.

The keynote of Hitler's speech, which was punctuated by cheers by the thousands of listeners, was the desire for peace and reconciliation.

"Thirty-eight million Germans support the principles of their leaders," he declared. "In foreign affairs these principles call for the preservation of peace, equal rights for Germany, and the defense of our liberty and honor.

"In internal affairs we are fighting for the welfare of the peasant, the workingman, and the middle classes. We are struggling against the curse of unemployment and fighting to eliminate class and party hatred.

"Only those who are prejudiced fail to see the tremendous progress which has been made in Germany since we took over the power."

Hitler declared a wicked international clique is responsible for whatever criticism of Nazi Germany is expressed in foreign countries.

Attacks International Clique.

"This clique declares war on us not because we harm Germany but because we look only too well after the interests of the Germans," he continued. "If they loved our predecessors, why didn't they help them during the fifteen years that they were in power instead of persecuting and torturing Germans? Then I would not be standing here.

"Some tell us: 'You are abandoning Christianity.' Not we, but others are. We demand a clear division of power, the state looking after state interests and religious circles looking after religious interests.

"The National Socialist movement certainly must be blessed by God, since fifteen years ago we started as seven men and today we are 38,000,000 strong.

Refers to 12 Apostles.

"We shall win the last man. What does it mean that there is a traitor here and there? Among the twelve apostles there was one Judas. Despite emigrants our movement will win."

A few minutes before Hitler started his plea for reconciliation a radio announcer stirred German hatred against foreigners by asserting that the "foreign press is full of lies defaming Germany."

The same announcer asserted that a crowd of 300,000 had gathered at Ehrenbreitstein to hear Hitler. Other observers disagreed with the figure. They claimed the crowd was much smaller.

From early morning on the cobblestoned court of the historic fortress on the Rhine swarmed with delegations from the Saar. There were Storm Troopers, Hitler Guards, Hitler Youths, Hitler Girls, Labor Volunteers, and other Nazi organizations. Field kitchens were set up and free food was provided the demonstrators.

Cutting through the water like a huge fish, a miniature submarine—an exact replica of larger undersea vessels with the exception of torpedo tubes—gave crowds at the Jackson Park Yacht club a thrill yesterday afternoon.

The builder of the small craft is Barney Connett, 30 years old, 7950 Loomis street, a Chicago Motor club station manager. Connett launched it June 14 near Hammond, and has submerged it 31 times.

The tiny submarine is ten feet long, weighs 1,000 pounds and is propelled by two electric motors. Connett said he spent three years constructing it and the materials cost him $1,700.

Connett manipulates the controls of his submarine in much the same manner as an aviator. He sits arest, with an instrument panel in front of him, and has four small windows and a periscope.

Although the craft is equipped with oxygen tanks, the inventor says he has not yet had to use them. An hour and a half has been his longest period under water and his greatest depth 17 feet. The boat has a cruising radius of 17 miles and a speed of 6 miles an hour.

Woman Tells New Facts on 'Killer Rays'

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Eight kinds of "killer" rays which might affect the destiny of the human race if more of them were coming from the sun to the earth were described in a report issued today by the Smithsonian institution.

These "killer" rays are different wave lengths of ultra-violet light—unseen and unfelt, but deadly. They deal out two different kinds of death, slow motion and fast, through a power still partially a mystery to science.

New discoveries about the killer rays were reported by Dr. Florence E. Meier, comely and retiring young woman scientist of the Smithsonian.

Her work is a new addition to the important study of how different kinds of rays can aid or injure living things. Radium rays can cure some cancers, while too strong doses of X-rays can produce cancers. Some ultra-violet rays of the sun prevent rickets, while others, shut off from the earth only by a thin layer of ozone in the sky, probably would make life impossible on earth if they broke through.

Though Miss Meier's killer rays are "black sheep" of the ultra-violet ray family, they are closely related cousins of the beneficial members. The difference in wave length between them is only a few millionths of a millimeter.

Though humans would not be slain by the killer rays, at least at the strength used in Miss Meier's experiments, they are certain death of green algæ, the tiny one celled plants that grow in streams.

COMMITS SUICIDE BY LEAPING INTO HORNET COLONY

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The stings of scores of hornets today killed Ramon Perez, 34, unemployed Tampa cigar maker, who leaped nude into a colony of the insects with the avowed intention of killing himself.

Perez died tonight after suffering agonizing pain from the stings since noon.

Perez was in the swarm of hornets for about ten minutes. He went from his home to an adjoining vacant lot, removed his clothing and sat down in the midst of the insects.

While some one called the fire department Perez's mother rushed to the aid of her son. He refused to heed her appeal to flee. Finally, after firemen had begun burning weeds in order to smoke out the hornets, she dragged him from the lot.

Relatives of Perez said he had attempted to kill himself earlier in the day by jumping into the Hillsborough river. He remained in the water a few minutes and then swam out.

PLANE CRASHES IN MINNESOTA; 2 CHICAGOANS DIE

Fay H. Freadhoff, 36 years old, and Henry Pfaff Jr., 46 years old, employés of the Cadillac Motor company branch in Oak Park, were killed yesterday afternoon when the plane in which they had left the Wilson flying field at Franklin Park in the morning crashed near Mankato, Minn.

Freadhoff, a bachelor, who resided at 801 Madison street, Oak Park, was service manager for the motor company. He was the owner and pilot of the ship, a Stearman biplane with a Wright motor. Pfaff, an automobile salesman, resided at 1057 West Sheridan road. He was married and the father of two children. The two men had arranged to take their vacations together and to spend the time in Minnesota.

The plane was sold to Freadhoff about a year ago by Frank V. Brach, of Glenview, millionaire candy manufacturer. Reports from Mankato indicated it went into a tail spin suddenly and the pilot lost control. In its descent it struck a barbed wire fence. Pfaff was killed at once and Freadhoff died as he was being taken to a hospital. Freadhoff, it was said by his friends, was a veteran pilot with more than 400 hours of flying to his credit.

REPORT 5 DROWN WHEN CABLE CAGE SNAPS OVER RIVER

Revelstoke, B. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Four young men and a boy were reported drowned late today in the Columbia river when they were thrown out of a cable cage used in crossing the stream.

They were: E. D. McDonald, 23, Chatham, New Brunswick; George Bailey, 22, Montreal; H. Davis, 21, Montreal; A. W. Morrow, 18, Vancouver, and Joseph Wall, 10, Fairview, Sask.

A sixth occupant of the cage, Blondie Mason, reached shore, while two others were last seen endeavoring to swim to safety about 400 yards downstream. No bodies had been found late tonight.

The six were working in a relief camp at 10-Mile, on the Big Bend highway.

The cable cage had been used occasionally by the British Columbia forestry department and the six had been spending the day testing it out. Their weight was believed to have caused it to break.

Pet Dog Balks Firemen at North Clark Street Blaze

Fire, which broke out in the kitchen, caused $2,500 damage to the restaurant of Peter Herzick, 1204 North Clark street, yesterday. Firemen were hampered in fighting the flames as they spread to the second floor when Blackie, a dog owned by Leo Clinnin, snapped at the firemen and attempted to keep them from entering the apartment where he was alone.

300,000 OTHERS MAY LATER JOIN COTTON UNION

Secret Orders Sent to Local Chiefs.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Secret instructions for a general walkout in the cotton textile industry on Sept. 4 have been sent to sectional chieftains by the national strike committee of the United Textile Workers.

The order, which will be announced officially this week, will affect nearly 500,000 cotton mill workers, union officials say. An additional 300,000, they add, may subsequently be ordered from the mills in the silk, rayon, and woolen industries.

Date Jealously Guarded.

The date for the walkout, jealously guarded by the strike committee, headed by Francis J. Gorman, was set for Sept. 4 to give the union time to complete details for the strike, the largest numerically to confront the administration with the exception of the general strike in San Francisco.

The strike committee was ordered by a recent convention to call the general strike "on or before Sept. 1." The deadline falls on a Saturday, when few mills are in operation. The following Monday, Labor day, is a holiday, and the strike strategists settled upon Sept. 4 as the day upon which they hope to achieve complete stoppage of cotton mill operations.

Posters proclaiming the strike hour are under lock and key in the offices of regional leaders, to be released on receipt of formal announcement from strike headquarters here.

Bolstered by votes of confidence at regional meetings in Charlotte and Shelby, N. C., Providence, R. I., and Worcester, Mass., the strike committee pressed ahead today with plans for the walkout.

"I am fully convinced," Gorman told reporters, "that the strike not only will materialize but will be successful."

Declines to Reveal Date.

He declined, however, to say what date had been fixed for the strike, but in a letter to President William Green of the American Federation of Labor Gorman wrote:

"The general strike committee of the United Textile Workers having agreed upon a date for a nation-wide stoppage of work in cotton textile mills and strike orders having been sent to all local unions, subject to release, it seems advisable to report to you for your information in some detail the conditions obtaining in the cotton textile industry.

"Cotton textile workers are, in the main, in a worse position than they were before NRA, except that they now have some prospect for finally remedying their condition under the protection of section 7A."

He added other details which he said showed the necessity for a strike.

See U. S. Intervention.

Meanwhile prospects of intervention by the national labor relations board, headed by Lloyd Garrison, increased.

On Friday Gorman told Robert W. Bruere, chairman of the cotton textile industrial relations board, that "our experience in the operation of the board gives us no confidence in its ability to adjust the issues now at stake in fairness to labor." He indicated he would prefer to submit the union's case to the national labor

209,756 Go to Fair; 1934 Record Broken

BY EARL MULLIN.

Three new all-time 1934 records were set yesterday by the attendance at A Century of Progress. They are:

1. The first single day of this year's Fair to draw an attendance of over 200,000.
2. The largest single day of the year.
3. The largest total week-end attendance.

At midnight last night the turnstiles had spun off an official crowd of 209,756. This figure is greater, by more than 28,000, than the largest previous single day, that of July 4, a holiday, when 181,356 persons passed through the gates.

And by more than 34,000 was the week-end record toppled from its perch. The previous week-end high mark, set on Aug. 18 and 19, was 343,588. Last Saturday there were 168,515 paid admissions. This figure coupled with yesterday's total of 209,756 sets a new week-end figure of 378,271.

Weather Big Help.

Continuation of the bright, crisp weather, with a tinge of fall in the air, plus elaborate programs, was credited by Fair officials with drawing the record smashing crowds. With another break in the weather this week they forecast still bigger and better records.

The week ending yesterday was also the first to draw more than a million paid admissions. The total for the week was 1,027,289. Yesterday also made the tenth consecutive day on which the attendance exceeded the 100,000 mark.

The most colorful program yesterday was the Polish-American celebration. While no actual check was kept, estimates were that more than fifty thousand entered the grounds. Fully 15,000 took part in the parades and programs.

Polish-Americans Parade.

The parade, headed by the Black Horse troop, entered the Court of Honor at 2 p. m., and marched to the Court of States through the Avenue of Flags.

Further entertainment was provided by the finals of the radio audition contest at 6:30 p. m. in the Science theater. Twenty-four semi-finalists, picked from a field of 5,000 entrants, sang and entertained for more than an hour.

John Burdette, Negro baritone, won first prize in the professional adult class. Second place went to Bill Thompson, 3921 Rokeby street, a dialectician; third place to Lewis Klein, 1023 North Mozart street, an impersonator.

Amateur Adults Tie.

Another impersonator, Jason Levy, 1400 East 63d street, and a women's trio, composed of Erlyne Conel, 1100 North Dearborn parkway; Charlotte Smith, 5528 Hyde Park boulevard, and Milda Geist, 316 Myrtle avenue, Elmwood Ill., tied for first place in the amateur adult class. Bertha Suerth, blues singer, of 2226 Nordica avenue, won second place and Esther Jayne Timbers, a dramatic reader, of 10834 Eberhardt avenue, third.

In the children's division Wilbert Liebling, 12 years old, of 1313 South Kedzie avenue, was first. Doris Ross, 12 years old, of 5732 Ridge avenue, a singer and impersonator, second, and Melvin Torme, singer, 8 years old, of 8133 Phillips avenue, third.

The winners will be awarded prizes Sept. 8 on a program to be broadcast over the NBC network.

The contest, with loving cups and medals for prizes, was conducted by the Fair and the National Broadcasting company.

TEACHERS BEGIN LINEUP IN NIGHT FOR $26,300,000

H. A. Kincaid of 4060 5th avenue, chemistry teacher at Crane Technical High school, took post in front of the City State Bank building, 130 North Wells street, at 7:30 o'clock last evening, determined to be the first school board employé in line when the distribution of $26,300,000 of back pay begins at 10 a. m. today.

Provided he does not lose his place Mr. Kincaid will receive his checks for seven months' work from Mayor Kelly, to whom much of the credit for raising the funds that make possible the payment is given. The mayor has promised to be on the scene promptly at 10 o'clock to start the pay wheels rolling. Thereafter 35 cashiers at 14 windows will pay teachers and civil service employés as they arrive, on a first come first served basis. Back salaries are due to 14,000 teachers and to 4,000 other school employés.

"I have to be back in Lake Geneva, where I am doing photographic work, at noon," said Mr. Kincaid. "There is about $1,600 due me and I owe $1,100 of that.

Recounts Battle with Wolf.

"When I am paid I shall begin by clearing my debts to the landlord, the grocer, and others who gave me credit in the lean months."

The chemistry instructor, who is married and the father of one son, has been teaching at Crane Tech since 1925. During the payless pay day period, he said, he had been doing photographic work as a sideline and had through this extra income been able to "keep the wolf from gnawing the door down."

Second in line at 11:50 p. m. was Mrs. Ethel R. Schimpf, 3216 North Cicero avenue, fifth grade instructor at the Funston school, who said she had assigned most of her back pay.

"But there's still two months' salary," said Mrs. Schimpf, "that's all my own."

Although W. T. Nickerson, night manager of the building, had announced no line would be permitted to form in the lobby until 6 a. m., he relented in favor of the two early comers and let them have chairs inside.

"But if a line forms early," he warned, "you will have to go outside to head it."

Task of 3 Days or More.

On the second floor three uniformed police stood guard over the pay roll books and the checks, which had been placed in the vaults there in preparation for today's activity. Police Commissioner Allman has ordered twenty policemen to watch the vicinity of the building today to see that no thieves get in their work during the payoff.

At 10 p. m. James M. McCahey, president of the board of education, and attorneys for the board and for the Reconstruction Finance company, which lent the money to the schools for this super pay day, announced they had examined final details and were satisfied there would be no hitch in the program. They then adjourned for the night.

Once the paying has started it will continue day and night until the last checks have been given out. It is estimated the task will require from three to five days. To obtain the checks, the teachers will need only to present their identification card, and to sign each a single receipt for all the checks. These receipts are to be turned over to the Reconstruction Finance corporation as proof that the money went for the specified purpose.

Loop Ready for Influx.

The government corporation advanced $22,300,000 for the teachers only. Civil service employés, however, will be paid from funds raised by the sale of tax warrants and from ordinary revenue sources. In the distribution, there will be little distinction between the two groups. A special window will be open for the civil service workers [not engaged in teaching] and 13 windows for the teachers. Each of the 13 windows will serve the teachers for ten schools.

The checks may be presented for payment at banks, stores, or the offices of the city treasurer in the city hall. Technically the "checks" are subdrafts drawn on the city treasurer. Loop department stores are to lay in extra supplies of cash this morning to meet the certain avalanche of checks.

Mr. McCahey announced yesterday with evident elation the plans for issuing the school checks today, and announced further that hereafter the teachers and civil workers will get their salaries regularly twice a month without fail on the date due.

Chicago's difficulty over paying her school salaries arose after a previous group of education officials had expended more money than tax revenues warranted. This trouble was enormously augmented in May, 1928, by the state tax commission's reassessment order, which slowed tax collections precipitately.

Until April, 1932, the former board managed, hit or miss, to meet pay rolls nearly on time; then its financial position collapsed entirely. The board's arrearage continually mounted and the school problem began to discredit the city throughout the nation.

In March, 1933, when Mayor Kelly took office, succeeding the late Mayor Anton Cermak, he turned immediately to the school problem. Mayor Kelly first led a drive for the Kerner-Skarda act, which speeded tax collections. He reorganized the board of education, which elected Mr. McCahey president, and under Mr. McCahey's leadership in the face of a barrage of criticism instituted an economy program that stabilized the board's finances.

Mayor Kelly then brought about passage of a bill allowing the school district to issue $40,000,000 of bonds, to be sold to pay the teachers, and he induced the legislature to pass a "pegged levy" bill, which stabilized the 1934 school income at $44,000,000 and the 1935 income at $43,000,000. He obtained additional school revenues from the legislature.

In the winter of 1933 Mayor Kelly originated a plan to pay the teachers by the sale of the school bonds, authorized earlier by the legislature to the RFC. The bonds were to be secured by school properties not used for educational purposes. This plan was first announced in THE TRIBUNE on Dec. 8, 1933, and there followed a strenuous fight to get the proposal through congress, to gain court approval of the plan, and to convince the RFC that the school securities were adequate.

Congress passed the loan act on June 16 and the Illinois Supreme court upheld the Kelly plan early in August. On Aug. 7 Jesse Jones, chairman of the board of the RFC, approved the loan on behalf of the finance corporation.

Essence of Plan.

Briefly, under the loan plan, the board of education sells to the RFC $22,300,000 of 20 year revolving fund bonds at 4½ per cent. Real property not used for educational purposes and valued at more than $35,000,000, and its $850,000 annual revenues, are pledged as security for the bonds. The bonds are callable in ten years. The first interest payment, totaling $2,035,000, is due in December, 1935. Payment of principal starts in 1936, with top principal payments of $2,000,000 to be made from 1947 to 1953. Should the board be unable to call its bonds after ten years, the total interest cost of the loan will be $22,500,000.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation's check for $22,365,985, covering the loan to the board of education, was brought to the city yesterday afternoon by Thomas Corcoran, RFC attorney. This morning Mr. Corcoran will present it to City Treasurer James A. Kearns, who will deposit it to the school accounts.

Scrutinize Final Details.

Mr. McCahey announced that the loan transaction, in progress for 3½ months, was finally complete. He went immediately to the offices of Henry S. Cutler, municipal securities expert, to work out the final details of the disbursement.

Mr. Corcoran joined McCahey, Cutler, and five legal and accounting experts in making a final scrutiny of the loan agreement whereby the RFC funds are advanced against more than $35,000,000 of noneducational property posted by the board as security.

Later in the afternoon Arthur Schweitzer, assistant school business manager in charge of the pay roll, ordered the removal of 275,000 checks from the board rooms to the Wells street pay offices. The transfer of checks and receipts to be signed by the teachers was made under guard. School employés worked throughout yesterday despite the Sabbath to assure completion of every detail.

Complete Formalities Today.

This morning the First National bank, trustee under the loan agreement, will deliver to the Chicago Federal Reserve bank $22,300,000 of school bonds. The bonds were delivered to the First National Saturday.

The delivery to the reserve bank will constitute a transfer of ownership of the bonds to the RFC. The trust deed mortgaging the property securing the bonds has already been registered with County Recorder Clayton F. Smith and a copy delivered to the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Transfer of bond ownership completes the loan transaction.

In announcing the pay day Mr. McCahey said yesterday that sales of $15,000,000 in 1934 tax warrants will finance pay days to Jan. 1, and from that time the board's economy program, reducing school costs to school income, assures prompt pay days.

Checks today will be issued to all classes of school workers. The average pay to be received by elementary school teachers, numbering 9,400, is $1,050.

The checks vary from $892 for beginning elementary teachers, to $3,391 to high school principals who are also teaching. The 3,500 high school teachers will get checks from $1,071 to $2,261, and pay for elementary teachers varies from $892 to $1,487.

According to Charles E. Gilbert, school secretary, almost 20 per cent of the money to be received by the teachers is now assigned to creditors. Officials of teachers' organizations estimate that 60 per cent of the entire $22,300,000 amount paid to teachers will go to their creditors.

In the civil service division the pay checks will vary from $400 for part time workers, such as bath room and lunch rooms attendants, to $5,700 for employés in the highest salary brackets, including the superintendent of schools and assistant superintendents, who are barred from receiving pay as teachers by the RFC rule limiting loan fund use to payment only of teachers. There are approximately 3,000 janitors, firemen and engineers, 275 school clerks, 500 business department clerks, stenographers and inspectors, and 350 part time attendants who will be paid from the civil service funds.

Benefit to Business.

Nearly 90 per cent of the entire $26,300,000 pay roll will immediately flow into Chicago commercial channels, teachers and civil service workers estimate.

Bankers and business leaders have estimated that this immense flow of cash into the city will mean a turnover of at least $100,000,000 to Chicago business.

Last week store managers reported that crowds of teachers were beginning the inspection of merchandise they propose to purchase as soon as pay checks are in their hands.

board, and three hours later was closeted with Garrison.

A second conference was held last night and union leaders were called out early today for another session with labor board members.

Gorman declined to divulge the outcome of the conferences but indicated the strike committee had not closed the door upon negotiations with Garrison. He emphasized, however, that the strike would be held as scheduled, regardless of any negotiations, unless labor's demands were met.

The union's grievances have been listed officially as:

"The stretch-out system has been so widely inaugurated throughout the industry as to constitute a sweeping and inhuman method of operation from which there must be relief.

"The volume of employment has declined steadily since immediately after the cotton textile code went into effect.

"Average weekly earnings have declined under the code.

"There has been a sweeping and intolerable practice of discharging workers for union affiliation in clear violation of section 7A of the industrial recovery act."

PLAN TO INVOKE LINDBERGH LAW IN ONION WAR

Leader Returns After He Gets Beating.

McGuffey, O., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Following the kidnaping and beating of Okey Odell, president of the Agricultural Workers' union, his fellow leaders threatened today to invoke the federal anti-kidnaping law against about 200 men.

Odell, head of the striking onion pickers, said J. M. Rizor, American Federation of Labor organizer, will go to Toledo tomorrow to file kidnaping charges in the federal court there. That law is known as the Lindbergh law.

Village Again Peaceful.

Odell's announcement came as quiet returned to this village of 700 persons following a night of tension. After the home of Mayor Godfrey J. Ott was bombed, Odell was arrested for questioning. He then was taken from sherifs' deputies and driven 14 miles from town. There he was released after being kicked and beaten. Despite a warning not to return, Odell hitchhiked his way back and asserted, "I will kill the first man who tries to get me." Odell disclaimed any knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the bombing.

The 38 year old union leader today still was bedfast in his tiny cottage, which was guarded by friends who had turned it into a small fortress.

The Odell bodyguards were prepared for a threatened return of the crowd that ordered their leader to leave town last night. A threatened second visitation failed to materialize and Odell, from his bed, said he was prepared to go into court and identify at least 20 of his captors.

Says Sherif Knows Mob.

Sherif's deputies insisted they were unable to prevent the seizure of Odell They said only three deputies were present when the crowd captured the union leader. Odell insisted fifteen deputies and Prosecutor Kaylor were present.

Strikers, nonstrikers, and large onion growers meanwhile awaited the arrival of Robert Fox, a federal labor conciliator, who was ordered here by Secretary Perkins to attempt a settlement of the three months old strike Numerous previous outbursts of violence have occurred in the marshland

LABOR INSISTS ON UNION RIGHTS IN PERMANENT NRA

Fears Section 7A Will Be Scrapped.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Labor is determined that the right to bargain collectively shall be retained in the permanent NRA legislation now being drafted.

This was asserted today by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, at the same time that conferences were proceeding within the administration on which parts of the recovery act should be written on the statute books for a long time to come.

Fears Scrapping of Guarantee.

Fear of domination by employers was expressed by Green if the labor guarantees were scrapped. He said:

"We regard section 7 A as the most important part of the recovery act. We shall direct our efforts toward retaining section 7 A in any permanent legislation. Without that, labor would be at a great disadvantage. It would be subject to the domination by better organized employers' organizations as represented by the code authorities.

"The National Recovery Act will mean little to labor without Section 7 A which gives labor the right to bargain collectively."

President Roosevelt will propose permanent legislation to the next congress. His aides now are shaping the program which is certain to include a continued prohibition against child labor, the fixing of maximum hours of work and bans against unfair trade practices.

Final Parley at Hyde Park.

Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, and Donald R. Richberg, director of the National Emergency council and the executive council, will go to Hyde Park, N. Y., two weeks hence for final conferences on the interim organization to administer NRA until the permanent law is enacted.

It is likely that about Sept. 10 the President will be ready to announce formation of a five man board to run the Blue Eagle affairs, probably with Johnson as chairman.

Indications that Johnson would remain with NRA for some time to come were strengthened today. Associates said that without doubt the recovery administrator would stay to pilot the new legislation through congressional storms likely to be encountered next winter.

UNIONS VOTE TO END MONTANA'S COPPER STRIKE

Butte, Mont., Aug. 27 [Monday].—(AP)—John P. Frey, secretary treasurer of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, announced last night that a large majority of crafts in Butte, Anaconda and Great Falls had approved an agreement between their union officers and the Anaconda Copper company to settle the copper mining strike in this state.

The agreement was said to have established a 50 per cent per day advance in wages. Frey said twenty unions had approved the agreement, eight had voted against it and three have not voted.

Sympathy Strike Rules Cited in Bus Dispute.

Officials of the Chicago unions of surface and elevated lines employés were awaiting yesterday the return of Edward McMarrow from Detroit for a conference on the possibility of a sympathetic strike on behalf of the American Federation of Labor unit which for eleven days has been conducting a strike against the Chicago Motor Coach company.

Mr. McMorrow is a member of the executive board of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employés of America, of which the surface and elevated unions and the striking busmen are members. He is expected to return here today. Though he left Detroit Saturday night he had not arrived in Chicago yesterday evening.

Mahon Explains Situation.

On Friday the executive board of the association refused to take any preliminary action authorizing a sympathetic strike. Mr. McMorrow was then appointed to confer with W. D. Mahon of Detroit, president of the amalgamated. On Saturday Mr. Mahon pointed out the difficulties in the way of a sympathetic strike. He said that such a strike must first be considered by a referendum of the local union members and, if approved, the executive board would then have to conduct another referendum among the national membership to determine whether the strike would be permitted.

Two incidents of violence occurred yesterday in connection with the bus strike. Mrs. Elsie Marschak, 33 years old, 144 North Long avenue, was slightly injured when a brick thrown by an unseen assailant struck her in the elbow as she rode on the top of a Washington boulevard bus at Sheldon street.

Howard McCarthy, 29 years old, 1811 North Austin boulevard, driver of another Washington boulevard bus, suffered cuts on the face when he was struck by flying glass when a man threw a brick through the door of the bus at Elizabeth street.

COTTON PICKER IS HUNTED IN SLAYING OF TWO

Jess Cofer, 35, a nephew of Dan Cofer, 55, formerly was a deputy sherif in Mississippi county.

Intense feeling was manifest among white residents in the plantation settlement as they took up the hunt for Hurley and his brother, at whose home the shooting took place. Hurley came here from Champaign, Ill., and police expressed belief he might attempt to cross the Mississippi into Illinois.

Officers said the killings climaxed a quarrel between Hurley and the two white men, who were watching a negro dance at the home of Hurley's brother. Four negroes were held in jail as material witnesses.

PREDICTS NAZIS WILL TRY TO GAG FOREIGN WRITERS

Wife of Sinclair Lewis Reaches Paris.

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 26.—An intensified Nazi drive to terrorize foreign correspondents and strap muzzles on them, similar to those already worn by the German press, was predicted today by Dorothy Thompson, wife of Sinclair Lewis, American novelist who was awarded the Nobel prize. She arrived in Paris after being expelled from Germany.

The French press devoted columns to the case of the American newspaper woman and magazine writer, and linked it with the latest attempts by Nazis to intimidate Paris newspapers, and thus to influence French opinion.

These were, first, refusal of a German visa to the correspondent of the Echo de Paris, leading conservative organ and one of the most important papers in France, and, second, the placing of a new ban on another big Paris daily at the same time that the London Observer and other foreign newspapers were again barred for varying lengths of time.

Reprisals Are Urged.

Drastic reprisals are urged here in an effort to demonstrate to the German propaganda office that the methods used to establish an "autarchy of the news" in the domestic press cannot be used against the sections of the world press that are still free.

"The naive idea of the propaganda office is to terrorize foreign correspondents," Mrs. Lewis said upon her arrival here. "The press has been muzzled and made to crawl within Germany itself. The same tactics, it is assumed, will work on the foreign press. Then nothing would be sent abroad but nice edulcorated dispatches telling how perfect everything is. The assumption that what works with the Germans will work with other peoples is evidence of their ignorance of any psychology but their own.

"Of course they knew that my expulsion would produce a disastrous impression. But the honest truth is that the propaganda office doesn't care a button what opinion abroad may be. They want to keep Germany hermetically sealed."

Lack of Coördination.

The foreign office did care what impression would be made abroad, Mrs. Lewis revealed, and tried repeatedly to quash the expulsion order. A similar effort was made by the secret police, but both were powerless against the propaganda office, thus showing that grave lack of coördination exists among the various Nazi directive offices.

As for the reason for her expulsion, which is not clear despite the official letter published yesterday, Mrs. Lewis believes that her "crime" was blasphemy against the Nazi régime—simply failing to appreciate the sacred character of the Nazi movement. There was no more specific reason, in her opinion, for she had written nothing about Germany in months and never published anything that would influence opinion within the country, since she had no readers there.

Mrs. Lewis is leaving shortly for the Saar and will sail for America on Sept. 7 to join her husband.

Lewis Was "Worried Man."

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Sinclair Lewis was "a mighty worried man," he acknowledged today, until Dorothy Thompson, his wife, arrived safely in Paris from Germany.

"Dorothy's a good newspaper woman," the author said, "and she can take care of herself, but I was sure worried until I learned she had reached Paris safely.

"I wasn't worried so much about official action as I was about some patriotic Nazi fanatic. There might have been some youngster who had patriotic ideas, and I——." He left the sentence unfinished.

Lewis said he was "too busy to get excited" when he heard yesterday that his wife had been asked to leave Germany.

"But when I had time to think about it," he declared, "I realized it could be very serious."

CLAIM NAZIS STRIP STREET LAMPS TO OBTAIN METAL

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—Memories of war time seizures of church bells and doorknobs are awakened by a popular rumor that standards carrying street lamps and overhead trolley wires in Berlin are being stripped of superfluous ornaments to obtain metal.

In many streets in Berlin heavy metal is being removed from these standards and concrete beds substituted. The ministry of economics has forbidden the opening of new factories or extension of existing plants for manufacturing or processing steel tubes.

The control board for iron and steel has ordered that special import licenses must be obtained for the purchase abroad of scrap and pig iron, shaped iron bars, hoops, metal plates, rolled wire, and other iron and steel products.

70,000 PLEDGE TO VOTE AGAINST RETURN OF SAAR

SULZBACH, The Saar, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Seventy thousand Saar residents pledged themselves today to vote against the return of the Saar to Germany at the plebiscite on Jan. 13. The pledge was administered by a Socialist leader named Braun.

While Chancellor Hitler at Coblenz, extoled the benefits of a reunion with Germany, a massmeeting here organized by the "liberty front" was addressed by speakers of all opinions, including a Roman Catholic priest. All the speakers urged the audience to "strive to the utmost for status quo."

Two Nazis threw bottles of foul smelling liquid when Braun took the stand. They were immediately seized and handed over to the police.

U. S. TO MAKE NO PROTEST AGAINST WRITER'S OUSTER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—State department officials indicated today no protest against the German government's "invitation" to Dorothy Thompson, wife of Sinclair Lewis, to leave the country would be made unless she requested it.

Such matters, they said, would be handled by United States representatives abroad.

The state department's policy was described as one of "noninterference" with foreign governments' opinions of what Americans should be allowed to remain in those countries.

Marries in Arizona

New York, Aug. 26.—Madge Kennedy, versatile screen and stage star, was quietly married two weeks ago to William B. Hanley Jr., actor and radio artist, it was revealed here today.

The actress, who inherited more than $500,000 at the death of her first husband seven years ago, became the bride of Hanley at Kingman, Ariz., on Aug. 13, according to her New York representative, Charles L. Wagner. The couple came at once to New York and are now living here.

Miss Kennedy, whose last decade of stage successes ran from "Poppy" to "Bridal Wise," was the widow of Harold Bolster, wealthy New York broker. He died in San Francisco on Aug. 3, 1927, from an illness he contracted while on a business trip in South America. The actress chartered an airplane and made a spectacular dash from Los Angeles to his bedside, but lost her race with death, arriving one hour after the end had come.

'CAMERA' GETS RARE SPECTRUM FROM METEOR

Feat Offers Approach to Study of Universe.

Claremont, Cal., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The well defined spectrum of a brilliant meteor was obtained by Pomona college astronomers during the recent perseid meteor "shower." It was obtained in the first tryout of a device believed to be entirely new in mode of operation.

There are only about thirty meteor spectra on record and even some of them are of doubtful value. The new device promises to solve certain difficulties encountered heretofore. Therefore the Pomona achievement is regarded as a valuable contribution to astronomy—in which meteor study is one approach toward determining the structure of the universe.

Scientist Describes Device.

Dr. Walter T. Whitney, director of the college's observatory, told the story today. A very simple affair, the device is a rotating spectrograph. Four cameras with prisms in front of their lenses were fastened in zig-zag succession around a boxlike axle. Viewed from one end of this horizontal axle in action, the general effect was that of a "camera wheel."

The wheel was rotated by a small motor underneath so the cameras had an almost constant exposure of the sky area in which the meteors were expected. The rate of rotation was made to equal the anticipated velocity of meteors in flight. In other words, the idea was that, as the wheel spun, one camera or another would "catch" a meteor and follow it at the meteor's speed.

Two Groups Observe Perseids.

The object of this was to get a spectral exposure of the meteor's bright head alone. A stationary prism-camera would record the differing spectrum of the meteor's train or "tail" as well as that of the head, complicating later analysis.

Two Pomona college groups observed the recent perseid displays. One group, stationed on Table mountain twenty miles north of here, operated the new rotary spectrograph, although both did the usual direct photography.

Strangely enough, the brilliant "shooting star" which yielded the prize spectrum was not a perseid.

But if the observers had not been "all set" for perseids, they would not have captured the spectrum of the vagrant. It was in the nature of one of those quasi-accidents which color the annals of astronomy.

Estimate Meteor's Makeup.

Through study of a meteor's spectrum—the color bands obtained through a prism—scientists say they can estimate the meteor's temperature and mass as well as its chemical makeup.

Yet this is only one phase of the study of meteors, which some investigators theorize may be remnants of comets come to grief somewhere out in space.

CRASH FATAL TO ATTORNEY.

INVESTIGATE MYSTERY OF WEST POINTER'S FRACTURED SKULL

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Police began an investigation today into the mysterious manner in which Lieut. Otto S. Tinkel, West Point chemistry and electrical instructor, suffered a fractured skull which caused his death in Bellevue hospital on Friday night.

Lieut. Tinkel, who was 34 and an honor graduate of the academy, came to New York Thursday afternoon and went to the home of a friend, Junius Davenport, in Greenwich village.

Davenport told the police that Tinkel left the house that night and did not return until Friday morning. His face was bloody and bruised and his shirt was stained with blood, Davenport told Detective James Hayden. He fell asleep at once and Davenport thought it would be better not to waken him. When Tinkel did not awake by late afternoon Davenport summoned an ambulance. The ambulance attendant found Tinkel to be in an alcoholic coma.

SHOOTS CADDIE ENTERING FARM TO GET A BALL

James McClements, 17 years old, 7748 Berwyn avenue, a caddie at the Big Oaks public fee golf course, 6600 Lawrence avenue, at the city limits, was shot in the left leg yesterday afternoon by a farmer who objected to the boy's retrieving a golf ball from his property, which borders the club grounds. At St. Anne's hospital, where McClements was taken by the caddie master, physicians removed eleven buckshot.

McClements was caddying for Albert Stein, 4239 North Hermitage avenue. He drove a ball four feet inside Davison's grounds on the seventh hole, and the caddie clambered over the fence to get it. Stein and Bernard A. Salzberg, 1525 Farwell avenue, another golfer, told police Davison suddenly appeared with a shotgun and fired two charges at the boy.

Contact Ship at Night; Enter Fourth Day.

For the first time since they took off last Thursday, Mary Owens and Jean La Rene, the two young Texans who are seeking to break the woman's refueling endurance flight record, were compelled to make a night contact with their refueling ship last night at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport at Glenview. The emergency occurred as the flyers soared into their fourth day, having completed 72 hours in the air at 8:13 p. m.

The emergency arose when the girls accidentally heaved overboard their reserve oil supply which was to have been used in the early morning hours today under the mistaken impression it was used oil. Their Curtis Thrush plane swung low over the ground before the crowd of spectators, signifying to Kenneth Hunter, in charge of ground operations, that something was wrong.

Take Fuel at Night.

Hunter, one of four brothers who made an endurance record over the same field in 1930, immediately went up in a Stinson plane, flew over the "Lone Star," flashed a strong light down on the ship, and let down a hook on which Mary fastened a note explaining their plight. He then lowered six gallons of oil to her, and the flight continued.

Because of the slight danger always attendant, Hunter explained that contacts are made only during the day, when the girls can see clearly.

Fly Over the Fair.

Early in the evening at 6:15 o'clock the Texans piloted their ship over A Century of Progress, where Hunter met them in the refueling plane and supplied them with seventy gallons of fuel. In their three or four daily contacts the Lone Star takes aboard 250 gallons of gasoline.

The two young pilots, who alternate at the controls and resting, seem to be holding up well under the strain, Hunter said. Mary, who supervises all contacts with his ship, appeared to be "quite chipper" yesterday, he reported. Both girls ordered big Sunday dinners, and regaled themselves on the fried chicken and mashed potatoes sent them by the ground crew.

ATTACKS FARM 'RELIEF CHECKS' AS VOTE BUYING

G. O. P. Cites $779,402,000 as Total Involved.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration expects to dole out to thousands of farmers in every state of the union and in Porto Rico, for crop reduction programs now under way, the grand sum of $779,402,000.

This was officially forecast today in tables published by the department of agriculture. The total by itself is more than the entire cost of operating all branches of the federal government in 1916.

Come Before Elections.

The benefit payments, given to farmers who agree to curtail their production of wheat, cotton, corn-hogs, and tobacco, will have largely been disbursed by next November, when congressional elections will be held over the country. It has been charged by Republican leaders that the flooding of federal checks to millions of farmers is no more than an open form of bribery to obtain votes for New Deal candidates.

The same leaders have pointed out that the millions will all have to be paid by the consuming public in the form of higher prices and processing taxes upon food.

At the same time that the estimated figure of $779,402,000 was published as that which will have been paid when the 1933-34-35 crop programs are completed, another table was released showing that up to Aug. 25, a total of $282,882,519 had been disbursed in rental and benefit payments, as follows: Cotton, $152,510,793; tobacco, $15,773,786; wheat, $67,781,952; corn-hogs, $46,815,988.

Total of Payments.

The payments, estimated to be made when these programs are all completed, are divided by states as follows:

Alabama..	$20,557,000	Nevada ..	128,000
Arizona .	1,359,000	N. H'shire	63,000
Arkansas.	23,456,000	N. Jersey	281,000
California	6,064,000	N. Mexico	2,945,000
Colorado..	7,057,000	N. York ..	760,000

Delaware.	266,000	No. D'kota	33,074,000
Florida ..	1,122,000	Ohio	23,044,000
Georgia ..	19,690,000	Oklahoma	39,767,000
Idaho	8,472,000	Oregon ..	6,717,000
Illinois....	43,331,000	Penn'vania	2,257,000
Indiana ..	28,589,000	Rhode Isl'd	5,000
Iowa	76,624,000	S. C'lina .	13,846,000
Kansas ..	66,220,000	S. Dakota	24,535,000
Kentucky.	15,168,000	Tennessee	14,494,000
Louisiana.	11,440,000	Texas ...	93,981,000
Maine	5,000	Utah	1,583,000
Maryland.	2,343,000	Vermont	109,000
Mass.	734,000	Virginia ..	5,145,000
Michigan.	5,358,000	Wash. ...	12,945,000
Minnesota	18,829,000	W. Va....	681,000
Mississippi	23,183,000	Wisconsin.	10,194,000
Missouri .	33,616,000	Wyoming.	1,154,000
Montana	13,101,000	P. Rico...	1,000,000
Nebraska	41,485,000	Total .	$779,402,000

It is plainly seen that citizens in many states where populations are dense will be forced to pay huge proportions of the processing taxes but will gain almost no benefits in payments to their farmers. Among such states are Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, and Vermont.

Girl Leaps Into River at Wells Street; Leaves Note

Central police yesterday were seeking the identity of a young woman who, after leaving a note in her shoe on the Wells street bridge at Wacker drive, apparently leaped into the water. No trace of her was found in the river. The note read: "I loved him but he would not live up to his promise. He will need a new stenographer when he opens his office Monday. The note, which was typed on a sheet of pink notepaper, was signed "Mamie."

ROOSEVELT SETS UP WHITE HOUSE AT HYDE PARK

Prepares to Map New Work with Aids.

BY CHESLEY MANLY.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today established himself in the summer White House, his mother's rambling old home on the bluffs high above the Hudson. Boxes and brief cases of reports and records were unloaded from the special train that brought him up from Washington this morning, and there was begun a period of stock taking of the New Deal's achievements and of planning legislation to perpetuate its program.

The President will remain here at least three weeks, perhaps a month, while the executive offices of the White House are being expanded to accommodate the stupendous activity of a formal governmental nerve center augmented by sixty new alphabetical agencies.

Draft "Social Security" Plan.

According to the viewpoint of Donald Richberg, radical chairman of the President's national emergency council and coördinator of the ABC activities, the stock taking will be highly satisfactory and will justify further legislation to expand and make permanent the New Deal. There are many economists who declare it has been successful to the extent that its purpose is a redistribution of wealth, taking from the thrifty for the benefit of the thriftless and creating a new aristocrary of idlers supported by government largess.

This theory is based on the program of "social security" which Mr. Roosevelt and Harry L. Hopkins, his emergency relief administrator, will draft during the next few weeks for presentation to the next congres. The broad outlines of the plan, according to Mr. Hopkins, covers unemployment insurance and a system of permanent work relief for rehabilitation of the idle. Mr. Hopkins would supplant the unemployment insurance fund, which he admits would be inadequate in itself, with "cash benefits" paid by the government.

Works Out NRA Scheme.

This is one of the permanent enterprises the New Dealers are planning and another is the perpetuation of the NRA, the scheme of which is being worked out principally by Richberg and will be presented to the President within a fortnight.

After a day or so the President expects to have two or three conferences a day with his administration officials, but he spent today resting and visiting with his family. His mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt; his wife and son and a daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, are with him. Tomorrow the whole party, including the White House secretariat, will drive down the Hudson to Walkill, so-called medium security prison for boys, there being no walls, and Warwick, another boys' correctional institution in both of which Mr. Roosevelt was greatly interested during his administration as governor of New York.

Later the party will go to West Point, where the three classes now in school will put on a dress parade in the President's honor. Somewhere along the route the party will stop for a picnic being arranged by Mrs. Roosevelt.

The President's principal work during his vacation here will be conducted in the library of his mother's home, which sets back a quarter of a mile from the Albany post road in a 20 acre lawn covered clearing. Many of the President's visitors, however, will be received in the cottage of his own farm, a short distance to the north and eastward across the road. Here he often mixes business with pleasure, discussing affairs of state while swimming in his private pool

SHOWDOWN SEEN AS A RESULT OF LIBERTY LEAGUE

Aids Urge Realignment of Parties.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has refused to accept the challenge to remake the political parties of America over into two new ones—conservatives versus radicals.

Goaded by two of his own cabinet officers, as well as his own relief administrator, all of whom pleaded for a realignment of party loyalties, the President has declined to go "the whole hog," as he might put it himself.

The President's position is one of trying, as the titular head of the Democratic party, to hold on to all Democrats, as such, whether they be of conservative, liberal or radical bent. At the same time Mr. Roosevelt is openly beckoning to all radicals in the Republican party to support his program because it is radical.

Trying thus to walk two tight ropes at the same time Mr. Roosevelt is often seen in incongruous positions, and never was this more true than in the last week.

League May Hasten Choice.

The major change in the situation, one which may hasten the President's choice and force him to declare himself with political accuracy, is the creation of the American Liberty league.

This new agency, given birth by such outstanding conservatives of both parties as Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis, and James Wadsworth, is heralded to be nonpartisan, but actually it is seen as the rallying point for all citizens zealous to defend the government's fundamental institutions. It is designed to attract all conservatives, of whatever political faith, and most observers credit it with potential political strength such as to compel the President to reorganize his own political forces to assemble under his banner all the radicals.

Another important element is the necessity for agreeing upon the selection of a speaker of the house of representatives, a necessity brought forth by the death of Speaker Rainey.

May Be Radical Bankhead.

It is deemed certain that the Roosevelt advisers will seek to assure the selection of a speaker with radical sympathies and this gives rise to strong possibilities that the next speaker may be William Bankhead of Alabama, one of the two brothers responsible for foisting the radical Bankhead control act upon the country.

However, the speakership struggle is complicated by other political considerations. Joseph Byrns of Tennessee. present majority leader of the house, has announced himself entitled to the job by reason of tradition and precedent. That reasoning may appeal to the old timers in an institution long hag-ridden by precedent, and if so, the fight will turn upon the selection of a leader to take Byrns' old place. This job, it is felt, is certain to be taken by a radical.

Sectional issues also arise. Speaker Rainey was a choice of a coalition of northern and western Democrats against the southern bloc. Now no likely candidate appears from north or west. The choice seems to lie between Byrns, Bankhead, and Sam Rayburn of Texas, who, though favored by Mr. Roosevelt personally, is deemed by the brain trusters as a conservative at heart.

League the Pressing Issue.

But the pressing issue of today revolves about the new American Liberty league. The President has damned it with faint praise, saying with one breath that any American citizen could subscribe to its two announced objects, and with his next that the god served by the league is the god of property.

On the day after the creation of the league was announced by Jouett Shouse, its president, reporters interviewed Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior.

"It's fine," he exclaimed. "I've been hoping ever since 1912 that we'd have political parties divided on real issues. It looks as if it's working out that way at last. Today we have different groups in each party. I'd like to see all the progressives together and all the conservatives together. Then you'd always be facing your enemy and not wondering about what is happening behind your back."

A week earlier Secretary Wallace in a speech called for a realignment of parties so that liberals in both parties could be rallied behind the New Deal, and the others put separately.

Both these cabinet officers, as it happens, are of a radical Republican stripe, and their wishes for a realignment may reflect their desire to welcome more of their kind into the Roosevelt camp, without the necessity of adopting a badge of Democratic servitude.

When Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, was asked to comment about the American Liberty league, he replied with characteristic scorn that the founders of the league were "'right' thinking people" and "so far over to the right that no one would ever find them."

Then newspaper men got access to the President, and listened to his ironical criticism of the league as serving property instead of serving neighbor. A reporter asked him directly to discuss Mr. Ickes' comment welcoming the league as leading to a new division of parties. The President shook his head, said he had no comment to make on Ickes' statement.

Farley the Barometer.

When Mr. Roosevelt declines to give his political views, or take a political position, Washington observers have learned that they can read the President's mind with great accuracy by watching the conduct of his postmaster general and political general, James A. Farley.

Mr. Farley did not welcome the advent of the American Liberty league. He did not mention the league at all. But his actions were quite significant. First, the publicity headquarters of the Democratic national committee came out with a hand out to reporters concerning the attitude of five Democratic senators toward the league.

These five senators have been outspoken critics of the radical measures of the New Dealers, and it was suggested in some newspaper analysis that they would combine with the league supporters to form a conservative bloc in the coming congress.

So Mr. Farley's committee sent messages to each senator, asking if it was true that they intended to join Republicans in the formation of a conservative bloc. It should be remembered that all of these senators have been granted political patronage by the grace of Mr. Farley, and that for one of them to answer Mr. Farley in the affirmative would be to read himself forever out of the Democratic party.

Little Comfort from Glass.

So the answers were forthwith got out, with great éclat, by the Democratic press agents. Carter Glass of Virginia, who has been the most bitter critic of the New Deal, was put first, and he said, characteristically, "any suggestion that I am coöperating with the Republican party or with Republican individuals, directly or indirectly, is a pure invention." He added pointedly that his position on legislation and "certain policies" of the administration had been stated by him on the floor of the senate. Few could see great comfort for Mr. Farley in this.

Yesterday, when Mr. Glass sailed on the Aquitania for a European vacation, he suggested that the nation give the newly formed league a little more time before passing judgment upon it.

"Give the American Liberty league a chance," said the Virginian. "President Roosevelt has had a year and a half; the league has just started."

The other Democratic senators who gave varying degrees of assurance to Mr. Farley that they hadn't entered into a pact with Republicans were Harry Byrd of Virginia, Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, Millard Tydings of Maryland, and Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina.

Votes Show How They Feel.

The votes of these men on radical New Deal measures and their declarations of opinion and conviction on the floor of the senate and in public addresses, leaves little doubt in most minds that they subscribe whole heartedly to the principles of the American Liberty league, every bit as much, perhaps, as does Alfred E. Smith himself. They are all southerners, and as such must adhere to the Democratic party label, for there is no other label recognizable to voters of the south. So until, and unless Mr. Roosevelt changes party labels the conservative Democratic senators must remain Democrats.

No one knows better than Mr. Farley himself that the five senators are out of sympathy with the radical measures of the New Deal, but nevertheless he took steps to keep them within the folds of the party.

Seeks G. O. P. Backing.

Another significant move by Mr. Farley, which is taken to reflect Mr. Roosevelt's own orders and position, was in a speech made by Farley yesterday at Seagirt, N. J.

Mr. Farley spoke of "the blind reactionaries that today are banded together under the banner of the Republican party," but the greater moment was this Rooseveltian touch:

"I want to thank the thousands of Republican voters in New Jersey who marched to the polls in November of 1932, shook off the shackles of a discredited party and marked their ballots for Franklin D. Roosevelt. We want you with us. We want you with us this fall, and every election day. We'll try to show you that the liberal background and liberal history of the Democratic party is more than a mere name; it will bring you the satisfaction that here at last is a philosophy of government that puts human values first."

Obviously Mr. Farley is not giving up any Democratic votes and he is taking all the Republican votes he can get. Mr. Farley, and through him his patron, the President, is not willing to chance a splitting of Democrats, as Messrs. Ickes, Wallace and Hopkins would seem to welcome.

FINDS RELIEF COSTS NEW YORK $6.37 AT EACH TICK OF CLOCK

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The department of public welfare has figured the city's unemployment relief expenditures down to a matter of seconds—$6.37 every time the clock ticks. The department said tonight expenditures for 1934 will total 201 million dollars.

Approximately 400,000 families, or nearly one-fourth of the entire population of the city, are now receiving "substantial assistance" in various forms of relief, Commissioner William Hodson, the city's chief relief officer, revealed in his "first semi-annual report to the more than 7 million stockholders of the city of New York."

Mr. Hodson declared that before the end of the year the number of families on relief would be increased to about half a million. This represents a population of 2 million, greater than that of any other American city with the single exception of Chicago.

Strong Windstorm Sweeps Verona, Italy; Three Die

VERONA, Italy, Aug. 26.—(AP)—A windstorm of cyclonic intensity struck Verona tonight, killing at least three persons and inflicting heavy damage. The wind toppled a house into the swollen Adige river. A mother and two daughters drowned while a third daughter, 14 years old, clung to a window shutter and was rescued downstream. Heavy storms were reported in the whole Venetia region.

27 Foreign Auto Licenses Counted at Brookfield Zoo

Twenty-seven automobiles with license plates from states other than Illinois were counted among visitors' cars at the Chicago Zoöoligical gardens in Brookfield yesterday. This fact was taken as an indication that the Brookfield zoo is a Chicago area attraction of first rank, although one of the newest. The attendance yesterday was 50,147.

RICHBERG SHOWS WHAT U. S. MAY EXPECT IN '35

Roosevelt Gets Accounting of New Deal.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today had an accounting of his New Deal, of its progress thous far as the New Dealers appraise it.

A lengthy report summarizing the achievements claimed by the NRA, the PWA, and other agencies in curing unemployment, was submitted to the President by Donald R. Richberg, secretary of the executive council, which Mr. Roosevelt created some time ago to review his program. Subsequent reports, Mr. Richberg announced, will cover other phases of the recovery campaign.

No effort was made in the report on unemployment relief to estimate the actual extent to which administration activities have provided work for the idle. Mr. Richberg merely set forth in statistical form the results claimed for their own efforts by the various alphabetical agencies concerned with the unemployment problem.

Shows the Priming Graphically.

But the report served to illustrate graphically the extent to which federal resources have been used to prime the industrial pump. One indication of the vast rôle now played by the government as an employer of labor was seen in Mr. Richberg's statement that only 1,305,873 jobless were placed in private industry during a year's time by national and state employment services, while 5,645,650 were hired in various capacities during the same period by Uncle Sam.

Mr. Richberg divided federal relief activities into two categories, the first entitled "relief through private enterprise," the second, "relief through public works." Major agency in the first group was the NRA, while the PWA formed the nucleus of the second category.

To the NRA, with its shorter hour requirements in codes covering "about 95 per cent of all industrial workers," Mr. Richberg attributed the creation of jobs for about 2,300,000 persons.

"Reliable figures indicate that 40,180,000 persons were employed in the United States in June, 1934," he stated, "an increase of 4,120,000 over the low figure of March, 1933, and an increase of 2,320,000 over June, 1933. The latter increase is mainly due to shortening of hours under NRA codes. The increase of 1,800,000 prior to the NRA can be attributed partly to the revival of business brought about by other federal activities and partly to anticipation of increased labor costs under the NRA program."

Wages Boost U. S. Income.

Nor was increased industrial employment the only accomplishment set forth by Mr. Richberg, who is on temporary leave of absence from his post as general counsel of the recovery administration. Minimum wage requirements in the recovery codes, he claimed, have boosted labor's share in the national income from 58.3 per cent in June, 1933, to 62.5 per cent in June, 1934. Wage totals in the manufacturing industries increased 37.5 per cent during the same period, the report stated, and by offsetting a 9.6 per cent gain in the cost of living, Mr. Richberg deduced that the total purchasing power of workers in the manufacturing industries increased by 25 per cent during the year period.

Per capita earnings in industry rose only 8.5 per cent during the same year. Mr. Richberg admitted, however, indicating that as far as the individual worker is concerned, the NRA has boosted living costs considerably faster than individual income.

The PWA, major agency in Mr. Richberg's second relief category, will have provided direct employment for about 700,000 men by September, the report stated. Outlining the progress of direct employment on construction projects financed by the government, Mr. Richberg said, jobs totaled 250,000 at the end of 1933.

FEDERAL COTTON CONTROL PLAN IS HIT BY DE PRIEST

Sees Re-enslavement of South's Negroes.

Representative Oscar De Priest, only Negro member of congress, yesterday assailed the federal cotton control program as leading to the reënslavement of the Negro population of the south.

His attack was occasioned by the announcement of Representative William B. Bankhead of Alabama on Saturday that he would be a candidate for speaker of the house of representatives to succeed the late Henry T. Rainey of Carrollton, Ill. Representative Bankhead and his brother, Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama, are co-authors of the cotton control law.

Representative De Priest charged the Bankhead bill has thrown 30 per cent of the Negro cotton share croppers, field hands and laborers in cotton ginning plants out of work. By increasing destitution among such workers, he said the law has virtually returned them to a condition of servitude.

Cut Employment 30 Per Cent.

"The Bankhead bill is the most vicious example of how the New Deal has worked adversely against the Negro, particularly in the south," said Representative De Priest.

"The 40 per cent cut in cotton acreage, under the bill, has cut employment about 30 per cent.

"Throughout the south the laboring part of the population is dependent largely for work upon chopping and picking cotton. With the marked cut in acreage wages of such workers have dropped to about 37 cents from sunup to sundown as against 75 cents to a $1 a year ago.

"If Representative Bankhead is made speaker he will undoubtedly attempt to press further legislation similar to the cotton law which will complete the pauperization of the south's Negro population. It will be recalled that Bankhead's bill was pushed through the house and later through the senate under the gag rule so that there was almost no debate.

Charges Brain Trust Plot.

"Invocation of the gag rule has been the favorite device of brain trusters, who could not hope to pass their various programs if they were given sufficient scrutiny through debate. I have no doubt that Bankhead as speaker would invoke the rule to secure extension of his bill and program."

"This is leading toward permanent pauperization of the Negroes, and permanent pauperization is the same as slavery."

The representative said that on the whole the national recovery program has not brought about any benefits to the Negroes but rather retarded them. While the Bankhead law is cutting employment in the south, he said the Negro is being injured in the north by intensified competition between white and colored labor, due to NRA legislation.

Purchasing Power Cut.

"The purchasing power of the Negro group has been lowered and the standard of living among Negroes has dropped under the NRA," Representative De Priest said.

"This is largely due to the hierarchy of southerners in congress under the New Deal. The north has almost no important posts on congressional committees.

"The only hope against the evils of the New Deal for both Negro and white is the election of sufficient number of Republicans to halt gag rule legislation and restore constitutional government. I believe the election of a northern Democrat to the speakership would be a wholesome step toward real recovery."

GRIERSON FLIES OVER GREENLAND ICE TO GODTHAAB

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 26.—(AP)—John Grierson, British aviator, arrived safely today at Godthaab, on the west coast of Greenland, said a brief dispatch to the radio branch of the marine department here. He flew from Angmagsalik, on the east coast, en route to Ottawa.

Thinks Worst Is Past.

ANGMAGSALIK, Aug. 26.—(AP)—John Grierson, attempting to cross the North Atlantic in a light plane, before taking off for Godthaab expressed hope that the worst part of his often-interrupted journey is past. He added that he will not attempt to make an eastward crossing of the ocean in his little plane.

Three attempts to make the flight to Godthaab yesterday were unsuccessful. Twice he tried to lift his plane from the drift ice in the fjord where it was moored. He went aloft on the third attempt and reach the ice cap in central Greenland, but poor visibility forced him to a height of 10,000 feet, where ice formed on his wings. He returned two hours later.

Woman and 3 Men Seized as Cleveland Bank Suspects

Three men and a woman were held at the detective bureau yesterday for Cleveland authorities on suspicion of having taken part in a robbery of the Morris Plan bank there recently. They are Joseph Fredericks, 34 years old, his wife, Bertha, of 5406 Winthrop avenue; Joseph Golej, 21 years old, and Jack Ferda, 29 years old, of 5452 Broadway. Arrest of the four followed several long distance calls from Cleveland to both addresses concerning a bank robbery.

Printer Still Waits Bombing Protest Reply from Roosevelt

T. J. Cullen, owner of the United States Law Printing company, 2817 North Halsted street, was awaiting a reply yesterday to his appeal to President Roosevelt to order an investigation of alleged terroristic methods which, Cullen charges, have been used to enforce fixed prices under an NRA code in Chicago. Cullen sent a telegram to the President on Thursday following the bombing of his printing shop.

"I made my appeal to President Roosevelt over the head of all code authorities," Cullen said yesterday, "asking him as the official sponsor and head of the New Deal to order an impartial inquiry. I charge that improper methods are being used to force us to agree to a schedule of fixed prices set up by eight of my competitors. These competitors are members of the Law Printers institute, a subdivision of the graphic arts code authority. I have not heard a word from the President. I am going ahead with my business as usual."

Paying Over Code Prices.

Cullen pointed out that he is paying his employes 37 per cent more than the code minimum and more than the union scale. He said that he is enjoying a fair profit at his present prices and can see no reason for "gouging" his customers because of his competitors' demands for higher prices.

The printer was recently "found guilty" of selling legal briefs for 80 cent a page by the zone control board of the legal printing division of the code authority.

"This price is lower than that charged by my competitors," Cullen said, "and if I can operate at a profit I don't see why the government should try to meddle with my business efficiency.

Insists His Prices Fair.

"After all I am entitled to individual effort and should not be bound by arbitrary regulations of a code authority. I'll continue to carry on my business in the way I always have, charging my customers a fair price and paying my men the best wages I can afford. I didn't ask the authority's aid and I don't see why it should interfere with me."

Although the damage to Cullen's shop was estimated at only $100, he informed the President in his telegram that the bomb had periled a mother and four small children on the floor above. He pointed out that the violence followed closely to his refusal to raise his prices 40 per cent after he had already increased them 35 per cent to cover code expenses. He also pointed out in the telegram that the bombing came just after his refusal to testify in the un-American star chamber session to which he was called a week ago by State NRA Director John E. Cassidy.

FEAR VIOLENCE AGAINST SUSPECT IN RAPE OF BRIDE

Tyler, Tex., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Threatened mob violence caused officers today to rush from the jail here to an undisclosed city a prisoner accused of kidnaping Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Herring and later raping Mrs. Herring, 18, a bride of a few weeks. The Herrings were robbed and their automobile was stolen.

The man, who gave the name of J. D. Willis, 19, was identified by police as a Louisiana suspect. He was captured today at Palestine and identified by his victims as the attacker.

Herring and his wife said they were parked at a cold drink stand last night when a man approached, threatened them with a gun and forced them to drive to a wooded area.

There he stripped Herring of all of his clothing except his underwear, tied him to a tree and forced Mrs. Herring to disrobe. She said he raped her, then took the clothing of both herself and her husband and fled in the Herring automobile after tying her to a tree.

When the suspect was arrested in Palestine today, officers reported they found the engagement ring, a quantity of money and other valuables in the stolen car. He denied attacking Mrs. Herring.

About two hours after the attack, Mrs. Herring freed herself and untied her husband. They borrowed clothing at a farm house and came to Tyler.

PERSIA BIDS FOR CHINA'S SEAT IN LEAGUE COUNCIL

Files Candidacy to Speak for Far East.

GENEVA, Aug. 26.—(AP)—International politics as played through the league of nations took on a new aspect with the announcement today that Persia has demanded a seat in the council of the league.

China's three year term of membership in the council expired this year. Persia has filed her candidacy "as representing countries of the far east." Persia thereby indicated that she aspires specifically to the seat held by China.

Chile After Panama's Place.

The terms of Spain and Panama also will expire shortly. Spain, like Poland, is a nonpermanent member. But she possesses the right of reëligibility and indications are she will be reëlected without difficulty.

For Panama's seat it is expected that Chile will file a candidacy, with the Dominican republic also mentioned.

In league of nations circles it is expected that Russia will be admitted to the league in Septemebr. It is believed, however, that Russia will demand a permanent seat in the council, thus qualifying it to receive the same treatment as other great powers.

Poland Can Block Russia.

Such a demand from Russia, it is foreseen in some quarters, may provoke a competition. It is expected that if Russia is given a permanent seat Poland also will demand a permanent place. In passing on Russia's application Poland would be in a powerful position because of her nonpermanent place in the conference. The rules require that additions to the council must be approved by the unanimous vote of the existing members.

SEN. SCHALL, IN NEW NOTE, RAPS ROOSEVELT REPLY

"Your Own Acts" Cited by Blind Solon.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Unwilling to accept the President's curt suggestion that "the incident is closed," Senator Thomas D. Schall [Rep., Ind.] today sent another letter to Mr. Roosevelt attacking the administration for its efforts to curb the freedom of the press.

The Schall letter, as made public by the senator, follows:

"Your second open telegram to me in no wise explains the various attempts of your administration to obtain legislation censoring the press of the United States.

"You requested evidence from me concerning your own acts. I cited you three instances of your efforts to keep the public from securing, through the press, facts conerning the attempts of your burocracy to communize the United States.

"Why Not End Censorship."

"You say you are acting 'in good faith.' Then why not, as a starter, remove the censorship bars against the press that you have placed in all your departments?

"Your conclusion to me that the 'incident is closed' will in no way, Mr. President, satisfy the people of their fear of where you are unconstitutionally steering their republic. As a representative of the people I dare not, under my oath to support and defend the constitution, let it rest there. The people of the United States want to know from you why their republic is being gradually cast aside for a dictatorship.

"If you desire specific information as the basis of my reasonable inference, that the government is about to coördinate its various and sundry publicity functions into a national press service, you have only to assemble the following 'makings':

"Your administration has set up its magazine, called 'Today,' edited by Brain Truster Raymond Moley and financed by Admiral Vincent Astor of the flagship Nourmahal. What is now needed is a day and night national news service that will cover the daily press field.

"Dictatorships Have Organs."

"All dictatorships and most kings and emperors have their official organs. In Germany Führer Hitler has created his ministry of publicity with Goebbels at the head. The Russian soviet has the Taas agency. Nothing goes out in Italy without Mussolini's sanction. The news service of the Washington administration might appropriately be called the WHP—or White House Press—which would function as the official news service of the 'New Deal.'

"In all fairness, Mr. President, you must admit that you have the 'makings' all ready at hand. Is it too much for me to call the attention of the nation to the danger threatened, and, as Patrick Henry well put it, when he was advocating that the colonies throw off the yoke of George III, 'I know of no way of judging the future but by the past.'"

Marcus W. Marks, Leader for Daylight Saving, Dies

New York, Aug. 26.—Marcus W. Marks, who was president of the borough of Manhattan from 1913 to 1917, died tonight of uremic poisoning. Mr. Marks was a member of President Theodore Roosevelt's Nobel prize committee of nine on industrial peace, and he served as mediator in many industrial disputes. To the New York public Mr. Marks was known for his varied philanthropic activities, among which should be included his leadership of the fight for daylight saving. He was president of the National Daylight Saving association.

ALLRED WINNER IN TEXAS RUNOFF GOVERNOR VOTE

Defeat Is Conceded by Ferguson Choice.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 26.—(AP)—James V. Allred, who made opposition to "Fergusonism" the cue of his campaign, was the choice of Texas voters today to succeed Mrs. Miriam A. [Ma] Ferguson in the governorship.

The Democratic nomination—tantamount to election in Texas—was conceded the 35 year old state's attorney general by Tom F. Hunter, supported by Mrs. Ferguson and her husband, James E. Ferguson, impeached former governor. Allred held a lead over Hunter of more than 46,000 votes from Saturday's runoff primary at the time Hunter announced he would concede.

Allred was called "a boy" in the campaign addresses of Ferguson, whose organization has held sway in Texas politics for 20 years. The attorney general in answer said he "was not too young to run for governor in my own name, and that's more than Jim Ferguson can do."

QUITS AS PENSION NEARS SO OTHERS CAN BE PROMOTED

Denver, Colo., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Verner W. Campbell of Denver, a federal forest official, quit his job and gave up a chance for a full pension today so that younger men below him in the United States forest service ranks could receive promotion.

Campbell, 62, was deputy regional fiscal agent and wouldn't have to retire until he is 70. By retiring now he will draw only part of the pension due at the legal age limit.

But the veteran official concluded he had saved enough money to get along comfortably for the rest of his life.

"Why should I go ahead and hold down a job when I don't have to work and some one else needs the job?" he asked.

Daughter of Bruce Barton Is Injured in Auto Crash

BRAIN TRUSTERS UNDER ATTACK BEFORE LEGION

Rep. Allen Also Assails U. S. O. K. on Russia.

Sterling, Ill., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The people of the United States do not want to change their constitution without registering their will and doing so through their legally elected representatives, Congressman Leo E. Allen said here today. He spoke before a crowd attending the dedication of a gun under the auspices of the American Legion. During the war he served with the 58th field artillery brigade.

Mr. Allen, of the 13th district, attacked Russian recognition by the United States and the methods of the brain trust.

Cites Old Despotisms.

Congressman Allen recalled the days of despotic governments, saying:

"We know that during those reigns one would be put to death by merely making a statement of criticism. We know of the many lives that it has cost in order that a free people might have the right of free speech, the right to make criticism, the right of free press, the right to worship God as they saw fit.

"When the writers of the constitution met and without a dissenting vote declared that Americans should have the right of free speech, the right to worship God as they pleased, to all of us that was the greatest of their wisdom. And in these most difficult times I believe that all of us have the right to criticize, to offer sound suggestions, and that by doing so we should not be classed as 'chiselers' or 'tories.' What this country needs today more than any other thing is good, well warranted suggestions, constructive criticism, not complete submission."

The congressman said that the Legion had opposed recognition of Russia, "a nation against all religion," that he, as a member of the house foreign affairs committee, had opposed it. But Russia was recognized.

"Today," Mr. Allen said, "every true American is convinced that the American Legion was absolutely right in their stand. The United States has not been benefited by the recognition. The recognition without question has encouraged the trend of communism and Socialism in this country. The American Legion should insist that all government employés with Russian soviet backgrounds be discharged."

Attacking the Brain Trust, Mr. Allen told the Legionnaires:

Attacks Brain Trust.

"If our people desire their laws to be drafted by a small group of men in sympathy with alien institutions it is their right. If, on the other hand, they wish their duly elected representatives to write their laws, the constitution as it stands gives them that right. In all events if the constitution is to be abandoned, if the American system is to be changed, it should be by solemn vote of the people themselves. It is their constitution. They and they alone may change it. I do not believe the people want their constitution changed."

In connection of government interference in business he took up the air mail matters:

"We all know that many honest stockholders of national airways have invested many millions of dollars. These airways were accused of fraud in handling the mails. They demanded a hearing before their peers. They asked nothing more. This essential American right was refused. Property values of many hundreds of thousands of citizens were wiped out to the tune of many millions of dollars.

"At that time it was stated that the officers of the various airways would be found guilty of fraud and thrown into the penitentiary within a few months. Yet to this day no evidence is disclosed which suggests illegality, fraud, or even conspiracy to defraud. If there was fraud or any evidence to wrong, why has no court been called upon to punish the guilty? The millions of property losses were the smallest item. The twelve brave army flyers have paid the price.

"We must insist that there be no class hatred. We must insist that whether it be a corporation, a company, or an individual, that they be given the opportunity of appearing before their peers in a court of justice. On the battlefield of Gettysburg this nation proved that it was strong enough to maintain its existence under the constitution in the greatest emergency that any government can face.

"It is important that we rededicate ourselves to the same belief held by those who fought during that most famous battle. The American Legion cannot see destroyed the civilization which brought us much happiness and many splendid heritages.

"The American Legion will not willingly see destroyed the freedom of the press, freedom of constructive criticism. The American Legion believes in applauding the sound policies of our government and giving constructive criticism to the unsound. The American Legion is opposed to radicalism and insists that there not be revolutionary changes without the popular vote of the people."

PARTIES PREPARE FIGHT TO WIN SEAT OF RAINEY

Democrats to Name Man Next Month.

Jacksonville, Ill., Aug. 26.—[Special.] Announcement was made today by Joseph Knight of Jersey county, Democratic state central committeeman for the 20th congressional district, that in his opinion the convention of county chairmen to nominate a candidate for congress to succeed the late Speaker Henry T. Rainey, would be called the early part of September.

The convention probably will be held in Jacksonville. Charles P. Casey of Jerseyville is chairman and Warren Brockhouse of Jacksonville is secretary of the congressional committee, having been elected in July to their respective positions.

An Original Roosevelt Man.

William N. Hairgrove of Jacksonville started his campaign for the nomination Saturday evening. He is regarded as practically to have the support of Morgan county. Indications are that he already has strength in Cass county, home county of Senator William Deitrich, junior senator from Illinois, and also in Brown county. Hairgrove was one of the outstanding "before the convention Roosevelt delegates" in 1932.

As far as known no official announcement has been made on the part of any of the other prospective candidates in the district.

Because of the death of Mr. Rainey unusual importance attaches to Republican and Democratic day at the Morgan county fair this week.

Wednesday for G. O. P.

Wednesday has been announced as Republican day at that fair. On that day Congressman McLeod of Michigan, author of the McLeod bill to repay depositors for depression losses by bank failures, a bill defeated in the last congress, will deliver the principal address.

Francis ?. Blair, Republican candidate for superintendent of public instruction, and William Stratton, candidate for state treasurer, also will deliver addresses at the fair on that day. All Republican candidates for county, legislature, and district offices will be presented to fair visitors. Warren Wright, Republican candidate for congress will introduce Mr. McLeod, Harry Strawn, Morgan county central committee chairman, will preside over the program.

ENGLISH PRINCE DENIES HE'LL WED GREEK PRINCESS

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Prince George, a son of the British king, was quoted today in the Daily Mail as denying recent rumors he was engaged to marry Princess Marina of Greece.

The prince, attending a music festival at Salzburg, accompanied by Prince Paul and Princess Olga of Jugo-Slavia, and by Princess Marina, was asked by the Mail's correspondent for information about the story.

"There is no truth at all in these rumors," the prince was quoted as saying, adding that he would be very glad if the inquirer would make the denial known.

CUBA SEIZES TWO PLOTTERS; MET IN OLD U. S. EMBASSY

HAVANA, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Police arrested two men tonight and turned them over to the military, charged with holding meetings in the old United States embassy building and plotting the overthrow of the Mendieta government.

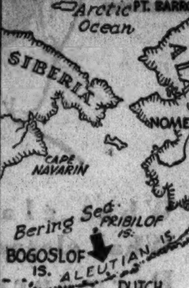
They gave their names as Antonio Villazon and Cecilio Iniguez.

Officials discovered a large quantity of arms and ammunition in the same building several weeks ago. A caretaker said the arms had been placed in the building by a revolutionary group before Ambassador Caffery came to Cuba.

GLACIER PRIEST FINDS HARBOR IN 'GRAVEYARD ISLE'

Bogoslof One of Aleutians in Bering Sea.

ABOARD THE EXPEDITION SHIP AMELIA, Aug. 26.—[By wireless to the Associated Press.]—Discovery of an anchorage at Bogoslof island in the "graveyard of the Aleutians" was announced today by Father Bernard R. Hubbard, S. J., after a stay at the famous disappearing island which has puzzled arctic navigators for years.



The anchorage was of inestimable value to ships in the Bering sea, the "glacier priest" said, providing a safe haven for vessels bound to and from Nome and other Bering sea ports. Rearing out of the sea near Unimak pass, one of the roughest water passages in the world and known to mariners as the graveyard of the Aleutians, Bogoslof has been shunned because of its deep waters and treacherous reefs.

Refuge from Gales.

Discovery of the anchorage, which will offer protection from prevailing southeast gales, was made Aug. 22 while Father Hubbard and the members of his expedition, now en route to the Katmai region on the Alaska peninsula, were attempting to land on the island to study volcanic conditions and photograph the giant sea lions and millions of birds which make Bogoslof their home.

Unusually calm seas enabled the Amelia to approach the reefs and sand bars with nominal danger, the glacier priest said.

While proceeding through a gap between two reefs about three-quarters of a mile offshore, he added, the sounding line struck bottom at 15 fathoms and continued at that depth until the ship was only about 1,200 feet from the island, then shallowed to 10 and finally to five fathoms.

First to Anchor There.

"We were the first boat on record to anchor at Bogoslof," Father Hubbard said. "We found an anchorage that will provide shelter for any of the ships that ply the Bering sea."

After members of the expedition had landed and completed their scientific observations and photographing, the Amelia proceeded to Dutch Harbor, Aleutian Island base of the United States coast guard, where discovery of the Bogoslof anchorage was reported to survey officials. The coast guard cutter Chelan was dispatched the following day to check observations and soundings made.

BYRD SLOWLY REGAINS HEALTH; COLDS SEIZE LITTLE AMERICA CREW

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Aug. 25.—[Delayed.]—(AP)—[Via Mackay Radio.]—Dr. Thomas C. Poulter reported today that Admiral Richard E. Byrd was making slow daily progress toward complete recovery of his health, impaired by illness during his four months of isolation at Bolling advance weather base.

When Dr. Poulter's tractor party reached the advance base a fortnight ago, Admiral Byrd, having been without conversation so long, did all his talking in shouts. But recently, Dr. Poulter said, he has unconsciously readjusted his voice to its normal softness.

The last two days at the advance base have brought daily minimum temperatures of 75 degrees below zero, the party reported by radio, and they have not yet seen the sun, which for five days has been showing its rim above the Ross sea after the long winter night.

An outbreak of colds has attacked the party at Little America. Colds are uncommon in this supposedly germless continent, and every one was at a loss to account for the infection. Dr. Louis H. Potaka, medical officer, finally figured it out that the germs were probably spread when a box of clothes was opened in one of the buildings. The epidemic was not serious.

RUSSIANS CLAIM JAPANESE BEAT RAIL PRISONERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 26.—A soviet dispatch from Kharbarovsk through the official Tass agency alleges that Japanese authorities in Manchukuo were subjecting arrested Russian employés of the Chinese Eastern railway to beatings and tortures for the purpose of extorting "confessions."

The dispatch mentioned the case of a soviet citizen named Likhodzievsky, arrested at Pogranichnaya [Suifenho], who it was alleged had been beaten for three hours with the purpose of compelling him to confess to activities of which he was innocent.

A further report from Harbin of the arrest of 70 additional employés of the Chinese Eastern railway brings the total of arrests, as reported here, to 156.

FRANCE JAILS U. S. ACTRESS; BROKE EXPULSION ORDER

BREST, France, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Ruth Putnam Mason, New York actress and producer, had her second look at the inside of a French jail today after police arrested her for an alleged violation of a two year old expulsion order.

In May, 1932, Miss Mason was arrested on a charge of issuing checks without sufficient funds while attempting to produce one of her plays in Paris. Police said sentence was suspended at that time and she was ordered to leave France.

Miss Mason came to Le Havre from England Aug. 16 to visit friends along the Britanny coast. When taken into custody at her hotel today she protested the arrest on the grounds that money she had obtained through the check had been reimbursed. She also told police she had lost $75, but that she had $2 left.

The American girl told police she was a graduate of Columbia university and the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

REPORT EVIDENCE THAT DILLINGER AID WAS KILLED

Further evidence of the death of John Hamilton, first lieutenant to the late John Dillinger, came yesterday from two Tucson, Ariz., detectives who were guests of Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan at the showup in the detective bureau.

Sergts. Harry Foley and Milo Walker, the visitors, asserted Dillinger told them when he and three other members of his gang were arrested by the Tucson police on Jan. 25, that Hamilton had been shot five times in escaping from the East Chicago, Ind., bank robbery on Jan. 14.

After the slaying of Homer Van Meter, another Dillinger gangster, by peace officers last Thursday at St. Paul, Minn., police and department of justice operatives there announced they had information that Hamilton had died of bullet wounds.

—let's see how Chesterfield handles its Turkish tobacco

A man who recently returned from a Mediterranean cruise wrote us as follows about Chesterfield Cigarettes —

"ONE of the first things I noticed in Smyrna was the fine new up-to-date tobacco factory run by the people who make Chesterfield Cigarettes.

"The Turkish tobacco they buy there is shipped in from all parts of Turkey and Greece.

"I saw them grading it, and packing it into bales—thousands of tiny leaves in each bale—and then putting it on the boat for shipment to America.

"It made me realize how important Turkish tobacco is to a good cigarette."

And that means something—good Turkish tobacco has a lot to do with Chesterfield's milder better taste.

U. S. BEGINS TEST OF NEW '4 ARMY' PLAN OF DEFENSE

Generals Map Tactics to Repel Eastern Attack.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Having completed a review of mobilization plans, the war department today began a general headquarters command post exercise, designed to test, for the first time, the efficiency of the reorganization of the United States army effected last year by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staf.

Gen. MacArthur instituted the "four army" plan with a view of facilitating preparedness and making possible a speed mobilization in the event of an emergency. The original nine corps area plan was predicated on the assumption that congress would make effective the national defense act of 1920, with a full peacetime strength of the regular army and the national guard.

As a result of successive reductions this plan, in the opinion of Gen. MacArthur, became applicable only in situations comparable to the World war, when circumstances assured protection of the home land during a long period of mobilizations. The German forces were held at a safe [for us] distance by the allied armies.

Aimed to Speed Mobilization.

The new "four army" plan is designed to make a defensive force immediately available, for Gen. MacArthur feels that post-war developments would not permit as much time for mobilization, in time of an emergency, as was required when the United States entered the World war.

An outstanding provision of MacArthur's plan is that the chief of staf shall be supreme in all war activities, both in the war department and in the armies in the field. This is designed to eliminate differences which have arisen in the past between the commander of the field forces and the war department, in one instance between Gen. John J. Pershing and Gen. Peyton March during the World war.

The peace time setup now includes a general headquarters, a general headquarters air force, and four armies, constituted as follows: The first army includes the first, second, and third corps areas, in the New England and middle Atlantic states; the second army includes the fifth and sixth corps areas, comprising West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan; the third army includes the fourth and eighth corps areas, in the southern theater, and the fourth army includes the seventh and ninth corps areas, in the northwest and Pacific region.

The Assumed Situation.

For the purpose of the command post exercise of the officers of general headquarters and the first and second armies, there is an assumed situation in which the United States is at war in the west. The third and fourth armies are engaged in this theater, the United States fleet is on the Pacific coast and the general headquarters air force is concentrated in Pacific coast airdromes.

Taking advantage of this situation, the United States is attacked by a powerful combination on the Atlantic, and the enemy attempts to land troops along the Delaware and New Jersey coasts to bomb New York City. The first and second armies go to the defense on this front, from Chesapeake Bay to Boston.

The first stage of the command post exercise is being conducted at home stations and at such places as may be designated by commanding officers. It is comprised of [1] preliminary training to perfect organization and functioning of the headquarters and [2] the drawing up of operation plans under the assumed situation.

Second Stage in Field.

The second stage, beginning Sept. 2, is to be held in the field, with Gen. MacArthur establishing headquarters at Raritan arsenal in New Jersey, and the first and second armies setting up headquarters at Camp Dix, N. J., and Fort Monmouth, N. J., respectively.

The principal commanding officers, other than MacArthur, will be: Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, headquarters general air force; Maj. Gen. Dennis E. Nolan, commanding general of the first army; Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, commanding general of the second army; Maj. Gen. Fox Conner, commander of the first corps headquarters; Maj. Gen. L. R. Holbrook, commander of the 2nd corps headquarters; Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commander of the 3d corps headquarters; Maj. Gen. Albert J. Bowley, commander of the 5th corps headquarters; Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, commander of the 6th corps headquarters.

There will be no movement of troops, only officers participating, but there will be a theoretical concentration and supply of forces, and on paper the army will cover situations comprising the advance to and conduct of battle. As the enemy attacks on the Atlantic coast and the army goes into action, a group of army officers acting as umpires will determine the effectiveness of meeting the situation. These include Maj. Gen. George S. Simonds, Maj. Joseph T. McNarney, Col. Kerr T. Riggs, and Col. Earl Biscoe.

RESCUED FROM BURNING HOME

Fire Is Mystery

Authorities yesterday were investigating to determine the origin of a fire which caused $1,500 loss to the three flat building at 1313 South Peoria street early yesterday. Three persons were rescued by firemen, including 3 year old Lupe Parra and her dog, Nellie. SAFER IN PLANE THAN IN STABLE, SURVEY REVEALS

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Hostlers and stable hands have a higher death rate than any other gainful employed males between the ages of 15 and 64, a report of a study conducted by the National Tuberculosis association in coöperation with the United States census bureau reveals.

The report covers statistics for the year 1930 and is taken from the death statistics of ten states—Alabama, Connecticut, Illinois, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

The hostlers and stablemen group reported a death rate of 36.22 per 1,000 as contrasted with that for garage workers of only 6.65. Operatives in harness and saddle factories had a death rate of 30.55 and aviators one of 28.73. Rates for laborers in chemical and similar factories were only 5.18, while lawyers, judges, and justices had a rate of 7.89, physicians and surgeons 10.69, clergymen 10.33, and college presidents and professors, 2.69.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lauchner of Cantrall, Ill., celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary today with a family reunion at Cantrall. The occasion also marked the third wedding anniversary of their grandson and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Aden Lauchner Jr. of Springfield, and the fifty-eighth birthday anniversary of their son, Melvin.

REPORT TO BAR GROUP ATTACKS U. S. CODE MAZE

Blow to Federal Courts Is Feared.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Charging the "judicial branch of the federal government is being rapidly and seriously undermined," a report of the committee on administrative law today indicated leading governmental, as well as legal questions will be closely scrutinized at this week's annual convention of the American Bar association.

The report, made public in advance of its submission to the convention, critized NRA, AAA, and others of the alphabetical administrative agencies functioning within the federal government as tending to remove large fields of legal controversy from jurisdiction of the courts.

Opposes Delegated Power.

These agencies were defined as those to which congress has delegated judicial or legislative powers and included various agencies created by presidential order.

Advantages of such agencies also were recognized in the report, especially the employment of experts supervising subject matter requiring specialized experience and training.

The principal one, the report set forth, was in the exercise of legislative functions, including formation of rules and regulations by the bodies of experts, rather than in their judicial functions.

Favors Special Court.

Advising that the judicial functions of these agencies be divorced from the legislative or executive and placed in a federal administrative court, with an appellate division or independent tribunals modeled after the board of tax appeals, the report said, "It is not going too far to state that the judicial branch of the federal government is being rapidly and seriously undermined."

Apprehension was expressed that agencies now combining all three functions "are obliterating essential lines of our government structure . . . and substituting a labyrinth in which the rights of individuals, while preserved in form, can easily be nullified in practice."

Citizen Can't Understand.

Pointing out that under title I of the NIRA alone 13 agencies and four corporations have already been created by executive order, the report said lawyers even in close contact with these agencies in Washington are handicapped and concluded "it becomes hopeless for the average citizen to attempt to understand his government."

The report recommended abolition of so-called independent commissions and transfer of their legislative and executive functions to one of the 10 executive departments of the government. It recommended no new independent commissions be created.

23,000 STORES BACK U. S. DRIVE AGAINST DROUTH PROFITEERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Coöperation of 23,000 stores was pledged to President Roosevelt today in his efforts to prevent food profiteering in the wake of the drouth.

In a telegram to President Roosevelt, F. H. Massman of Chicago, president of the Association of Food and Grocery Chain Stores of America, said:

"It gives me pleasure to compliment you and your administration in its endeavor to protect the consumer against unwaranted price advances.

"The members of our association individually will coöperate and continue to give to the consuming public the benefit of economical mass distribution."

INDIANA LEGION IN TIGHT RACE FOR COMMANDER

Lines were tightening in the race for state commander of the American Legion, Indiana department, which is holding its 16th annual convention at Gary.

Campaign managers for Frank Kossa, a business man of Jeffersonville, Ind., are claiming almost half the 564 votes to be cast in the first ballot of the election meeting tomorrow. Friends of Judge Cleon Mount of Tipton, Democratic party leader and regarded in Legion political circles as having the backing of Gov. Paul V. McNutt, are claiming 130 votes, while 125 votes are claimed for Samuel Cleland, Fort Wayne. Others in the race are Bruce Peters of Evansville, Robert Moore, Gary, and George Huish, East Chicago.

Heads Forty and Eight.

Mr. Huish's position as a candidate was in question, however, because of his election yesterday as grand chef de gare of the Forty and Eight at the organization's annual meeting. Huish defeated Charles Spurling of Richmond and succeeds L. E. Clift of Terre Haute.

Other events on yesterday's program included a breakfast of the American Legion committee on child welfare, a business session of the Legion at 11 a. m., and the high point of the day, an annual drum and bugle corps contest in which approximately 45 units competed, 30 of them composed of Legionnaires and the balance women's and girls' corps. La Porte post won first place with New Albany second in the men's contest, and Indianapolis won with Evansville second in the women's events.

The annual reunion of about 150 members of the 23d regiment of engineers, a wartime unit, also got under way at the regiment's convention headquarters, the 113th Engineers' armory.

Big Parade Today.

Today Gary will see the annual parade down Broadway for 15 blocks, headed by Gov. McNutt, former national commander of the Legion, who is expected in from his summer cottage in Indiana Dunes State park this morning. The governor will be one of the speakers at the commander's banquet in the Hotel Gary tonight. Other addresses will be given by Rev. Father Robert J. White of Boston, national chaplain of the Legion, and Edgar W. Carruth, national vice commander of Herington, Kas. William P. Gleason, general superintendent of the Gary works, Illinois Steel company, will be toastmaster.

Following adjournment after the election session tomorrow, the Hoosier Legionnaires will come to the World's Fair in Chicago and parade down the avenue of flags in the afternoon.

DISAGREE OVER COOKING MERITS OF 100 YEARS AGO

Newark, N. J., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Investigators for the forthcoming modern kitchen congress, to be held here Sept. 10, 11, and 12, have queried centenarians as far west as Missouri on the question of 1834 versus 1934 cooking and, they made known today, the old timers are as divided on the matter as any one else.

The oldest person questioned, "Uncle" Wilson Butler, 122 year old ex-slave, of Nashville, Ga., voted for up-to-date kitchen methods, while Mrs. Jane Thorne, 107, of Dover, N. J., insisted on the matchless quality of food prepared on the coals fire of the 1840s. Between their extreme views ranged a series of diverse opinions.

"Uncle" Wilson's answer, written for him by Col. M. S. Potter, on whose estate he is living in retiremdnt, indicated an appreciation of the delicacies of the good-old-days era, but an awareness of the value of "electric stoves with boilers and baking compartments, all kinds of pots, pans, and casseroles."

REFLECTOR BILL BOARDS DECRIED AS ROAD HAZARD

Motor Club Chief Cites Need of Legislation.

BY HAL FOUST.

Commercial billboards on rural highways, long a nuisance and often a hazard to daytime travel, are now becoming a menace to night driving. In the last year busy thoroughfares have become spotted with placards bearing reflectors that catch the beams of passing automobile headlights.

For the last two years state highway officials have been progressing in a program to equip the important trafic signs with reflector buttons. On the main arterials, the markers advising "stop," "danger," or "railroad" now have this indirect illumination.

But paralleling this advancement for safety was a development in the billboard industry inconsistent with safety. Advertising signs have been adopted which make use of reflector buttons or small mirrors to attract the eyes of motorists at night, incidentally distracting those eyes from their main job of watching the road.

On Private Property.

"This distraction is more than a nuisance," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. "A driver at night needs all his faculties on the alert to the task of handling his car. There should be a law against these commercial signs near the roadway."

The rules of the Illinois highway department prohibit any advertising on the right of way but do not cover objectionable billboards off public property. The regulation is fairly well obeyed in rural areas. In municipalities there has been no more than a pretense of enforcement.

There is no Illinois statute authorizing regulation of billboards off the right of way. So, for a remuneration that is little more than a tip, the farmer without pride in the appearance of his property will permit a sign to be erected near the fence line of a highway.

Courts Recognize Situation.

In the daytime almost all these billboards are a blot upon the scenery of the countryside, depriving motorists of a full return upon their investment in pavement for recreational as well as business travel.

Some of the signs also are a hazard in that they obstruct the view or tend to distract drivers' attention at curves, intersections or railroad crossings. Such locations are favored sites for outdoor advertising in that trafic is slackened there.

The trend in Supreme court decisions in other states has been to recognize that the public's rights are involved even when a billboard is on private property. The courts are beginning to acknowledge that such private property has no value as a billboard site except that value created by the public's investment in a nearby highway. With this reasoning, the regulation or prohibition of billboards on a piece of private property can not be construed as a violation of the constitutional protection against confiscation without adequate compensation.

Lawyers point out that it is only with such a viewpoint on the outdoor advertising industry that the state will be able to cope with the old billboard problem and with this new menace of the reflector signs.

MOSQUE OF SAINT SOPHIA SHAKEN BY FALLING WALL

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The world famed mosque of St. Sophia was badly shaken and nearly collapsed today as a result of wrecking operations at the adjoining law courts, where a disastrous fire occurred earlier this year.

The supporting columns of two high walls which workmen were tearing down suddenly gave way and a great mass of stone toppled toward the mosque. Heavy iron water pipes traversing the walls broke the force of the fall, but the beautiful mosque was shaken to its foundations. Inspectors are making a check to determine whether it was seriously damaged.

The mosque of St. Sophia, the glory of Byzantine art, is regarded as one of the most beautiful structures in the world. It was built by Justinian the Great, ruler of the eastern Roman empire, and dedicated in 538 A. D. The original dome was destroyed in an earthquake in 558. A new one was erected 25 feet higher than the old. After the Turkish conquest the place was converted into a mosque and a minaret erected at each of the four exterior angles of the building. The dome, which had fallen into a bad state of disrepair, was reinforced in 1927.

BODIES OF TWO FLYERS FOUND IN LAKE WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The bodies of George Mackie and Len Blackwell, flyers of the Northwest Aero Marine service missing for the last 10 days, were found today. Their plane apparently dived into Lake Winnipeg during a storm.

They disappeared while on a search for two others in the service of the Northwest Aero Marine—Charles Carr and E. L. Smith. Both Carr and Smith were found. Their plane had been forced down.

Bill May, another pilot of the Northwest Aero Marine, and Wilfred Fairs, his mechanic, and three others from Pine Falls, Man., were lost for four days in a launch as they participated in the search for Mackie and Blackwell. These five were found late Saturday.

Burn Coal this winter and Save $50 to $200 for the things you want!

● It isn't hard to have the things you want . . . just a few dollars will make all the difference between having and not having! And if you burn coal or coke this winter you can be sure of at least $50 to $200 in actual savings over the cost of gas or oil.

Think what that means in extra money for spending . . . on a new fur coat or other clothing . . . as a payment on insurance . . . on any number of things that you thought you couldn't afford but which coal or coke heat permits you to buy! A bin full of solid fuel is the first step to savings that will buy that fur coat or other things you need.

Before you permit yourself to be talked into a costly "experiment" with other fuels, take heed of the experience of hundreds of other home owners who have "tried" these fuels to their loss. You know that you can buy coal or coke on the open market at reasonable prices.

Buy your coal or coke from any member of this Association where you will be sure of honest weight, careful grading and uniform quality.

I Had Gas Heat Installed And We Spent A Miserable Winter

Last September I had gas heat installed and we spent a miserable winter. We cut off all rooms except parlor, dining room and kitchen, and most of the time we had to wear sweaters to keep warm. Gas heat is too expensive. With coal heat our house and basement are always warm and comfortable. Gas heat last winter cost me over $150.00 for heat alone and coal or coke cost me $90.00 or less. Coal Heat is safe and dependable and I had just as much cleaning of walls and curtains with gas heater as I did with coal or coke heat.

O'DUFFY PARTY FAILS TO BREAK DE VALERA'S GRIP

Landless Men Give Votes to President.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Aug. 26.—"No one can beat President Eamon De Valera but De Valera himself." This was the reply I received from one of the cleverest politicians in Ireland, who incidentally is not a follower of De Valera, to my question about the present political conditions in Ireland.

A few months ago the rise of the Blue Shirts, headed by Gen. Owen O'Duffy, former chief of police, and his fusion with ex-President William T. Cosgrave's Cumann na n'Gaedheal party and the Farmers' party, led by Frank MacDermott and Seumas Dillon, seemed to promise the revival of a strong opposition to De Valera's Fianna Fail and the Labor party, which form the present government.

Much hope was based on the recent local and municipal elections, but they were disappointing to the Fine Gael party, as the new organization was called. These local and municipal contests were fought on party lines and while the franchise was not quite the same as in the national elections they gave interesting and significant results. These were briefly that De Valera was gaining in the towns, among the poorer farmers and the landless men in the country, while the business men and the larger farmers were rallying again to Cosgrave's leadership.

Taxes Go Higher.

It was the desertion of the business men that defeated Cosgrave in 1930 and elected De Valera at the last general election in 1932. They wanted more protection and lower taxation. De Valera promised both. He has given them higher taxation by thirty-five or forty million dollars a year and his protection, they claim, has been a delusion and has done them more harm than good. He clapped on high enough duties to exclude foreign goods, but he did nothing to keep out foreign capital and the result is that while Irish labor has benefited from the gain in employment Irish manufacturers and traders find themselves faced with ruin from the increased competition by branches of English firms established in Ireland.

What makes it even worse is that these English firms are not even working with their own money, but with capital subscribed by the Irish public who prefer to invest their money in concerns backed by the great English parent companies to risking it in new Irish industries.

A few sample cases will show how this process works. A couple of years ago Ranks, the big English flour millers, bought a mill in Limerick for $1,125,000. They spent about $100,000 reconditioning it. Their profits for the first two years were $1,100,000 a year.

Float Loan in Ireland.

On the basis of this business they floated to Irish investors securities to the value of $3,500,000, of which half was in 6 per cent preference shares sold to the public at $5.75 for each $5 share. They also issued $7,000,000 in $1.25 ordinary shares common stock, of which 175,000 were sold to the Irish public at $3.75 a share, or three times their nominal value. Ranks retained 1,225,000 ordinary shares which gave them control of the company.

The net result is that the Irish public paid $2,625,000 on which they receive $150,000 a year in dividends, while Ranks get $950,000 profits on no investment at all and the competing Irish mills are driven out of business.

Another case was that of Rowntrees, the great English cocoa and chocolate manufacturers. They floated an Irish company with a nominal capital of $500, of which 51 per cent was held by an Irish national in their employ. This was refloated to the public under a new name and there was an issue of $625,000 5 per cent debentures which were eagerly snapped up by Irish investors.

Irish Furnish the Money.

The certified profits were $120,000 a year, of which the Irish public, which furnished all the money, takes $32,000 and Rowntrees $400,000. Moreover the Irish company pays no income tax except on its $500 capital, so that the Irish business man who is being driven out of business has the satisfaction of paying for it out of taxation as well.

Instances like this could be multiplied a hundred times with slight variations. In addition Ireland is now flooded with English owned chain stores, branches of English chains, which also pay no taxes because they make no profits. They reason they make no profits is because they buy their goods from the parent company in England at any price which it chooses to fix.

The man who is most blamed for their state of affairs is Sean Lemass, De Valera's minister of commerce, who is said to favor the investment of foreign capital and the encouragement of foreign enterprise in Ireland. I heard him referred to the other night in a gathering of Dublin business men as "MacMurrough Lemass." Dermott MacMurrough was the Irish king who invited the Normans to come to Ireland and thus started the English conquest.

Slave to England.

The man who used this opprobrious term explained that although Ireland had won her political freedom she was fast becoming more of a slave to England than ever through this economic penetration which is encouraged by the government.

These business men who would like to beat De Valera, might help to finance the reorganization of the opposition, but so far De Valera has the votes. Lavish grants to the unemployed, plenty of public work, beef and mutton bought from the small farmers at a good price and sold to the poor at 4 cents a pound, free milk for slum babies, and free shoes for school children are things that make votes and they are all part of the present government's policy.

So far Ireland has paid but there are mutterings of discontent among the farmers who can't sell their cattle on account of the economic war with England and who can't pay their local taxes because they can't sell their cattle.

Resist Seizure.

They are resisting seizure of their cattle for taxes by force and they may punish it by votes, but they will not have a chance for at least two years unless De Valera quarrels with the Labor party on which he depends for his majority. He is not likely to do that nor is the Labor party which is getting nearly all it would do if it were in power itself likely to quarrel with him.

Of course, he may see the danger in time and change his policy and if he decides to do so no one in his party will oppose him. His control of Fianna Fail is almost as complete as Mussolini's control of the Fascist party in Italy, and he is still a romantic and popular figure in the country. He has nearly three years to go before he must have a general election and a lot may happen in that time.

WORLD'S FAIR NOTES

WORLD'S FAIR beauty queens who are completing a 5,000 mile tour of eleven neighboring states will be met at the city limits today by a motorcycle police escort and will proceed directly to the city hall where Mayor Kelly will greet them. They will be given a reception at the 14th street gate in the Court of Honor at the Fair at 11:45 a. m. by Fair officials, and will then visit successively the Firestone exhibit, Studebaker exhibit, and the Wilson exhibit. The queens are Patricia Marquam of the Fair staff, Kay Griffiths of the Firestone exhibit, and Dorothy Le Fold of the Wilson and company exhibit. On their tour they invited governors and mayors of the states and cities which they visited to attend the Fair.

The Modern Mermaids, the girl swimmers who disport daily in the All-Star Circus performances at the Lagoon Theater, will engage in a soft ball baseball game Friday morning in Grant park.

The first tour of 50 people, sponsored by the Witness, official organ of the Archdiocese of Dubuque, will arrive at the Fair Saturday over the Illinois Central railroad. Another tour will reach Chicago on Sept. 15.

United States Senator Nye will speak at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the celebration of the Kellogg peace pact in the Illinois Host House, sponsored by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

An interesting exhibit in future World's Fairs probably will be the hand written copy of the Bible done by visitors to the 1934 Fair. More than 12,000 visitors to the Hall of Religion have inscribed verses in the proper sequence on durable sheets of paper. The pages will be bound after the complete works have been copied, and it will be presented by the Chicago Bible Society.

The New York Central lines yesterday broke all Sunday records for 1934 when five regular trains and twelve sections, together with special excursion trains, brought in more than 5,000 visitors to the Fair. The Exposition Flyer on the Michigan Central brought 814 passengers in four sections.

A Turkish program featured by a talk on the present status of Turkish women by Mme. Fatma Amed Kravich of Stamboul and violin music by Arif Kravich will be presented at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Illinois Host House.

Peoria day will be celebrated at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Illinois Host House with a program of German folk songs by thirty girls and boys in costume. The program will be repeated at 7 p. m. in Old Heidelberg Inn.

IRISH PAGEANT IS REHERSED; 1,000 IN CHORUS

Show Tomorrow Depicts History of Country.

Soldiers' field was steeped in the mysticism of Irish legend last night at the first full dress rehersal of "The Pageant of the Celt," which will be presented there tomorrow and Wednesday nights.

"The Pageant of the Celt" will not be confined to a stage, but will be enacted from one end of the field to the other, with episodes being portrayed in several places at one time.

Depicts Irish History.

Starting with the beginning of the Gaelic dynasty when the Milesians, led by Queen Scota of the raven locks, vanquished King Lir and the people of the clan of Dana, the pageant depicts the history of Ireland down to Easter week of 1916, which brought the most decisive uprising the Irish people have ever engaged in during their long struggle for independence.

One of the scenes is the arrival of the red bearded St. Patrick, glimpsed from a distance as he lights the paschal fire upon the Hill of Shane in observance of Easter, while at the same time the high king of Ireland watches the ritualistic fires of the druid feasts. The scene, lending itself well to the vast stretches of Soldiers' field, is fraught with drama.

The music, coming from a massed chorus of 1,000 voices, is under the direction of Benedict Fitzgerald of Cambridge, Mass., an authority on Irish music. Solo parts are sung by Denis Cox, sweet voiced singer of Irish folk music.

Irish Artist Directs.

The script was read last night by Micheal MacLammoir, who delayed his return to the Gate theater, Dublin, that he might serve as narrator at this pageant.

Throughout the planning of the production it has been stressed that "The Pageant of the Celt," although of Irish origin, is not primarily Irish, but Pan-Celtic. In view of this the music, dances, and costumes of the five Celtic groups—the Irish, the Scotch, the Welsh, Manx, and Bretons—are being featured.

Through arrangements with A Century of Progress officials a special admission price of 15 cents has been made for the Fair between the hours of 10:30 and midnight on the nights of the pageant.

In the interest of CHICAGO'S GOOD NAME

A FRANK STATEMENT TO THE PEOPLE OF CHICAGO BY A NON-PARTISAN COMMITTEE OF BUSINESS MEN INTERESTED IN THE GOOD NAME AND WELFARE OF CHICAGO

RECENTLY there appeared in the Chicago Herald and Examiner criticism aimed at Mayor Kelly on account of alleged improper handling of the sale of public securities.

The newspaper story, and the inferences that might be drawn therefrom, are such as to harm the public credit and the good name of Chicago.

If there has been public mismanagement resulting in losses to taxpayers, charges relating thereto should be promptly and thoroughly investigated, and the true facts made known. If, on the other hand, such charges are unfounded, likewise this should be made known, in the interest of the good name of the City of Chicago and the maintenance of its credit.

We Investigated

With these thoughts in mind, we have investigated the facts and circumstances surrounding these financial transactions. We called upon Mayor Kelly and City Comptroller Upham, also officers of four of Chicago's leading banks, for the purpose of securing the facts relating to the sale of the securities.

These are the true facts:

On May 17, 1934, the City sold, having complete legal right to do so, $7,000,000 of bonds at 101, plus accrued interest, and $3,000,000 of water works certificates at 101¼, plus accrued interest. This gave the City $107,500 in excess of the par value of the securities. The proceeds enabled the City partially to pay long overdue salaries to City employes.

City Council Resolution

On May 18, 1934, the City Council, with every Alderman present, unanimously passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, In 1932 the City of Chicago was indebted to the extent of millions of dollars and its employes had not been paid for upwards of ten months; and

"Whereas, It has come to the attention of the City Council of the City of Chicago, that through the efforts of His Honor, Edward J. Kelly, Mayor of the City of Chicago, ten million ($10,000,000.00) dollars of securities of the City of Chicago have been sold; and

"Whereas, the sale made by His Honor, the Mayor, the City Comptroller and Chairman of the Finance Committee, John S. Clark, direct to private individuals, A. C. Allyn & Company of No. 100 W. Monroe Street, is the first accomplishment of this nature for many years; and

"Whereas, The said sale brought to the City of Chicago for its securities an amount over par, the premium amounting to $107,500.00; now therefore

"Be It Resolved, That the City Council of the City of Chicago in meeting assembled hereby compliment and openly praise the Mayor for his efforts in negotiating this transaction in not only bringing to the City of Chicago a large sum of money for the meeting and defraying of its corporate expense, but also in proving to the world the SPIRIT OF CHICAGO and the CREDIT of the City are still above par."

IN RECENT months, municipal securities have been advancing in price, especially Chicago securities, due in large measure to the fact that the City is getting its house in order financially; that it is living within its income; and that tax payments have improved.

Upon consideration of the facts and records in the transaction, we believe the resolution of the City Council on May 18, 1934, was a sound expression of opinion at that time. It is also our conclusion that Mayor Kelly and those charged with the duty of financing the City were entitled to the commendation bestowed upon them by the City Council, and that they made a business transaction which was sound, and which at the time appeared to be wise and advantageous from every standpoint.

MR. ROOSEVELT AND THE LIBERTY LEAGUE.

The President's comments on the newly organized American Liberty league were remarkable as a revelation of his mental processes. Mr. Roosevelt is not unique among men in public life in his dislike of opposition, but he must be nearly unique in his distrust of its motives. In his view, those who disagree with him can do so only out of the baseness of their hearts. He will concede nothing of intelligence or good will to those who raise doubts about his program.

A leader in the organization of the Liberty league is Al Smith. Not even to him, to whom he owes more than to any other living man, will Mr. Roosevelt concede disinterested motives. All that Mr. Smith did for Mr. Roosevelt was to give him his political start, make him governor, push him into national prominence as a vice presidential candidate and, when Mr. Roosevelt finally achieved the presidential nomination, take the stump for him in hotly contested New England. Al Smith gave Mr. Roosevelt his most popular campaign appeal—the prohibition issue. Al Smith virtually wrote Mr. Roosevelt's platform for him. Having repudiated the platform, Mr. Roosevelt now turns on Smith with ill-concealed anger at being reminded of the broken pledges.

Irenèe du Pont is a Republican who voted for Mr. Roosevelt and won hundreds of thousands of other Republican votes for him as a wet. The President's magnanimity does not extend to the point of conceding that Mr. du Pont may now be animated by decent motives.

John W. Davis was an ornament of the bar and a distinguished Democratic statesman before Mr. Roosevelt was known outside his family circle. Mr. Roosevelt will concede him nothing by way of honorable intentions.

Nathan Miller has long been a political opponent of Mr. Roosevelt, and so has James Wadsworth, but in the long years of opposition neither of these gentlemen has ever hit below the belt. All that Mr. Miller did for Mr. Roosevelt was to leave him a solvent state treasury and the precedent of a balanced budget. Mr. Roosevelt did not do as much for his successor, which may account for his distrust of Mr. Miller but can hardly explain his attitude toward Mr. Wadsworth.

The bona fides of all of these gentlemen Mr. Roosevelt publicly questions with what is slowly coming to be recognized as his characteristic cynicism regarding any opponent's motives. The words uttered at the President's press conferences are not quoted, but the tenor of the President's outburst is plain. The American Liberty league is, in his opinion, headed by selfish, self-centered hypocrites who prate of the public good but at heart are determined to condemn the common man to a life of misery and suffering.

Mr. Roosevelt quoted with evident approval the statement of an unnamed friend who said that the leaders of the Liberty league instead of "loving God and loving their neighbors prefer to love God but forget their neighbors." He can only mean that Al Smith is a hypocrite but Farley is a whole-souled lover of mankind; du Pont has a rich man's selfish bias in contrast to that modern St. Francis, Mr. Vincent Astor, who gives all his substance to the poor; Davis is a dry-as-dust legalist but Nebraska's Mullen is a warm-blooded humanist; Wadsworth and Miller are merely professional oppositionists and as such not worthy of respect. In short, all the organizers of the league, he holds, are not so much misguided as evil-intentioned. Their baseness of motive stands in contrast to the nobility of character which suffuses all of the New Dealers with its mellow light.

Mr. Roosevelt has much of the self-righteousness which the world has come to associate with the current crop of dictators abroad. He has disclosed his attitude toward opposition before, notably in his fight against the free press reservation, but never more clearly.

NEW ATTENDANCE RECORDS AT THE FAIR.

New attendance records are being set these days at A Century of Progress. Pundits are busily seeking the explanation by reference to business indices and what not, but are wasting their time. The explanation is obvious and simple. People are coming to the Fair in steadily increasing numbers for the sufficient reason that it is the best show for the money anywhere. Those who have seen it have told their friends and now the friends are coming.

There is more education and more entertainment at A Century of Progress this year even than a year ago. There is more to see and more to do. The Fair is handsomer, particularly at night. The villages are more numerous and brighter. There are two superb symphony orchestras. The restaurants are vastly improved.

CHICAGO'S CRIME.

Every one is familiar with Chicago's reputation as a center of crime, a reputation which is fortunately diminishing. Natives of other parts of the country gleefully recount lurid tales dealing with the city's reputation. An example is the story of the lady who refused to go by train from New York to California because she had to pass through Chicago. Another is about the southern gasoline station attendant who curiously examined an Illinois car while filling its tank.

"I see you're not from Chicago," he observed.

"Why?" asked the driver.

"No bullet holes in your car."

Actually, Chicagoans can hold up their heads in any American company. The one black mark on Chicago, according to figures issued by the United States department of justice, is not murder, as one would suppose from reputation, but robbery. The city ranks first in robbery. Chicago's record in comparison with other cities for the first half of 1934 is: Murder, 24th position; manslaughter, 39th position; aggravated assault, 25th position; burglary, 18th position, and auto theft, 37th position.

It can be easily seen from the above that Chicago's average for all types of crime is distinctly better than the average of other large cities. America's various crime centers are really in unexpected places. Robbery in New York occurs at a rate of 9.2 cases per 100,000 persons in a six month period, while the incidence in Arizona is 139.2. New Mexico leads all the states in auto thefts, while Oregon suffers most from burglary. The true facts about crime are gradually becoming known and Chicago's unsavory reputation is becoming sweeter. As evidence of this there are the millions of visitors to the World's Fair.

SMOLDERING WAR.

Although the Chinese Eastern railway continues and will continue to be a source of dangerous complication in the relations of Russia and Japan, it seems apparent that the soviet government does not intend to let the situation reach a critical issue at this stage if it can help it. It has protested to Manchukuo the arrest of 88 Russians and demanded their release, and followed this up with representations at Tokio. But the latter were couched in studiously temperate language and leave open the way to reasonable adjustment if the Japanese government wishes it.

The reason for Moscow's moderation seems plain if what information we have of Russian internal conditions is reliable. A war with Japan would not be well received by the Russian people and even the serious prospect of one might offer the opportunity eagerly awaited by the opponents of Stalin and his group to overthrow his régime. This would not mean the abolition of communism in Russia. On the contrary, it would substitute for Stalin and his allies a group of communist bosses more fanatically doctrinaire than they. The Red dictatorship has been too thorough in its purging of dissent to have left any number of opponents of communism sufficient to take or hold power. If Stalin were turned out it would be by men who resent what in his policy they consider unnecessary and even traitorous concessions to expediency. The result of such a change would be more suffering for the Russian people and probably serious complications in the foreign relations of the soviet. Stalin has shown a realism with which Trotzky, the probable head of a new régime, is not troubled, and it is more than likely that Trotzky or any other probable successor of Stalin would conduct soviet affairs on lines that would make Russia a more mischievous factor in European and indeed in world affairs than she has been of late.

We must hope, therefore, that the Japanese government will not force Stalin's hand. The hope is not as strong as we could wish it. The recent course of Japanese policy has seemed to indicate that the ruling powers in Japan believe that present conditions in the far east and in the world generally justify a masterful policy of expansion, and such a policy must sooner or later bring Japan and Russia into serious collision. We do not think Japanese ambition stops with Manchuria and Jehol. It must take into account the importance of Inner Mongolia, which lies on the flank of the Russian position in Outer Mongolia and Siberia, and would be of great importance strategically in any conflict between Japan and Russia. For the same reason Moscow cannot view the growth of Japanese influence in Inner Mongolia and northern China with complaisancy. The makings of a war in this region are obvious and it will come as soon as either party thinks it is the time to strike. But that time may be at some distance.

Editorial of the Day

"THE SIMPLE FACT."

[New York Sun.]

One of "our pet economic delusions" which Malcolm P. McNair discusses in the Bulletin of the Harvard Business School Alumni association is the importance of consumer purchasing power. The fallacy of the theory is, says Mr. McNair, that business can be increased by giving more money to consumers to spend. He adds that "the New Dealers at the outset assumed that raising wages was all that was necessary to raise purchasing power, and have failed to perceive the simple fact that if prices of consumption goods and services rise more than do money wages, there is a decrease in purchasing power."

There would never have been anything new about the New Deal, however, if there had not been some attempt to follow theories that led away from common sense. The effort to raise consumer purchasing power has been a national experiment. Does Mr. McNair believe that the economists in Washington would be satisfied with "simple fact" reasoning? They wished to see what would happen if the government passed laws compelling industry to pay higher wages. They have discovered that wages were not the key to recovery. They turned to public works and housing. They will experiment with foreign trade treaties. The basic economic delusion is that a depression can be licked by passing laws to prove economic theories. Mr. McNair, writing of price raising measures of the NRA, says that "a wiser posterity will erect monuments to 'chiselers.'" But posterity may also fall victim to a brain trust.

Harvey: We were waiting for the bus when we saw the lady coming down the street. She may have been a "perfect 36" once, but she had amplified considerably in all parts since that time. SEVERAL READERS HAVE written asking why in this period of pinch hitting we did not write Monday morning "Market Letters" as in previous years. While our sagacious financial counsel was not always 100 per cent perfect, we think it averaged well compared with other commentators, especially if followers heeded our oft repeated admonition to "buy on the dips and sell on the rallies." We're sorry if we've disappointed, but we thought the New Dealers were opposed to speculation and we didn't want our yellow canary, whom we affectionately call "Dickey," taken away for alleged failure to comply with Washington mandate.

FRIED CHICKEN.

Harvey: When the McCutcheon family, including John T., were youngsters, their mother took a little orphan named Cecelia to bring up and gave her a home. Cecelia was taught the Three R's and cooking. Her greatest thrill was fried chicken according to Mother McCutcheon's recipe.

When my uncle, an exacting clergyman, went to Lafayette, Ind., on his last mission, Cecelia was recommended as an excellent housekeeper. My uncle was well past 50 and an epicurean. Cecelia remained with him about 34 years until his death. Her fried chicken always was the "piece de resistance" when visitors were entertained at the old rectory. Ann Shannon Ely.

MULTIPLE BIRTHS.

BECAUSE of the widespread interest in the question of multiple births, no doubt aroused by the quintuplets born a short time ago to a Canadian mother, numerous letters have been received asking about the frequency of twins, triplets, quadruplets, etc.

During recent years, since more attention has been paid to vital statistics, fairly accurate records show that in the United States twins occurred approximately once in 87 confinements, triplets once in 8,745, and quadruplets once in every 552,000. Between the years of 1923 and 1932 no birth of quintuplets is recorded.

W. W. Greulich collected data on more than 121,000,000 births occurring in twenty-one countries. In this long series there were 1,408,912 twin births, 15,738 triplets, and 179 quadruplets. Greulich established a mathematical factor based upon his collected data. He used the figure eighty-seven inasmuch as twin births occurred once in eighty-seven confinements. He reasoned that triplets would occur once in 7,569 confinements [the square of eighty-seven] and that quadruplets would occur once in 658,503 [the cube of eighty-seven]. Carrying the figure to the fourth power would result in quintuplets once in 57,289,761 confinements.

These theoretical figures parallel rather closely the birth record noted above. In Germany, between the years 1922 and 1929, there was one pair of twins in every eighty-four births, one set of triplets in 8,586 births, and quadruplets once in 679,446 births. In Switzerland, between 1926 and 1932, twins occurred once in eighty births, triplets once in 7,038 births, and quadruplets once in 492,629 births. In Canada, between 1923 and 1931, twins occurred once in eighty-two births, triplets once in 7,748 births, and quadruplets once in a million births.

The tendency to multiple births is apparently peculiar to certain mothers who may have more than one set of twins and perhaps triplets in addition. Heredity plays an important rôle and can follow either the father or the mother. Frederick C. Irving cites a case in which a man was the father, by his first wife, of quadruplets once and twins ten times. His second wife had triplets three times and twins ten times.

There are two kinds of twins. Two maternal ova or eggs may be fertilized about the same time. Children born of this two-egg fertilization, although they develop together, may be no more alike than two children born a dozen years apart to the same parents. They may be the same or of opposite sex.

Single ovum twins occur about once in every five cases of twins and are closely alike. In fact, they are called identical twins. They are developed from a single fertilized egg which divides into two distinct parts, each part developing into a normal child. Single ovum twins are always of the same sex. The identity extends to finger prints and sole prints, although minute differences may be detected on careful examination. As near as the laws of biology will permit one individual is the duplicate of the other.

Triplets are usually a pair of identical twins, plus a single ovum child. This means that two eggs were fertilized, one of which separated early into two parts. Quadruplets are usually two pairs of identical twins or one pair of identical twins and two individual. Quintuplets are generally two pairs of identical twins and an individual.

If we may assume that Greulich's theory is tenable our neighbor to the north reigns as maternal queen over more than fifty million subjects.

HAY FEVER.

A. B. D. writes: What can communities do to get rid of many of the plants causing hay fever? Can any public measures be taken to relieve hay fever sufferers?

REPLY.

Public action can be taken, and in many places has been taken. Ragweed is now at the height of pollen production. We could greatly reduce suffering from hay fever by mowing the weeds in vacant lots and in alleys, along roadways, etc.

There are literally hundreds of acres of ragweed now growing in open lots in metropolitan areas. If this weed were cut generally 50 per cent of our hay fever victims would be relieved.

ADHESIONS.

E. A. D. writes: I had a few operations and now I am told I have pelvic adhesions. What are adhesions? What is the cause? Is there a cure?

REPLY.

Adhesions are caused by the thin membrane, known as the peritoneum, fastening itself to other portions of the peritoneum. Whenever the peritoneum becomes inflamed the surfaces that come into contact heal together. In normal health the peritoneal surfaces glide over one another with ease and without irritation. Because of inflammation the peritoneum covering a loop of bowel may adhere to the peritoneum covering the uterus; or the peritoneum covering the bowel may adhere to the peritoneum along the abdominal wall. In this situation the intestines are not free in the abdominal cavity.

CALLUSES.

W. K. writes: My job requires much walking, and as a result I have calluses all over my feet. I have tried bathing them in bicarbonate of soda but this has not helped.

REPLY.

You may have weakness of the arches of the feet. Fallen arches or poorly fitting shoes will bring about unequal pressure and calluses result. Baths will not help even though you use a ton of soda. Correct the mechanical defect.

LIEN.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A has two pieces of property and sold one to B on contract. B paid on it four years and then gave it up to A. During this time C put a lien on both places while one was being held and paid by B. Could that lien be stricken off as being illegal? J. W.

Depends on the facts on which the lien was based. If his claim was only against A it would not be a valid basis for a lien against B and the proper course would be for B to notify him to bring proceedings to foreclose his lien.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PRESENT DAY MODES.

Savanna, Ill., Aug. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Does the law permit women to dress in men's clothes and men to dress in women's clothes on the street or even in the house, or is it just a fad with them? I see so much about this in the papers. Please advise me regarding it. E. J. E.

Section 4221 of the Chicago city code forbids appearing in public "in a dress not belonging to his or her sex." Apparently it is as much a dead letter as section 4231, which fixes as minimum requirements for women's bathing suits: "Women's blouse and bloomer suits may be worn with or without skirt, and with or without stockings, provided the blouse has one-quarter arm sleeve or close fitting armholes and the bloomers are of a pattern that is full and not shorter than 4 inches above the knee [top of patella]; women's jersey knit suits may also be worn, with or without stockings, provided the suit has skirt or skirt effect with one-quarter arm sleeves or close-fitting armholes, trunks not shorter than 4 inches above the knee [top of patella] and the bottom of the skirt is not shorter than 2 inches above the bottom of the trunks."

CONDEMNATION STARTED.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—There is an eight family building on our street that should be torn down as it is a menace to the neighborhood and dangerous for the children. There are four families still living in the place, and half the building is already partly taken apart by boys. Will you refer this to the proper department for action?

A. T.

This department is instituting condemnation proceedings and expects to have these buildings taken down in a very short time.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Work is to begin immediately on $50,000,000 worth of new building contracts just placed by town and rural councils throughout Britain. This will mean employment for 20,000 additional men in the building, furnishing, hardware, and auxiliary trades. Houses will take $35,000,000 of the $50,000,000, while more than $3,500,000 is set aside for the construction of factories and workshops—an indication that the general industrial revival is still proceeding. Contracts for warehouses, shops, and offices will require $2,500,000, and the same amount will go to schools, churches, and public buildings, among other building contracts.

Every part of the country is sharing in this building boom, though the increase is most pronounced in Yorkshire, Lancashire, in the west midlands, and in outer London. These figures are the highest on record, and when the totals for the last three months are included it means that there is now nearly $200,000,000 worth of building construction either being carried out or about to begin.

Scores of factories supplying building materials are sharing in the boom. Their employés are working at top speed and are receiving full wages, where a year ago some of them were out of work and others were working part time.

Among the big industrial concerns that are benefiting from the building revival are factories at Birmingham, and at Braintree and other Sussex centers, which are turning out scores of thousands of window frames a week. Brick companies are not only working their existing plants in Lincolnshire, Bedfordshire, Sussex, Berkshire, Yorkshire, and Essex at full speed but are opening up new clay pits and installing new machinery. Millions of bricks a day are now being turned out by the half dozen biggest brick companies in the country.

The pottery firms of Stoke-on-Trent are experiencing a big demand for glazed ware for bathrooms and kitchens. Big firms of wooden door manufacturers on the Thames and the slate quarries of North Wales are sharing in the activity. Not only the firms connected with the actual construction of houses but those concerned with the furnishing of them are also busy.

As far as the experts of the board of trade, the ministry of health and the minister of labor can see, this boom in building is going to last for a considerable time, and there is a long period of prosperity lying ahead for the industries concerned.

THE LIBERTY LEAGUE.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 23.—A new organization now appears on the horizon of our political whirlpool. It is christened the American Liberty league, whose energies are to be directed in behalf of thwarting the efforts of the so-called brain trust in adopting further radical measures of government. It is said the league is not to be anti-Roosevelt and not opposed to the President.

This smacks of folly or subterfuge. Who created the brain trust? So it is reasonable to believe that the organizers of the American Liberty league do not feel that President Roosevelt holds within his grasp the power to depose and dispense with the services of radical professors and others he has personally chosen to become a part of the New Deal?

Is it wrong to believe that the power of the President in this respect is greater than all leagues or associations formed for such a purpose? I am not opposed to all the measures adopted by the present administration. I am opposed to radicalism and the power is in the hands of the President to stamp it out, so why the need of such organizations as the American Liberty league if we rely upon the President of the United States to make use of the power at his right hand? If the league intends to make an effort to induce the President to use his power to suppress radicalism then its purpose is more clearly defined.

H. Z. G.

THE DECLARATION AMENDED.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—The Declaration of Independence should be amended to read as follows: "That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, providing the governed are fortunate enough to have a job." At least it should if the unemployed are weak enough to take that editorial, "An Electorate of Workers," lying down. Of course, it is only a logical step to your continuous series of sneers at those who cannot find work in an economic system which requires periodic and mounting unemployment as the price of its existence, and meets any threat to its life with Fascism and denial of democratic liberties.

CLARENCE SENIOR.

REQUEST FOR A STRAW VOTE.

Walworth, Wis., Aug. 22.—Will it be possible for you to conduct a straw vote on the base and surplus plan of selling milk throughout the dairy district of Chicago? This plan of selling milk is the biggest curse that ever was imposed on the dairy farmer. If we are to have a control plan it should be one that is fair to all. Surplus milk should not be allowed on the market. The place for surplus is on the farm.

REPAINTING THE ELEVATED.

River Forest, Ill., Aug. 22.—The elevated railway structure is not a thing of beauty nor is it expected to be; but it does seem to me that it would materially improve the appearance of the loop district and some of the other streets if the structure was painted in a light color instead of the black which is at present its color. JOHN FRASER.

CREDIT WHERE DUE.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Newspapers from coast to coast, from the Great Lakes to the gulf, are carrying columns on the big All-Star football game to take place at Soldiers' field on Aug. 31.

The same newspapers had a good many stories a few weeks ago on the all-star baseball game.

These contests have long been the dream of sports fans. The all-star baseball game was a decided hit, last year and this year, and it's a safe bet that the grid affair will go over just as big.

As a baseball and football fan, I want to pay tribute to Mr. Arch Ward, THE TRIBUNE's aggressive sports editor, who made these fine games possible. While other sporting people merely talked and dreamed about the matter, Mr. Ward substituted some forceful action, tact and ingenuity. The result was the finest scoop in sporting history.

I'm wondering what that fellow Ward is going to think of next?

STEPHEN TEDOR.

DILAPIDATED.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Were you at the Music Festival at Soldiers' field, and did you go through a tunnel to get to your seat? Well, 100,000 people did, most of them visitors to our city, and they, as also the citizens of Chicago, were horrified at the dilapidated, filthy, unsanitary condition of the entire first floor of this place of public assembly.

The tunnels actually had pools of water on the floor and were not lighted. The filthy ceilings had pieces of plaster hanging down, making the place positively dangerous.

On account of its appointment and size, Soldiers' field should be a credit to Chicago, but in its present condition it is a disgrace and a detriment to it.

A. N.

ALL WE LIKE SHEEP.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—No longer need we wonder how a Hitler can capture a great people like the Germans when we ourselves have tamely allowed our privileges as American citizens to be taken from us. I have a great and growing contempt for our American people. "All we like sheep" would be a good national motto. There is one thing good that is developing in the world's affairs, however. No dictator has yet been able to provide prosperity for his people. Even the greatest, Mussolini, is finding increasing taxes an unsurmountable obstacle. C. J. D.

THOSE WHO WILL PAY.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 21.—As appeals to logic or statesmanship are wasted on the brain trust at Washington, perhaps the following facts may appeal to the practical politicians in the cabinet.

There are, roughly, in force in the United States 33,000,000 life insurance policies for about $90,000,000,000. This says nothing of $7,000,000,000 fraternal insurance and an immense amount of annuities.

When the holders of those policies, 33 million voters, and their families wake up some morning, as they will, and realize what the financial policy of President Roosevelt means to them in the reduction of the value of their insurance there will be a liberal upheaval among those voters. MUSSOLINI FACES FINANCIAL AND ECONOMIC CRISES

Difficulties of Italian Dictator Revealed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Premier Mussolini's adventures along the Brenner Pass as the chief protector of Austrian independence have obscured for the moment the grave financial situation which is confronting Italy, according to revelations which are now being made. It is pointed out this central European foreign situation in which Il Duce is so deeply involved has been of considerable service to him, for it has detracted attention from his difficulties at home.

These difficulties largely arise out of three things. First, the mounting Italian public debt to which an annual budget deficit is being charged; second, the steady loss of gold bullion by the Bank of Italy which weakens the gold coverage of the lire, and third, the steady shrinkage in Italy's foreign trade.

Warships Add to Deficit.

These facts are also of interest in relation to Mussolini's recent reiteration of his decision to build two 35,000 ton battleships for the Italian navy. The building of these ships will add an enormous item to the Italian budget at a time when it is already heavily in the red.

For some strange reason, however, the press of England and France, the two countries with which Italy's finances are most closely connected, maintain a complete silence about the Italian financial situation.

Attention to this has just been called by a French weekly publication Aux Ecoutes de la Finance [The Financial Listening-Post].

This weekly review calls attention to the economic and financial difficulties of the Italian dictator and raises doubts as to whether he will be able to sustain the lira at its present level without assistance from abroad. The article points out that Italian diplomatic activity must be construed in terms of Mussolini's financial needs and adds:

"The potential of a country is determined by its capital, its economic possibilities, and its activity in trade. Let us take a rapid look at all these things as they concern Italy.

Italy and France Compared.

"The total Italian monetary circulation in round figures is about twelve billion and a half lire. Its gold reserves totals six billions and a half lire. All this for a population of 42,000,000 people which is just a little more than that of France, which has a monetary circulation of 80 billion francs and a metallic reserve of 78 billion francs. In other words, Italy has about from seven to twelve times less goods exchanging power than has France.

"On the other hand the public debt of Italy is 117 billion lire and to this figure must also be added the deferred payments for the great public works undertakings which are payable in thirty annuities and the total of which will reach about 15 billion lire.

"As for Italian foreign trade its total volume is now less than 12 billion lire and the Italian budget is now around 21 billion lire in expenditure against seventeen billion lire of receipts. It represents in payments to the state 60 per cent more than the total monetary circulation of the country.

"The budget deficit is, and has been, four billion lire annually in other words about 20 per cent of the budget expenditure. And the deficit is apparently an incurable condition, for Mussolini himself recognizes that taxes have reached the maximum point and that about all possible budget paring has been realized. The annual accumulated budget deficits from 1931 to today exceed twelve billion lire. In other words, the budget deficit for the last four years equals the entire monetary circulation of the country. Before this situation what is the government doing?

Salaries of Pay Rollers Cut.

"Inside Italy it has been seeking to reduce to the minimum the cost of all ordinary government services. The salaries of civil service employés have been reduced three times for a total of 25 per cent. The last cut was applied for an amount of 6 per cent even to salaries of 500 lire.

"A desperate effort is being made to deflate prices. Shopkeepers and business men are being compelled to slice their prices through the intervention of the Fascist organization, sometimes with somewhat forcible methods.

"But castor oil and clubs have not so far been successful in actually lowering the cost of living. Railway transport prices still remain at the 1925 level—in other words, at such a point that to get passengers the Italian railroads offer enormous and permanent reductions. The general policy of the régime at the same time calls for the carrying out of enormous public works which have put a charge of 80 billion lire, including interest, on the budget, payable in thirty years.

"This policy of prestige in foreign affairs imposes heavy sacrifices also. It has just been announced that two new battleships of 35,000 tons will be laid down. Doubtless this decision to build ships of this type is for the purpose of impressing next year's naval conference. If the bluff doesn't work and Mussolini actually proceeds to build them it will be at the cost of digging another hole in his budget.

Points to Trade Decline.

"The policy being pursued for the increase of national production is also creating new problems. Italy imports no more wheat. But Argentina, on the other hand, buys no more Italian manufactured products. The development of hydro-electric power has reduced the imports of British and German coal. But the commercial balance of these two countries has in consequence suffered a severe counterblow. The deficit in the Italian trade balance has been steadily rising and at the end of the first six months of this year had reached the sum of one billion 425 million lire, 60 per cent higher than the deficit for the similar period of the previous year.

"This situation, of course, is affecting the gold stocks of the Bank of Italy. The loss of metal has been at a rate of about 150 million lire monthly. It is foreseen that by the end of 1934 Italy's gold stocks will be less than 6 billion lire, and so will attain a critical point for the soundness of the lira, since monetary circulation will have less than 50 per cent gold coverage.

Lira Drops Against Franc.

"The Italian lira has already dropped considerably against the franc. It would have dropped more except for the fact that the Bank of Italy maintains a rigorous control over the circulation of Italian money beyond the frontiers. If the export of money were free, and the market for the lira normal, the value of Italian money would probably be about one-third of its present official quotation.

"Premier Mussolini, who still remains imbued with a socialistic ideality, envisages, as a last resort to remedy this situation, a general state levy on national wealth. The corporate state plan, in which private initiative is smothered in a network of burocratic control in which the workingman element dominates, is to arrive in the end at a general industrial and commercial mobilization. This eventuality might ward off an immediate danger, but it cannot assure a normal and peaceful development of the nation.

"Fascism still closes itself up within the illusory formula of economic and financial isolation. It boasts that it no longer borrows money abroad and it boasts of being able to develop indefinitly its own national resources. This proud dream is today denied by the facts, and the foreign policy of Italy is necessarily affected by it. For ten years the Italian government thought it could play a separate game from its ex-allies, and in a way act as a sort of arbiter, thereby setting itself beyond and above the other western powers.

"Italy played the game of Germany for many years, only to find that such a policy led to deception. The action of the Rome government has been as successful at Geneva as it was at Moscow. It has failed at Sofia the same as it has in Albania."

Collegeville, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Battle scarred Graterford prison, scene of convict rioting which resulted in $40,000 damage, resumed much of its normal calm today while most of the troublemakers were kept under close guard in an open air, barbed wire pen.

Part of the prison population yesterday burned a storage barn and two garage buildings, damaged three cell blocks and wrecked the prison kitchen, butcher shop, laundry, bake shop, workshop and the office of the warden in charge.

Seventy state policemen, 60 state highway patrolmen and prison guards crushed the rebellion—the first outbreak of its kind in the "model" prison—without firing a shot. No one was seriously injured and none of the prisoners escaped.

Today 43 state trooper and 20 highway patrolmen kept a watchful eye while about 30 of the 158 convicts who took part in the riot were transferred to the "Cherry Hill" branch of the prison in Philadelphia—the eastern state penitentiary. Fifty others are to be moved later.

Minnesota Artist Kills Self in Hotel Here

A man identified through a card in his pocket as John M. Burke, 42 years old, South Minneapolis, Minn., an artist, was found dead yesterday in his room at 1107 North Dearborn street, his head slumped over an open gas plate. One end of a rubber hose attached to the gas plate lay near his mouth. Two notes were found: one addressed to his wife, Muriel, the other to his mother, Mrs. E. Burke of Hamilton, Mont., and a sister, Mrs Jack Winn of Los Angeles, Cal. Neither paper indicated a motive for suicide, merely asking that the women be notified. Mrs. Burke, over long distance telephone, last night told police her husband had come to Chicago seeking work.

CANADA SEEKS TO RECLAIM DRIED UP WHEAT AREAS

Land Desolated by Years of Drouth.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Reclamation of millions of acres of the finest wheat land in the world, desolated by successive years of drouth, is the immediate object of four governments in Canada—the federal, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta.

Plans have been laid already to relieve distress in dried out areas of the prairies, feed the impoverished people, provide seed for next year's crops, and look after millions of half starved cattle and horses. But there is another object in mind—how to reclaim the land which has lost its binding and freshness due to years of drouth.

For months the dominion department of agriculture has been experimenting with grasses gathered from all parts of the world to determine the best to act as a binder to the wind tossed soil of their prairies.

Soil Must be Rejuvenated.

Agricultural experts believe many parts of the west never will regain their paramount place as wheat producers until the soil has been rebound and rejuvenated. Eventually, they say, it may lead to reforestation and irrigation on a wide scale.

In Manitoba 1,000,000 acres in 13 municipalities were affected by the drouth. Sixty per cent of the cultivated acreage of Saskatchewan has been dried out and 40 per cent will not produce a marketable crop this year. The dry area in Alberta is 2,000,000 acres, a decrease from last year. Some sections of the prairies have had five successive crop failures.

Agreements were signed last week between the Canadian Railways, the federal government, and the prairie governments, providing reduced rates on live stock feed moved to the dry sections and cattle and horses shipped to northern ranges. It is said to be impossible to transfer all the half starved stock from the dried out areas, and some are not worth the cost of feeding. It may result in wholesale slaughter of cattle to be processed into hog feed.

Few Quit Dry Sections.

A trickle of emigration has started from the dry sections, but this is not regarded as practical on any large scale. In Saskatchewan, for instance, 40,000 families, probably 200,000 people, have farms in the drouth sections.

About 100 families have deserted their farms in the south and selected new land in the north, but this movement is limited to the available acreage of unbroken land of good quality.

The amount the Dominion will spend this year in drouth relief has been placed between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000, in addition to direct relief for the people.

To Conserve Hay Supply.

The Dominion already has taken steps to thwart speculators in hay. Due to the needs of the west and the small Canadian crop, it has passed regulations forbidding the export of hay without license. This will conserve the Canadian supply in view of crop failures in the United States and Washington's removal of the $5-ton tarif. It was announced at the time that border communities, for instance southern Alberta and northern Montana, would encounter few difficulties buying hay from each other, providing there was no part of Canada going without.

BELIEVE FOREST FIRES ARE NEAR DEFEAT IN N. W.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Victory was in sight for forest workers today after more than a month of fighting fires whose advance through the Pacific northwest devastated thousands of acres of valuable timberland.

With only two exceptions, all major fires were under control or about to be corralled.

The fire in the St. Joe National forest of eastern Idaho spread during the night into territory so rough it was almost impossible to place men on some sectors.

Fear was expressed by foresters that the blaze might spread into Montana.

Hens Come Into Own.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Aug. 26, 1934.

JOHN RAWLINGS has a notion that chickens are going to play a more important part on the midwest live stock and grain farm in the future than they have in the past. He has charge of the poultry on THE TRIBUNE's auxiliary farm near Wheaton, Ill., where projects are being laid out to test out the production of chickens, ducks, turkeys, and guineas under practical farm methods.

Now Mr. Rawlings has not attempted this year to break any egg laying records or produce the biggest and plumpest birds in the shortest length of time, but he has had fair luck despite the dry weather that killed a few hens and despite the hawks that fed freely on the turkeys running wild in the woods. Turkeys do not remain wild for any great length of time around Mr. Rawlings. It is a circus at the Rawlings home at feeding time when the barnyard fowls of all ages come fluttering in. Almost everything that has wings big enough will try to fly up to Mr. Rawlings' shoulder to eat corn or other grain from his hand. Poultry is welcome around the barns at the Wheaton farm, while on many corn belt farms farmers are too busy to take care of them. One of the favorite indoor sports on many farms is to throw corn cobs at old hens at feeding time; that never happens in the Rawlings barnyard.

The 826 chickens, turkeys, ducks, and guineas do enough cackling, gobbling, quacking, and "potteracking" to irritate many farmers but it is music to Mr. Rawlings, who seems to have a knack for handling barnyard fowls. Most of the poultry and eggs produced are used at the farm. The surplus is sold.

There are 165 Barred Rock hens and eight roosters at the Wheaton farm. They are kept to produce eggs and to incubate hen eggs, turkey eggs, and guinea eggs. There are more than 200 young chickens at the farm; broilers have been ready for use since early in the season.

From eleven turkey hens 140 poults were hatched, 75 under turkey hens and 65 under chicken hens this year. The turkey hens are allowed to range in the timbered pastures. Some build their nests in the woods while others prefer the barn where they are protected. A higher percentage of poults lived of those hatched under the turkey hens than of those hatched under chicken hens. Many of the young turkeys already have been used at the farm. Most of the 83 left will be kept and fattened for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. Both Red Bourbon and the common brown turkeys have been kept at the farm. Only Red Bourbons will be raised next year.

◆

Mr. Rawlings started out last spring with a dozen Muscovy ducks. From this flock he has produced 119 young ones. The old ducks are from his original pair of Muscovies brought to the farm five years ago. Some of the young drakes recently dressed weighed 6 pounds each and the hens weighed 4 pounds each.

There are more than 200 guineas at the farm today.

All the poultry is fed under a free for all method; no attempt is made to keep the different classes of birds in separate feeding pens. During the 46 days from July 1 to Aug. 15 the poultry consumed the following amounts of feed: Corn, 800 lbs.; wheat, 800 lbs.; laying mash, 400 lbs.; growing mash, 500 lbs.; rolled oats, 190 lbs.; hulled oats, 100 lbs.; dried milk, 50 lbs. During that time 76 hens kept in the laying pens produced 2,192 eggs.

ILLINOIS PLOW CHAMPS TO VIE IN FURROW TEST

Plowmen of Illinois who think they can turn a straighter furrow than the other fellow will have a chance to try it at the fortieth annual Big Rock, Ill., plowing contest, Sept. 28, on the Herman Long farm, west of Big Rock village. Big Rock is fifteen miles west of Aurora.

Separate events will be staged for horse drawn and tractor plows, and there will be classes for men and boys. Homer Lapp of Wheatland, Ill., many times winner of the horse drawn plowing contest, and Arthur Shoger, Plainfield, Ill., tractor plow champion, will defend their titles. Plowing will begin at 10 a. m., daylight saving time.

A similar contest will be held at Wheatland Sept. 15.

Red Speaker Called from Meeting and Disappears

Tucson, Ariz., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Ray Callahan, Communist party organizer from San Francisco, was called from a meeting he was to have addressed here last night and spirited away. Police expressed belief anti-communist citizens had taken Callahan away to tar and feather him.

Make Firecracker; Two Boys Hurt as It Works

An improvised "firecracker" caused serious injuries yesterday to two 13 year old boys, Walter Wojick, 730 Ayers court, and Walter Kuzinik, 1239 Ancona street. The boys fashioned the toy from powder and sawdust found in a bag at Erie and Morgan streets, where an Italian fiesta had been held. These they packed in a tin can and ignited. At the County hospital physicians were forced to amputate two fingers on Wojick's right hand and one from Kuzinik's left hand.

200,000 INDIANA FAMILIES TILL UNUSED LANDS

Reduce State Relief Bill by $3,500,000.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Two hundred thousand families in Indiana are practising self help by gardening this year. They are harvesting enough food for fall and winter use to reduce the state and county relief bills at least $3,500,000 in 1934. The crops have been grown mainly on land that would have remained idle.

Estimates of this season's production and savings were made after a survey of the crops and acreage in some of the largest community relief gardens operated by township trustees in the Calumet industrial region of northern Indiana. Hard work has overcome adverse growing conditions in these gardens.

This year vegetables are being grown on 102,000 individual plots covering approximately 14,000 acres. In addition there are 62 mass production gardens in 58 counties in Indiana where crops cover an additional 2,100 acres.

Several Large Enterprises.

Indianapolis leads in the number of individual gardens, with a total of 6,500. Evansville gardeners rank next with 6,000 gardens; Gary has 4,000; Hammond, 3,000; and Fort Wayne, Marion, Kokomo, and Muncie about 2,500 each.

The largest township trustee gardens, operated for mass production of relief foods, are to be found at Hammond where there are being grown 131 acres of tomatoes, potatoes, turnips, cabbage, green and dry beans, and sweet potatoes. South Bend's mass production gardens cover 130 acres and Marion's 109. Fort Wayne has three, each of more than 100 acres, and Gary and Hobart operate large fields.

Last spring the governor's commission on unemployment relief supervised the distribution of more than a hundred thousand seed packets for the home and individual gardens. Each seed packet cost 23 cents, furnishing enough seed to plant an individual garden plot.

Increase over Last Year.

More potatoes are produced in the mass production gardens than any other crop. It is estimated that there will be produced this year in the 62 large gardens about 77,000 bushels of potatoes and about 180,000 pounds of dry navy beans.

According to H. E. Young of Purdue university, director of the state community gardens and food conservation in Indiana, community gardeners have produced approximately $500,000 more vegetables this year than last.

The growers, moreover, will get much more out of their gardens this year because they expect to increase the canning of surplus crops. Through the operation of thirty-six community canning centers a million cans of relief food will be processed.

The canning crops brought to the community canning centers will come from the mass production gardens. In addition about 20,000 families with individual gardens are expected to pack at home another million cans of vegetables, making a total of 2,000,000 cans.

Big Canning Program.

Sweet corn this year yields nearly 2 tons to the acre. Approximately 210 acres will furnish corn for canning, according to M. K. Kercher, who is in charge of the community canning centers. He also estimates that there will be nearly 2,000 tons of cabbage for sauerkraut and nearly 2,000 tons of tomatoes. Approximately 600 tons of turnips are being grown for canning.

Seven state transient stations are operating gardens of from 5 to 25 acres to supply the transient homes with food. At one or two of these the state plans to operate canning centers this fall to lessen the cost of operating the homes. The labor in operating the canning equipment is obtained from those who stop at the homes.

FARM LEADERS, LANGER ASSAIL AAA IN BELVIDERE

Belvidere, Ill., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Officials of the National Farmers' union and former Gov. William Langer of North Dakota, at a mass-meeting and picnic here today, bitterly assailed farm recovery plans drawn by the "Roosevelt professors" with the aid of "sidewalk farmers." Approximately ten thousand farmers from northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin, and eastern Iowa heard the addresses.

The speakers criticized the administration for cutting production while allowing foreign agricultural products to be imported into this country.

Langer declared that the American farmer should be given the chance to feed the American people.

E. H. Everson, president of the National Farmers' union, said the farm problem is not a problem of overproduction and labeled the AAA the "asinine agricultural activity."

E. E. Kennedy, national secretary of the farmers' union, pointed out as an example of "overproduction" that if all the surplus cheese were divided among the people of the United States each person would not have enough "cheese to bait a mouse trap."

Announce Troth of Miss Hamill to John M'Ewen

BY JUDITH CASS.

TELEGRAMS of good wishes to the extent of several dozen will be rushed down to Santa Fe, N. M., today to Miss Margaret Hamill, who is vacationing in the southwest with her mother, Mrs. Ralph C. Hamill. Dr. and Mrs. Hamill, whose home is in Winnetka, are announcing the engagement of their daughter to another Winnetkan, John McEwen, son of Mrs. John McEwen.

The romance dates back to school-days when Miss Hamill and Mr. McEwen were both enrolled at the North Shore Country Day school. Since then Miss Hamill has been graduated from Farmington and presented to society at a garden tea given by her family in September of 1931. Mr. McEwen, who is now in business in Cincinnati, is a graduate of Yale university.

There will without doubt be a party in celebration of the betrothal late in September, after Miss Hamill, her mother, and two brothers, Ralph Jr. and Hunt, have returned from Santa Fe. They are expected on or about Sept. 15. During the summer the Ernest Byfields have been occupying the Hamills' Winnetka house.

Emily Watson to Wed George B. Lake Jr.

When Kathleen Laura Watson, 8 years old, ran out on the lawn Saturday afternoon at the garden party her mother, Mrs. Dudley Crafts Watson, and her big sister, Miss Emily Watson, were having at their Ravinia home, Trillium Dell, and displayed a long scroll, there was more than a little excitement among the assembled guests. Little Miss Watson was announcing the engagement of her sister Emily, to George Burt Lake Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. George B. Lake of Highland Park.

Ever since they were in grade school Miss Watson and Mr. Lake have been friends, but there has been little rumor of their engagement. Miss Watson studied at Lake Forest college and then attended the University of Kentucky. Since then she has traveled extensively abroad. Mr. Lake is a graduate of Northwestern university. The wedding will be an event of next March.

George F. James Jr. to Wed New York Girl Sept. 1.

On Sept. 1 there is to be another wedding in the family of Mrs. George Francis James of Kimbark avenue making two within three months. The middle of June Miss Barbara James became Mrs. Richard H. Sampson in a pretty ceremony at the Church of the Redeemer.

Now George Francis James Jr. will take Miss Mary Ella Bickell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Bickell of New York City, for his bride at 4 o'clock the afternoon of Sept. 1. The ceremony is to be small and quiet at the home of Miss Bickell's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Leo Daily, at 221 Greenleaf avenue in Wilmette.

Dean Frederick Grant of Western Theological seminary will read the service and then there will be a reception following in the garden that surrounds the Daily home. Mrs Sampson will attend Miss Bickell as matron of honor, Miss Suzanne Bickell will be her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Dorothy Woolley and Miss Edith Howell of New York City. Ernest Stevens is to serve Mr. James as best man, and ushering will be Laubian Simons, Philip Campbell, and Bouton McDougal.

Mr. and Mrs. Bickell are already here from New York for the wedding. With their daughter they are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Daily in Wilmette.

Dunham Riding Club Being Reorganized.

Because many residents of the country to the west as well as some of their friends along the north shore appreciate the relaxation and enjoyment the old Dunham inn at Wayne provides, they have just completed a plan to reorganize the Dunham Woods Riding club into a private club with a select membership. This week the sponsors, governors, and committee members are issuing invitations to their friends to join.

The invitations point out the pleasure there is in riding the trails of this lovely 2,000 acre estate and the fun in the informal parties in the old coach house, with its roaring fire adding zest to a crisp fall or winter day.

The governors feel that only by the organization of a private club can the congeniality of this delightful country rendezvous be maintained. To extend the range of activities available to the members a swimming pool has just been completed and plans are under way for adding tennis courts and a shower building. The present bridle

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Maybe you noticed what a Chicago physician had to say the other day about the effects of the drouth on women's skins. Another year of it and our complexions, as well as our crops, would be just too bad.

In a talk on skin care this physician remarked that in his thirty years of practice he had seen wonderful strides in the preservation of complexions. He attributed it to more intelligent skin care than was formerly given, and he stressed the use of oils and creams. The current craving for creams and their generous use has lengthened the life of the average complexion by a decade or more.

It does seem that we gals just couldn't use too much, at least those of us who are over 25. Winter and summer, if we're wise, we err on the side of generosity with nourishment and protection.

It may seem a little early in the season to talk about a really heavy nourishing cream, but in our lopes around town lately we've noticed that many women's skins show the need for one.

There's one sold in several shops that is perfection. We'll lay our cards right on the table and tell you that it's expensive, but if you can afford it, hop on to it by all means. It's the richest thing we've ever encountered, the least bit yellow in tinge, and definitly drippy. We could play with it for hours for the sheer joy of feeling its delicious texture.

It's a treatment cream, not a cleanser. It's so joyously rich it can be used sparingly and a jar, though it costs more than the average, lasts a long time. What's really important is that it is almost miraculous in softening and smoothing parched, crinkly skin. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Onslow Stevens of Movies Elopes with a Debutante

Hollywood, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Onslow Stevens, stage and screen actor, and Miss Phyllis Cooper, society debutante, were married today in Yuma, Ariz., they advised the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Cooper. "It was an elopement," said Mrs. Cooper. Stevens is 32 years old. Among his films were "Radio Patrol," "Once in a Lifetime," "Nagana" and "Peg o' My Heart."

Movie Soldier of Fortune Pens Self-Portrait

Wallace Smith Tells What He's Really Like.

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Wallace Smith strolled along while we were speculating on the value of these question and answer sheets that some people poke at movie folk. He seized upon a bundle of them and here is what he did with a blank one:

"I'm married and diplomatic," he began, "and I like music and tennis; speak German, Spanish, enough French to get arrested. I pack up and leave town whenever I want to. I come back the same way. I've been abroad six times and arrested about that often.

"I went to work when I was 14. As my brain developed I gave that up and studied art. That was hard and I took up writing.

"This was a snap but dull. I tried newspaper work and that got me places. I fought with Pershing one year and really liked it. Next year I hired out as a captain for Villa so's he wouldn't feel discriminated against.

"I have written over seventy-five short stories and seven novels, four of which have been published. 'Bessie Cotter' just published, following 'The Captain Hates the Sea,' I dragged out of my trunk where it has been for years. I hope it doesn't trip the book reviewers into seeing my style develop."

For a swaggering soldier of fortune Smith is really much more domesticated than he sounds. Mr. Smith collects American antiques and their Hillside home is furnished very beautifully and completely in them. His wife, former tennis star, also collects beautiful china and silverware and is such a good cook that Smith doesn't interfere about the dishes.

Strange requests sometimes come to studios. Principal Pictures, which made "The Return of Chandu," had a letter recently from a Dr. Nathan Dansky of Hollywood in behalf of a patient, a lad of 12 suffering from infantile paralysis. The youngster had listened to the radio strip of "Chandu" for months and had heard of the scarab ring worn by the magician to ward off evil and to bestow healing powers as well. The youngster feels that if he had this ring it would help him recover. The studio is combing every shop in town to find the large scarab ring worn by Bela Lugosi in the film to give to the youngster as the physician feels that the mental state of the child would be improved by his belief in the ring and his health might reflect this.

Noah Beery, formerly a very popular screen villain for many years, is working in "Kentucky Kernels" with Wheeler and Woolsey. Somehow, his domestic difficulties of several years ago seemed to upset him so much that he fell behind in the screen parade. He's getting on his feet again now.

Marian Nixon and Eddie Quillen are working together in "The Kickoff" at Radio for the first time since the two worked in a series of silent comedy dramas for Pathé. Glenn Tryon, former silent star, is directing the film.

Hollywood

BY SIDNEY SKOLSKY.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—"Here Comes the Navy" and a fleet of movie fans, all sending in the same movie boner. It seems that every one who saw this flicker noticed this one. While on board the battleship Sailor James Cagney receives a telegram from Gloria Stuart stating that she must see him that night; the telegram is dated May 13, 1934.

Cagney sneaks off the boat, is caught returning and held for court martial. During the trial the commanding officer says to Cagney: "On the night of April 2, 1934, you were absent without official leave. . . ." Just an error, due to carelessness that no one at the studio noticed, but that many wide-eyed movie fans caught.

In "Girl from Missouri" Jean Harlow and Franchot Tone are at a dance in Florida. Jean and Franchot are eating. During the meal Franchot says a few harsh words and Jean tosses a plate of chocolate ice cream at him, on his white shirt and tuxedo, writes Phil Engels. Then, a few seconds later, Franchot tears Jean's dress in the back.

Yet all that evening Franchot's shirt and tuxedo appear spotlessly clean and there is not one shot of Jean's torn dress.

The prize bloomer of them all concerns "Love in Bloom," in "She Loves Me Not." It is reported by George Wilger. Bing Crosby enters the dean's office and Kitty Carlisle is seated at the piano, playing. She is playing "Love in Bloom." Crosby and Carlisle get acquainted and she learns that he is the composer of the college varsity show. Of course he must play for her and he plays two compositions from the show, "Straight from the Shoulder and Right from the Heart" and "I'm Whistling, I'm Singing, and I'm Humming."

These finished and then Crosby sits at the piano and starts playing another melody. "What's that?" asks Miss Carlisle. "That's a new song I just wrote," answers Crosby. "Play it, please," asks Miss Carlisle. It isn't difficult to coax Crosby. He plays his new song, "Love in Bloom," which Kitty Carlisle was playing without ever having heard when the composer entered the room.

Good Morning!

Old Man Depression is the papa of this haywire plot.

It's because of his woeful ministrations in the affairs of the Colt-Strattons, father, mother, and daughter that they agree to hire out their last yacht—which is also their last worthwhile worldly possession—to a party of wealthy bounders and bounderesses who desire a south sea cruise de luxe, and ALSO consent to the signing up of themselves and their friends as servants on the voyage.

"There is nothing else to do in Manathulooloo but lo-ove . . .!" croon the swarthy, lei swathed choristers. . .

"HOW romantic!" sighs the blowsy blonde whose husband is summering in the south (Atlanta).

Scarcely are the words uttered than natives armed with machine guns board the ship and order the passengers ashore.

The entire piece is farcical with music interpolations. There is one quite striking and tuneful ensemble. Acting is as good as it needs to be, with romance chiefly involving Miss Colt-Stratton and Michael Forbes, who becomes a stowaway just to be near her.

There are some fairly laughable situations. Ned Sparks, as the unsmiling, wise-cracking captain of the "last yacht" amused me more than anybody or anything else in the picture.

See you soon!

Vermonters Form Group to Establish Coolidge Memorial

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Establishment of a shrine in memory of Calvin Coolidge, 30th President of the United States, and formation of a society to be known as the Calvin Coolidge Memorial association was voted here today by more than 100 Vermont men and women.

Although the resolution did not specify the type of memorial, it was voted that the memorial be established and maintained for all time in Plymouth and that it be "worthy of him and of the principles of conduct, private and public, which he by his life exemplified."

A proposal made by the late Willis C. Belknap, Bellows Falls newspaper publisher, that the Plymouth general store, district school house, the Wilder home, Coolidge home, church, cheese factory, and cemetery be taken over by the association and preserved for all time met with general favor.

H. T. Brown of Ludlow was elected president.

The association planned to conduct yearly pilgrimages to the grave of Vermont's most famous citizen on or about Aug. 3, the date Coolidge was sworn into office as President by his father at the Coolidge homestead here.

APROPOS the epitaph of the woman who had borne twenty-one children, printed in this space the other day, Mrs. Dale of Dundee reports the one in Sleepy Hollow cemetery, Tarrytown, N. Y. A slanting old red sandstone marker bears this inscription:

Epitaph—Epitaphs—Location—Rebuke—Busman.

And apparently as an afterthought was added:

"Rebekah, his wife, is also buried here."

A GENTLEMAN from Jackson boulevard writes in about his gentle, unworldly little old aunt. She likes to be explicit, and when she addresses mail to Chicago she writes the address:

ONE of Chicago's most dignified and delightful ladies was riding on a World's Fair bus the other day when she heard a fellow passenger inquire as to the location of Mrs. Thorne's Miniature Rooms. The attendant, confused by several simultaneous questions from other passengers, gave the woman the wrong information. The Chicago woman turned to her to advise her correctly and was astonished to have her say in angry tones:

"I beg your pardon, but I've never laid eyes on you before and I am not accustomed to being addressed by strangers!"

Taken aback and angered also by this onslaught the Chicagoan answered with some heat:

"Madam, I am a trustee of this Fair, and I was trying to prevent a visitor from being misinformed and caused inconvenience. . . ."

At this point the visitor interrupted:

"I don't care if you're the president of the Fair," she said with simple dignity. "Just shut your mouth and tend to your own business."

AMBROSE CRAMER got out of a sight-seeing bus at A Century of Progress the other day and as he stepped out thanked the busman for his efficient service. The fellow looked positively astonished.

"You're the only person who has thanked me all summer except three Chinamen," he said.

Furs Are Dyed to Match Wool of New Frocks

Simplicity of Line Marks Street Clothes.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

These new street clothes, the one piece affairs that are hanging about tempting the very last nickle out of your handbag, are the last word in simple simplicity. Not the simplicity that takes a couple of days to find out why they are so bafflingly simple, but honest to goodness straight lines without a detour in the way of a seam or added godet, or bit of ruffled ripple to make things complicated.

Your tonsils will be covered this fall for a lot of the best buys have folded necklines like a turtle necked sweater. High necklines, front and back, will keep you warm and cozy as well as fashionable.

What the designers have done that's new and diabolically clever is to hang a cape around the shoulders, trim with fur, and then dye the fur to match the wool of the frock. You'll think nothing of seeing wine red, deep sapphire blue, and forest green fur plastered all over the best of the dress matching capes. They've done a good dyeing job, too, and the effect is startling but different.

Grand new woolen weaves and colors are legion. For instance, all the dusty browns, reds, and the greens with a feathery gray haze over the surface. They are thin, easy to wear, and tailored in the new silhouette with a gracious ease that only a thin, supple wool can achieve. Most of the newest arrivals are untrimmed. That is, there is a definite lack of braid or doo-dads. You get your contrast with exciting new belts, or with big bright new costume jewelry; with the golden clips, the big glittering bumps and knobs of chromium that masquerade as buttons, or with chest pins and clips.

Such a costume is illustrated in the fashion photograph. A wine red woolen frock, high of neckline, buttoned down the back, with long shaped sleeves, a severely tailored silhouette and a natural slim waistline, is topped with a snappy short cape of dyed flat fur of the same becoming tone of wine red. It's just one of a large collection from a Chicago shop featuring these tricky new dyed fur capes to match the smart slim street dress of new thin wool.

BLAZING GUNS

By WILLIAM MacLEOD RAINE

INSTALMENT I.

WANTED FOR TRAIN ROBBERY.

Cole Sanborn sat a tiptilted chair on the porch of the Jonesboro house, the worn heel of one boot hooked in a rung. His long lean body was slack, apparently relaxed, but its ease was like that of a coiled spring which might be released at the touch of a trigger. Chill gray eyes set deep in a hard reckless face swept the dutsy road with indolent vigilance. In them lay a cynical audacity, no apprehension. Yet he knew he was a temptation to itching fingers. His presence was a challenge—to perplexed and dubious law which knew much and guessed more, to the anger of many whose vanity and rights he had flouted, to the vengeance of enemies powerful and intrenched.

He was as nearly motionless as one could be who rolled, lit, and smoked cigarets at spaced intervals. For an hour he had not left the porch, and every instant of that time he had been watched. That there was menace in the air Cole knew. He had seen a lifted head in the window casing of the new store being built farther down the street. Eyes had glittered at him from Pete Casey's Haven of Rest. The man knew the chance he was taking. Some one in a flush of anger might take a shot at him. To sit there in the center of the little town's stage, so contemptuously unconcerned, was a jeer at good law abiding citizens—and others not so good. For Cole Sanborn was wanted on many counts, the latest of which was the murderous robbery of a K. & J. express car less than a week ago.

Tacked to the wall back of Cole's head, so close that his thick black hair brushed the edge of the paper, was a poster advertising a reward for the capture of the robbers. Attention was given to a short heavyset man dressed in the lethers of a cowpuncher, to a lank fellow in jeans, but the authorities showed more concern about the leader. He was a big rangy black-haired man wearing corduroy trousers stuffed into the tops of boots, a gray cotton shirt with a blue polka dot bandanna around the neck, and a broad Stetson decorated with a band of rattlesnake skin. For information leading to his arrest and conviction the railroad would pay one thousand dollars, the state five hundred.

And on the porch of the Jonesboro house sat a man who fitted the description even to the polka dot bandanna and the bedecked Stetson. What Cole banked on was that faint line which lay between moral certainty and absolute evidence. The train robbers had been masked. A hundred men might feel sure Cole Sanborn led them, but none of them could swear to it.

A small man, sun tanned and wrinkled, came down the plank walk toward the Jonesboro house. He wore the high-heeled boots of a cowboy and walked gingerly, the weight of his body on the toes. In front of the hotel porch he stopped.

"So you're back," he said harshly.

Sanborn's eyes danced. "I'm back, sherif. Can't stay away, I reckon. Got so many good friends here."

The brows of the other man lifted, but the grin did not leave his face. "You asking me or telling me, Magruder?"

"I don't aim to have any unnecessary killings in this town. Jonesboro don't want you here, unless——"

"——unless I put up at your hotel."

"My advice is for you to light a shuck outa here."

"After I've finished my business." Sanborn concluded for him with drawling correction.

"Which is?"

"Thought I'd have a look at that gather of beeves on the mesa. If I could buy at a whack up I'd take a bunch of them."

"You paying cash?"

The black beady eyes of Magruder rested on the indolent figure in the chair. The little man had no clear course of action mapped in his mind. He had been elected because he was known to be game, but this was not a question of nerve, but of judgment. His fingers rubbed the criscrossed lines that scored deeply the back of his neck. His opinion was that Cole Sanborn was guilty as hell, but a man could not take opinions to court.

"Come into money, have you, Cole?" he asked guardedly.

The big man ignored this and trod with cheerful effrontery on dangerous ground. "I'll tell you, Magruder, man to man. I came back to help you hunt the robbers of the K. & J. express."

The sherif did not share the other's levity. His black eyes were hard as jade.

"I wouldn't go far to find the scalawags that did this job," Sanborn replied hardily. The clatter of horses' hoofs crossing a wooden bridge had drifted to them and his eyes were on the advancing cavalcade. "I'd look right near here."

"So would I," Magruder agreed darkly. "What's eatin' you, Cole? Haven't you got any sense a-tall? Don't you know there are men in this town who wouldn't ask better than to shoot you down on sight?"

"Only they don't do it," Sanborn murmured, his eyes still on the dust cloud of riders.

"You can drive 'em too far."

Five riders swept past to the Haven of Rest, the other two drew aside and reined in at the hotel.

Cole answered with light derision, his mind no longer on the conversation. He watched the two who were dismounting. One was a big rawboned cattleman, his companion a girl in her teens.

"Friends like you are far and seldom, sherif," the soft drawl went on. "You'd hate to see me bumped off, wouldn't you?"

"I don't give a dawg gone when they get you, if it ain't on my range," Magruder flung back with swift emphasis. "I'm sherif of Boone county."

He, too, had his eyes on those who had just arrived. A pulse of excitement beat in his lethery throat. For the man who had swung down from the sorrel was Jerry Haskell, foreman of the Circle 3 T outfit, and between that brand and Sanborn there was bitter warfare.

Haskell straddled forward, then stopped abruptly. His glance had fallen on the man in the chair.

The gazes of the two big men locked unwinkingly. Haskell was the first to speak.

"So you decided to give yoreself up," he said.

"Guess again," Sanborn advised quietly.

Haskell swung on the sherif. "You arrestin' this outlaw, Magruder?"

The officer shifted a cud of tobacco from one cheek to another. "No-o. Can't say I am, Jerry. Not yet."

"What you mean not yet?" Haskell wanted to know angrily.

"I want more evidence."

"Evidence! What the blue blazes!" exploded the foreman. "Do you expect a photograph of him took on the spot? Read that poster back of his ugly head. Then take a look at him. He's the spittin' image of that description, ain't he?"

"In a way."

"Goddlemighty! Can't you read and see for yourself, Magruder? Big black-haired guy in corduroy trousers—blue polka dot bandanna—hat band of rattler's skin. Why, he hasn't even took the trouble to change his clothes."

"Thought he'd get away with it in the dark. You scared of him because he claims to be a killer and has a rep as a bad man. If so, say the word, and I'll do the job for you."

Magruder flushed angrily. "I don't need any help from outsiders unless I call for it, Jerry. If you'll prove to me he held up the train——"

"Prove! "Doesn't every man in town know it? Are you a plumb fool?"

Never Drop All Other Escorts for One Beau

Especially One Without Serious Intentions.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

I never could understand the ease with which you gals can be talked into dropping all your other escorts, especially when the man who wields the persuasion hasn't gone to the bother of making his own rôle in the picture any too clear.

It seems to me I'd want something rather definite to count on before I rang the knell for a host of would-be suitors. And I know I'd be doubly certain that I had victory in hand were I in Lucy's precarious position.

An attachment of three years was broken up about a year ago [reason not stated], but she continued to see the man occasionally at dances or parties once in a great while. During the holiday season he visited her home and asked for a date. On the second invitation she accepted, and has since then carried on what seems to be a half-hearted courtship as far as the man is concerned.

Although she now sees him every day, their contact is mostly confined to a hello, but once in a while he stops at her office for a chat or drives her home. He seems very friendly, she says, and tells her all his troubles, giving her a detailed account of how he spends most of his time.

When he discovered she dated other men of his acquaintance, he urged her to keep away from them. And so, instead of asking him where he acquired the right to ask for such consessions, she pushed her other friends into the cold, and locked the door.

On the strength of a previous walkout, which I suspect was engineered wholly by the man in question, I would advise Lucy to reconsider her decision. No one would think of placing bets on a horse not yet registered for the race, and yet women take just as foolish a gamble on some men.

My theory is that if the men don't commit themselves you can use other escorts to force them to take a stand. Even then you girls shouldn't let the other lads drift too far into the distance.

School Stability Depends on Right Start in Morning

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

How hard it is to get down to work when your day has started wrongly, whether you're a housewife or a husband or a woman who carries on her profession at home.

Perhaps you and your husband got into a real quarrel because he, who knows what good strong fragrant coffee is, objected to the brew that was set before him. Or possibly you had been at sword's point for some time because he still continues his philandering ways when he's old enough to know better, and your quarrel was really caused by that. Or it may be that your day started wrongly because you've been half sick for months and you snapped at the children until they wept. But, whatever the cause, you've had trouble getting down to work because your day started wrongly. And if it's mental work to which you're trying to settle down, it's still harder to ignore your upsetness than if it's physical.

But did you ever stop to think that the children may be so affected by discord between you and your husband, or scoldings or punishment directed at them, that they go to school unfitted to work well and behave well? Their day has started wrongly. They get emotionally churned up, too, and they can't throw this off at once.

"Many children," said Dr. Goldrich, "come to school not only having had an inadequate breakfast, but disturbed and unhappy mentally as well. Under these conditions, children find it difficult to behave properly in school."

When school time comes, try to send your children off in the morning properly fed and in a serene frame of mind. Start their day right.

paths will be further extended over adjoining estates.

Announce Program of Winter Sports.

The stable of well schooled riding horses is to be maintained and the care of private mounts continued. In the winter skating, curling, and skiing will be important activities. Arrangements have also been made with the St. Charles Country club for the use of its beautiful golf course by Riding club members who are not residents of Kane county at moderate greens fees.

There are to be no initiation fees or assessments in the new club. For a family membership the dues are to be $22 a year with the dues for individual membership $11. And both rates, adds the invitation, will include the federal tax of 10 per cent.

The list of sponsors of the club includes William S. Monroe, Henry T. Stanton, Charles R. Lindsay Jr., Dr. Allen D. Albert, William P. Howe, David H. McDougal, George C. Moseley, Nicholas Remisoff, H. A. Behrens, Roy Tuchbreiter, J. MacWilliams Stone, and Charles C. West. The officers include John L. Dole, Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay Jr., Charles R. Lindsay III., Mr. Moseley, Mr. Stanton, and Mr. West.

Among the committee members are Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Miss Robin Dienst, Mrs. Henry E. Cooke, Miss Jane Dunham, Mrs. Wirth S. Dunham, Wayne Dinsmore, Perry Dryden, Horace Wetmore, Miss Margot Atkin, Miss Helen Bell, Miss Jane Rowe, and James Miksak Jr.

Mrs. Howard Linn to Give Dinner for Young Swifts.

Mrs. Howard Linn, ever one of society's most delightful hostesses, will entertain tomorrow evening at dinner at her Lake Bluff home for Mr. and Mrs. Louis Franklin Swift Jr. The former Libby Chase and her husband have returned from a sojourn at Desbarats, Canada, in time to see many of their friends before they go back to their home in Fort Worth, Tex. According to their present plans, they will leave for the south on Thursday.

Miss Helen Fulton, daughter of the Frank Fultons of Winnetka, will entertain at luncheon tomorrow for Mrs. Richard Atherton, the former Elsa Kochs. Miss Fulton has invited about 30 guests.

Invitations were in the week-end mail for the début party of Miss Fanny McPherson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. McPherson of Winnetka. They will present their daughter at a garden tea at home on Sept. 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler V. Colt of Evanston are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son Saturday at Evanston hospital. Incidentally Saturday was also Mr. Colt's birthday. The baby has been named Schuyler Grosvenor Colt after Mrs. Colt's paternal grandfather.

Daughter Is Born to Former Lucia Page.

Chicago friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Page of New York, formerly of Kenilworth, will be interested to hear that their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. William Heeks [Lucia Page], are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, Lucia Alexandra, Friday at the Doctors' hospital in New York. The infant is the great-granddaughter of Judge Samuel S. Page of Chicago, who now resides at La Jolla, Cal.

A visitor of importance who passed through Chicago inexpectedly and swiftly was Miss Gerda Mundt, a member of the Danish parliament and daughter of a distinguished Danish family. She was a guest at a tea given for her by Mrs. Reimond Baumann, wife of the Danish consul in Chicago, in the Women's Athletic club. Miss Mundt explained that the reason for her hurry was the scheduled opening of parliament on Oct. 11, for which she must of necessity be present.

It will be a month at least before James W. Rogers will be able to return from Sturgeon Bay to Chicago. He was injured in an automobile accident last Sunday, and is now in the hospital at the Bay with a broken hip. Mrs. Rogers and the children are not far from him at Fish Creek.

It will be a wonder if any of the boys and girls for whom the Sunbeam league is giving a party next Friday afternoon eat the little cakes they are to have, for each cake is to have the name of a small guest inscribed in its frosting. This is just one of the many party ideas the league members have to make the dependent cripples at the Martha Washington home, 4448 South Michigan avenue, happy at their circus. Miss Helen Crone of North State street, as supervisor of the Martha Washington kindergarten, is in charge of the arrangements with Mrs. Walter Deveney.

Mrs. Higginson Rogers, who has been occupying an apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue the last several weeks, has left for Washington, D. C., where she has taken a house for the winter. Mrs. Rogers will be joined in Washington by her children, who have been summering in Maine.

Fairbanks Cancels Yacht Trip; Motors to Ranch with Mary

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks and his estranged wife, Mary Pickford, went motoring to the actor's Rancho Zorro, near San Diego, today.

They spent the morning in the ranch's romantic atmosphere, looking at the tree plantings, the horses, and cattle. The couple used to ride together here often.

They did not reveal the progress of Fairbanks' supposed wooing of the star.

When Fairbanks returned last Tuesday from a long sojourn in Europe he at once began what appeared to be a new courting of Miss Pickford, who has a suit for divorce pending.

BY MARY MEADE.

Life just isn't worth a dish of spinach to most folks unless there are cookies and more cookies to be munched upon. Most likely this cookie munching habit became a pal of ours back in the days when little bare feet paddled into the pantry and tiny hands stealthily sneaked a cookie from mom's crockery jar.

But, while the love remains, the jars have changed. If you've been sleuthing through the china sections of our department stores lately you've "lo and beheld" that some of the new sets of dishes are blossoming out with a handsome matching cookie jar. Not so roomy as the cookie jar of days gone by, but all the better if you long to air your cookie repertoire and treat folks to a new kind every now and then.

Was the last batch you baked made up of chewy fellows? Then make them crispies this time. Here's a popular style this season.

Baked Pralines.

1 1-3 cups sweetened condensed milk
2-3 cup maple sirup [or dark corn sirup]
2½ cups graham cracker crums
2-3 cup pecan meats

Blend the condensed milk and sirup. Then add the cracker crums and nut meats. Drop by teaspoonsful on a buttered baking sheet and bake for 15 minutes in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.].

Perhaps you've met Nurembergs before. But these spicy wafers should merit more than just a speaking acquaintance. They're particularly good with iced or hot tea.

Nurembergs.

2 eggs, separated
½ cup powdered sugar
⅝ cup sifted flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1-3 teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon cloves
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup chopped almonds (blanched and browned in the oven)

Beat the egg whites until stiff. Fold in the sugar gradually, continuing the beating. Then add the well beaten egg yolks, and the flour sifted with the salt and spices. Fold in the grated rind and almonds. Drop by teaspoonsful on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven until light brown and crisp [10 to 15 minutes].

And another and another. One's a spiced goody—the other's a cousin or niece of the sponge cake.

Ginger Shortbreads.

1 cup butter
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup confectioners' sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ground ginger
Grated rind of 1 orange
2 cups flour

Cream the butter and sugar until fluffy. Add the salt, ginger, and orange rind. Then work in the flour [which has been sifted], using the hands, and roll out to about one-quarter inch thickness. Cut in small squares, mark with tines of a fork, and bake on a cookie sheet in a very hot oven [450 degrees F.] for 10 minutes or until delicately browned.

Sponge Puffs.

2 eggs, separated
1-3 cup sugar
1-3 cup flour
¼ teaspoon almond flavoring
Pinch of salt

Beat the egg whites until stiff and gradually beat in the sugar. Add the egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon colored, and the salt and flavoring. Fold in the flour, which has been sifted three times. Drop teaspoonsful on to a buttered baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven [325 degrees F.] until lightly browned.

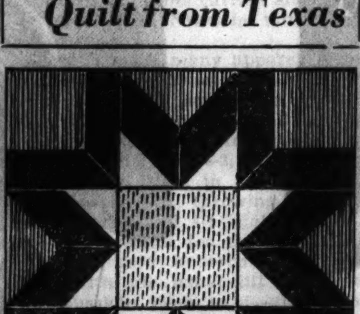
Gayety, Charm Pervade Lovely Quilt from Texas



Rosebud.

BY NANCY CABOT.

There is a gay charm about this lovely old quilt block, which comes to us from the state of Texas. It is pieced in light and dark rose, green, and white and is ideal for a young girl's room. A whole spread requires only twenty-eight pieced blocks and fourteen plain blocks.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

Baths in Salt Water May Be Made at Home

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We all know that salt baths are very cooling and refreshing. People who go to the seashore for the summer months enjoy salt water bathing to the fullest extent. Those who, of necessity, remain in the city during the sweltering weather, long for the opportunity to dive into the ocean to enjoy its stimulating influence after a long day at the office, or after a day devoted to bargain hunting in the stores.

For those of us who must be content with city living, even during this distressing period, there is a simple way to get relief from the heat even in the most uncomfortable weather. On the return from the office, draw a tub of cool water and into it pour a pound and a half to two pounds of table or cooking salt. Then, sit in the tub. Rub the salt over the body. You will get a tingle that is delightful.

While the proportion of salt may be less than in the ocean, the effect is similar to an ocean bath because of the rubbing, which hastens the action of the salt and makes it more effective. Salt bathing stimulates circulation and thus removes the waste products responsible for fatigue. You emerge from the tub relieved of that tired, run-down feeling, ready for a hearty dinner, and a movie or what-have you in the evening.

By availing ourselves of this "home-grown" type of salt water bathing, we are allowed to enjoy many of the pleasant influences of ocean bathing. At the same time we're relieved of all worry about keeping out of the sun to avoid that painful burn which those who do their bathing at the beach are so apt to suffer. Poor consolation, perhaps. However, salt baths, taken indoors or outdoors, have a tonic effect.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

REBIDDING PROCEDURE OF OPENING NO-TRUMP BIDDER.

There are still a few rebidding situations to discuss in connection with the normal short-suited no-trump hands, though naturally this class of no-trumper has fewer ramifications because its right to take a definite initiative in making or accepting slam tries is greatly restricted by its natural limitations in developing playing facilities. The long-suited hand can make tricks, whereas the short-suited hand can only take them. If the responding hand can supply the suit length which will render the twenty-six cards of the partnership agressive in function, then and only then should optimism be entertained as regards slams.

Though I have actually covered most of the situations in earlier articles dealing with the responding hand's procedure, I will give a brief summary of the opening bidder's duties with a short-suited hand. Bear in mind that I have finished with the concealed long suits now, and that we are dealing only with opening no-trump hands containing no suit of five or more cards.

When Partner's Response Is Two No Trumps.

Our machinery does not provide for stopping short of game, over this response, unless the opening no-trump bid was made third or fourth hand. In that event, it is permissible to pass this response and play the hand for two no trumps. This, however, should only be done when the opening bid was shaded to three primary tricks with scant protection in the form of lower honors or sequences, so that you can really determine that game is extremely unlikely, and would be a perilous contract, unless your partner's hand is within half a primary trick of an opening first or second hand bid. In other words, if you need two and a half primary tricks plus some secondary values or distributed protective intermediates, in a short-suited responding hand, you may pass and play the hand for the partial score. It was your partner's duty, after this original pass, to raise you immediately to three no trumps if his hand measured up to the standard just described. After passing the jump raise to three no trumps is, as you know, most emphatically not a slam try. It is a means of "taking the strain off the opening bidder," so that he may be permitted to shade his opening bid slightly with safety in third and fourth position.

When There Is No Stopping Short of Game.

Having bid a no trump as dealer or second hand, and having received the raise to two no trumps, you may not pass. You must bid three no trumps. On occasions you will be set a trick, but you will almost always be justified in attributing the set to hard luck in losing several finesses or in finding each suit in which you try to set up a thirteenth card hopelessly massed against you. On balance you will score heavily by bidding for game under these circumstances. If you find that you are losing by it—for instance, if a dozen such hands have as a whole shown a loss—it must be because you are cutting corners in your opening no trump bids—bidding no trumps when you should bid a suit or pass—or because your partner has been raising you to two no trumps when he should have passed or bid two in a suit. Possibly both may have been at fault. It is easy to see that the responding hand's function is especially important when his holdings are weak, for it is up to him alone to suggest a suit contract or refrain from doing so. The opening no-trump bidder may not, as you know, mention a four card suit, except as part of a slam try after three no trumps (or game in a suit) has been bid. So with a short-suited no trumper, you are irrevocably committed to no trumps unless your partner veers into a suit. Only if you have enough reserve strength to make or accept a slam try will you be able to show a four card suit of your own choosing. With

Sp. A K 10 x   Di. A J
Hts. K J x x   Cl. K 10 x

your right bid is a no trump. You are not going to play this hand in a major suit unless your partner bids it; nor will you at any time bid spades unless he makes a slam try in a form which makes it advisable for you to show spade control. The bidding of four card suits at late stages will be discussed in forthcoming articles. The point I am making today is that the Sims theory of no-trump bidding deliberately eliminates the possibility of unnecessary approach bidding for game purposes subsequent to the no-trump opening bid.

Her Husband's Fiancee

BY ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

INSTALMENT XXXVII.

A DREAM COME TRUE.

Mr. Dodds said he must be going now. He was due to relieve his deputy at the station. And Nanna took Mrs. Leach up to her sitting room.

David and Cecily were alone together for the first time since that strangely incongruous ceremony in Mr. Branchard's office.

"Come in to the garden room," said David. "As Rose Ann would say, 'I love it best'—although for over a year I've hardly been able to go near it."

He took her by the hand.

"You look very sweet—my love, my wife."

"It was rather sweet of you to send me this dress," said Cecily. "With all you've had to do—and 'only one more shopping day.'"

"It had been a deuce of a rush."

"David, I want to know—I must know. I'm so happy myself that I can't bear to think of her. She must be rather miserable."

David's face looked a little hard.

"If you mean Audrey——"

"Of course I mean her."

"Branchard said she took it lying down. They are going away somewhere—she and her mother. I told him to make it easy for them, although God knows I have no reason to pity her. Don't you realize that she came very near to breaking up our lives?"

"I realize that you must have liked her," said Cecily. "How do you think I'm going to get over that, all of a sudden?"

"I don't see how you can," said David bleakly. "I don't see how you ever brought yourself to forgive me."

"I didn't want to forgive you. I hated you as much as you did me—more, I hope!—until that night when we thought we were going to lose Rose Ann. Then I felt, somehow, that you still loved me, and that whether you knew it or not you were trying to get even with me through Audrey. It made you seem rather pathetic, David."

He put his arms around her, and his voice trembled. "I loved you, my darling. There was never anybody else. I went down into hell—but, thank God, it's all over. Like a nightmare. Even now that I'm awake and in my senses I find it hard to believe that I've got you back again."

"Poor David!"

"A fool, if ever there was one. Pity Audrey, if you like, but don't pity me. I should have known better."

"Perhaps next time you will."

"Is there going to be a next time?"

"You never can tell," said Cecily.

She went to the door and called to the children. It was time for them to come in.

Rose Ann whined back at her.

"We're having such a lovely time, mummy." Rose Ann was feather white with snow.

"The sun's gone down, darling. Tommy can come early tomorrow morning. You must have your bath and supper now."

"You hear what she says," said Rose Ann to her playmate.

Tommy heard, and for him there was no disputing of the verdict.

"All right," he replied. "But I'm going to take my sled home with me. I don't have to go to bed as soon as you do, and I don't have a bath every night, either."

Rose Ann opened her eyes very wide.

"Don't you? I'll ask Nanna about that."

Christmas night. The whole world seemed to be dreaming.

Nanna dropped a big lump of coal on to the fire in her sitting room and nodded over her knitting. It was late. She ought to be thinking about bed.

Down in the servants' hall Mason was asking Ellen to marry him. He was nearly twenty years her senior, but Ellen herself was getting on for an old maid.

There was one light switched on, not a very bright one, and they went to the window and drew the curtains apart.

So white and beautiful outside. Ghostly under the high pale moon. Down in the town yellow lights twinkled here and there, but in the sky the stars were like frosty diamonds.

"I feel that if I took a long breath I would break a spell—wake up and find myself where I was last year this time," Cecily murmured.

David bent down and kissed her.

Thank God they were still young, and he had before him a long lifetime to make up to her for that lost year.

"A cool glass of milk is refreshingly delicious and I like its natural pleasing flavor.
"Diet authorities urge all men and women to Drink Milk to build up resistance, and to reinforce the nutritional value of our present day food habits."

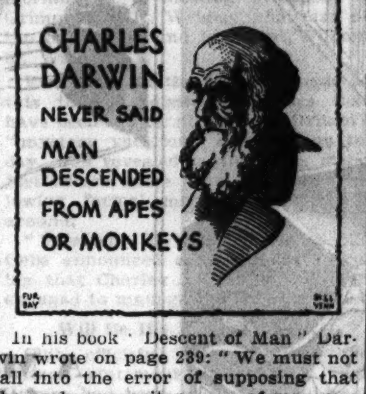
The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.



In his book "Descent of Man" Darwin wrote on page 239: "We must not fall into the error of supposing that the early progenitor . . . of man was identical with, or even closely resembled, any existing ape or monkey." According to Sir Arthur Keith, noted British scientist, not even the most radical evolutionists ever claimed that men descended from monkeys or apes.

NEBRASKA BACK SHINES IN HIS FIRST WORKOUT

Collegians to Stress Defense Today.

Spectators who have followed the College All-Stars in their daily drills at Evanston found themselves in strange surroundings yesterday. An air of tenseness and renewed determination prevailed as the collegians, entering their last four days of work, rushed through their 18th practice session in preparation for their game against the Chicago Bears, world's professional champions, at Soldiers' field Friday night.

One of the chief reasons for the new zest was the presence of Bernie Masterson, giant quarter back from Nebraska, who took his first full workout under the direction of Coaches Noble Kizer, Jimmy Crowley, Mel Elward, and Dick Hanley.

Strengthens Pass Attack.

Masterson's appearance in the All-Star backfield increased the effectiveness of the All-Stars' pass attack and for the first time observers found substantiation for their contention that the collegians will have better passers than the Bears.

The Nebraska star completed pass after pass to ends and backs, exhibiting an uncanny accuracy and timing in his throws. He is a tall, fast man, surprisingly lithe for his 190 pounds, and is expected to be equally potent in the All-Star attack as a blocker and handler of kicks as on the starting end of long passes to Canrinius and Smith, the two excellent receivers who probably will start at the ends against the Bears.

In Perfect Condition.

The collegians have reached perfect physical condition and enter the last four days of drill confident they will be able to match the Bears in power and fitness. Talk in the dressing rooms and on the practice field indicates that the men feel obligated to the fans who selected them in a nation-wide poll as the players best fitted to contest the right of the Bears to football supremacy. This feeling is unanimous in the squad and is reflected in the daily drills. The All-Stars are out to win and believe they will.

Aaron Rosenberg, University of Southern California guard, has attended every practice since he has been able to hobble around on his leg and sat along the sidelines again yesterday encouraging the three squads in their drill. Rosenberg still entertains hope of playing, although physicians have informed coaches his knee injury is not likely to heal sufficiently to permit his participation.

Concentrate on Defense.

With Masterson's passing elevating the All-Stars' aerial game to the heights the coaches have been seeking, time will be devoted to defense today and tomorrow. A lecture has been called for 10:30 o'clock this morning and this afternoon at 3 o'clock the squad will assemble behind locked gates for a long scrimmage in which Kizer, Crowley, and Elward will stress all departments of play. More heavy work is scheduled for tomorrow and on Wednesday the drill will be tapered off. Practice will be concluded Thursday night at Soldiers' field under the lights.

The principal concern of the coaches on defense is stopping Bronko Nagurski, the Bears' full back. If they can halt the charges of the former Minnesota star, the All-Stars expect to pile up the Bears' attack. Rosenberg and Griffith, who have played against the Bears, have convinced the rest of the squad Nagurski can be kept from running wild. Bernard, at center, and Mikulak at full back, two men who will be the kingpins in any defensive maneuvers against Nagurski, since they back up the line, are both huge, rugged fellows with a flair for rough going. No team in the professional league can boast a better pair of defensive men, in the opinion of qualified observers. It is on these two men that the All-Stars pin their hopes.

35,000 SEATS

That's the number of admissions still unsold for the football battle between the college All-Americans of 1933 and the Chicago Bears, national professional champions, at Soldiers' field Friday night.

Good news, fans! By acting NOW you can insure yourself of a ticket to football's big show. But hurry! That 35,000 sounds like a lot, but the total will shrink fast every hour between now and time for the kickoff.

The price is $1.10. You can get tickets today—and every day until the supply is exhausted—at The Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn, at Tribune Tower, and at the Hall of Science at A Century of Progress.

ALL-STAR GAME TO BE NO. 221 FOR RED GRANGE

Carries Ball 19 Miles in 16 Seasons on Gridiron.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

RED GRANGE.

The pro Bears may beat the college All-Stars eleven and then again may lose when they meet at Soldiers' field next Friday evening, but one thing is certain and that is that it will be the 221st football battle in which Harold [Red] Grange, ex-Illini wizard, has participated. That's a lot of football for one man, but the quiet red head, a bit heavier around the cheeks and rounder at the waist line, doesn't think it's time to quit.

Grange's sixteen years of service in high school, at Illinois and on the pro gridiron, probably entitle him to claim he's carried a football farther and oftener than any other athlete ever in the game. Figures covering his career show that he has lugged the ball approximately 32,500 yards, or slightly less than nineteen miles. Some of this ground was covered during four years at Wheaton High, some in his three years on the Illini varsity eleven, and some during his eight seasons as a pro. What he did while with the Illinois freshmen isn't counted.

And ball carrying has been only a part of the famous red head's work on the gridiron. Since his high school days he has been a passer and a receiver of passes. He has blocked on offense and tackled on defense. He always has been, and still is, an old reliable at breaking up enemy pass attacks, and it is in the latter connection that the Bears now find him of greatest value.

A few of the tackles, however, stand out in Grange's memory. He says he was hit the hardest of his career when he played his first college game. Ed Weir of Nebraska was his assailant. When he was with the New York pro team in 1927 George Trafton, then the Bears' center, hugged Red with such gusto that the famous athlete was out for the season.

When Grange played his first game at Wheaton High he was nervous because 300 people were watching the activity. But there was nothing nervous about him when he closed his collegiate career in Ohio State's bowl before a turnout of 90,000, which was all that could be crammed into the place. It was Grange who drew most of those 90,000 to the spot. It also was Grange who brought 74,000 into the Polo grounds when he played his first pro game in New York.

Grange went to Illinois with no thought of turning to football for recreation. Despite his high school record he didn't consider himself a worthy performer on the gridiron. A place on the college basketball and track teams was all he wanted. He was doubly convinced that his chances were slim when he viewed an Illini squad of a hundred or more. But his fraternity members insisted he turn out. He never got around to his first loves, basketball and track.

The Bears took another step toward perfection for their meeting with the All-Stars by running through another signal drill yesterday morning. They were excused from afternoon labor. Passes again received most of the attention and in this connection several of the new men were dropped in among the regulars at various times. Today the program will be a bit more strenuous. The second scrimmage of the training grind will be put on this morning, and this evening the squad will move to Northwestern's practice field for the initial workout under electric light.

Gene Ronzani, one of the Bears' star half backs, was still missing from practice. However, the leg injured in the first scrimmage last Thursday is showing improvement, and there now is a good possibility that he will be able to take a hand in Friday evening's battle. Bill Karr, regular end, also was out for the second consecutive day because of infected teeth.

NUSSLEIN BEATS KOZELUH TO WIN PRO TENNIS TITLE

Triumphs in Four Sets, 6-4, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5.

Hans Nusslein, world professional champion, added the national professional tennis title to his collection yesterday at the South Shore Country club when he defeated Karel Kozeluh, Czechoslovakia, in four sets, 6-4, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5. A capacity crowd of 3,500 watched the two wizards of the court match strokes for the title which Kozeluh won two years ago by defeating Nusslein in the final.

Emmett Pare, Memphis, and Bruce Barnes, St. Louis, took the doubles championship with a straight set victory over Ellsworth Vines Jr., Pasadena, Cal., and Paul Heston, Washington, D. C. Scores were 6-1, 6-4, 7-5.

Keeps Czech on Run.

Kozeluh faced a different player yesterday as Nusslein mixed soft slices to midcourt with stinging drives to the corners and kept the Czech on the run throughout the match. Kozeluh's lift shots carried about half the speed that Nusslein put on his flat drives.

Kozeluh made many apparently impossible gets on Nusslein's slants into the corners, often sending up beautiful deep lobs after barely getting his racket on the ball. After taking the first two sets, 6-4, 6-2, Nusslein got off to a bad start in the third and played carelessly, throwing it when the count reached 4-1 against him to save his strength for the fourth set.

Kozeluh used undercut slices and chops with his usual lift drives to hold Nusslein even to 4—all in the fourth set, and pile up a 40-0 lead in the next game. Nusslein then rallied to make it 30-40. On the next point the ball crossed the net 81 times before Nusslein tucked away a short one at the net to lead, 5-4. Kozeluh pulled even at five-all on his service, but Nusslein was not to be denied and won the last two for set and match, 7-5.

Pare, Barnes Triumph.

Pare and Barnes defeated their strongest rivals for the doubles title in the semi-finals Friday when they eliminated Nusslein and Kozeluh. The smooth working American youngsters had little difficulty with Vines and Heston, in the first set, volleying and smashing with speed and precision. Pare's ground strokes and Barnes' punched volleys accounted for victory in the next two. The point score of the Nusslein-Kozeluh match:

FIRST SET.
Nusslein—2, 4, 4, 7, 5, 5, 4, 0, 3, 4—38.
Kozeluh—4, 1, 2, 5, 7, 3, 2, 4, 5, 2—35.

SECOND SET.
Nusslein—2, 4, 4, 0, 4, 6, 6, 4—30.
Kozeluh—4, 0, 1, 4, 2, 4, 4, 2—21.

THIRD SET.
Nunslein—1, 2, 4, 2, 1, 1, 0—11.
Kozeluh—4, 4, 2, 4, 4, 4, 4—26.

FOURTH SET.
Nusslein—6, 5, 6, 2, 1, 4, 4, 2, 6, 1, 4, 4—45.
Kozeluh—4, 7, 4, 4, 4, 2, 0, 4, 4, 4, 1, 0—38.

HELEN JACOBS, LOTT WIN U. S. DOUBLES TITLE

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP)—George Lott of Chicago and Helen Jacobs, American women's champion of Berkeley, Cal., today won the mixed national doubles tennis championship by defeating Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles and Elizabeth Ryan of England, 4-6, 13-11, 6-1, at Germantown Cricket club.

Herbert, Player in First Football Game, Dies

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—John Warne Herbert, lawyer and business executive who played in the first intercollegiate football game on Nov. 6, 1869, at New Brunswick, N. J., died today after an illness of less than two weeks. He was in his eighty-second year. Herbert played for the New Brunswick team in the historic match almost 65 years ago, in which Rutgers defeated Princeton, 6 to 4. Each team had 25 players.

CONGRATS, CHARLEY! NOW LET'S WIN!

Catcher Gabby Hartnett (left) congratulates Charley Grimm upon his selection to lead the Cubs for another year. Grimm's appointment for 1935 was announced just before the game with the Giants at Wrigley field yesterday. The Cubs then stepped out and defeated the league leaders, 7 to 1.

MAX SCHMELING STOPS NEUSEL IN NINTH ROUND

HAMBURG, Germany, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Max Schmeling, black uhlan of the Rhine, began his climb back toward the world heavyweight championship today by stopping blond Walter Neusel after eight rounds of their 12 round bout before a crowd of more than 100,000. Schmeling weighed 193.8 pounds; Neusel, 198.

Battered to the point of exhaustion by his rival's savage body punching, Neusel did not answer the bell for the ninth round and Schmeling was awarded the victory on a technical knockout.

Max Pounds at Body.

The former world title holder's triumph, carrying with it the German heavyweight championship, precipitated Schmeling once more into the forefront of challengers for Max Baer's crown. Schmeling will sail for the United States next month.

Schmeling fought a heady battle against his youthful opponent. He made Neusel do the leading and then cracked the blond about the body as he came in wide open. He opened a cut on Neusel's chin in the second round and another gash over Walter's right eye.

Neusel Takes Punishment.

Neusel, awkward against Schmeling's smart and skilful boxing, absorbed punishment from the start. He was completely exhausted at the end of the eighth round and could not come out for the ninth.

It was Neusel's open style plus his efforts for an early knockout that brought about the youngster's downfall.

Nekoosa's Prize Pitcher Gets Chance on Mat--Hi, Strangler!

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

One Sunday afternoon in the summer of 1906, the town baseball team of Nekoosa, Wis., assembled and hied itself over to the neighboring village of Pittsville, there to do battle with the local nine in a rivalry which was then as bitter throughout Wood county as the contemporary vendetta between the Cubs and Mr. Comiskey's Hitless Wonders.

Nekoosa was relying on the stout arm of one Bob Friedrich, a fifteen year old who was unusually large for his age. When the game was called, Robert didn't spare that member, shutting out the enemy while his colleagues were lambasting the entire Pittsville pitching staf for something like 17 runs. Unfortunately, while the Nekoosa lads were savoring the fruits of victory, they were informed that the game's receipts would not blanket the expenses of the victors, which had been previously guaranteed.

A Bright Idea.

Obviously, something would have to be done to see the guests home. A bright mind in the conference which followed then suggested a wrestling match. Pittsville, on its team, had one George Brown, who was not only a good ball player, but a very good wrestler as well, having already acquitted himself nobly as a professional, working with Fred Beal, then a headliner in the business. They named Brown to exchange grips with whomsoever Nekoosa would choose to send against him, the proceeds of the joust to go to the winning team. Nekoosa promptly nominated Friedrich.

The match was held on the floor of the town hall, with only a section of tarpaulin to ward off splinters. There may have been no fancy, plush roped enclosure for the combatants, but there were $40 worth of customers in attendance, and that was more than sufficient for the purpose.

Ouch! Those Pins!

Looking at the two, you might have said it was not a fair go, for in addition to his professional experience, Brown was about twenty years old and weighed 190 pounds, a margin of nearly 25 pounds over the youthful Friedrich. There was another and more personal handicap for the junior member of the party, for whereas Brown was equipped with orthodox wrestling trunks, Friedrich had been forced to come forth in a snug pair of underdrawers, reinforced by a battery of safety pins.

Throughout the first ten minutes of the match, he had not only Brown to contend with, but also the danger of the pins coming asunder. At the end of those ten minutes, he had averted this horror, and found himself with a headlock on Brown, a hold which came natural to him even at that age. A spectator held a watch on the duration of that grip, and after he had sustained it for 26 crushing minutes, Brown collapsed, and Nekoosa went home with the purse and a double victory.

This Makes Him 43.

Thus began the grappling career of Robert Herman Julius Friedrich, who was to make the name of Ed [Strangler] Lewis, which he later adopted, the best known and most feared in the game.

It was on June 30, 1891, that the

GRIMM SIGNS TO LEAD CUBS FOR ANOTHER SEASON

Hopes for Pennant Drive a la 1932.

Manager Charles John Grimm will manage the Cubs the remainder of this year, all of next year and perhaps longer. This was decided yesterday morning at a meeting attended by Grimm, Phil K. Wrigley, chairman of the Cub board, and President William M. Walker.

First news of the decision, made at this time to dissipate rumors that have been sailing about since Grimm's "mystery vacation" a week ago today, was revealed in the press stand just before game time, when the following formal message was passed around:

"President W. M. Walker of the Cubs announced early Sunday morning that Charles J. Grimm had been engaged to manage the Cubs in 1935."

Will Be His Eleventh Year.

Club officials later amplified the formal statement by saying that Grimm had been tendered a contract for next year with an option on his services for an indefinite period beyond that term.

Grimm thus became assured of his eleventh year of employment with the Cubs to whom he came as a player in November, 1924, in a deal which also brought Rabbit Maranville and Wilbur Cooper to the Cubs and sent Aldridge, Grantham, and Niehaus to the Pirates.

Grimm succeeded Rogers Hornsby as manager of the Cubs on the night of Aug. 2, 1932, when the Cubs were in second place five games back of the leading Pirates. The Cubs, like the present team, had been spending most of the time whispering about the manager and speculating on the name of incumbent's probable successor.

Just What They Needed.

Announcement of Grimm's rise to the managership immediately had the desired effect. The players quit gossiping and went back to playing baseball. The result was that they went into first place on Aug. 11 by a margin of a half game. Later they staged a great home stand and won the 1932 National league pennant by a margin of four games, a net gain of nine games in less than eight weeks in comparison with the team they overtook.

The rumorsmiths twice this year have had Grimm hanging on by his eyelashes. In June, when the team flopped badly, there were many rumors of his ousting. These quieted down when the team appeared to have awakened on its second eastern trip, but bobbed up again when the lads went dead on their return to Chicago.

Too Many Announcements.

Then, a week ago last night, President Walker announced that Grimm had been given a vacation that he might go to his home in St. Louis to doctor his depressed spirits and aching joints. He said Gabby Hartnett would be acting manager. The next day, Grimm, in St. Louis, said he'd simply gone there to peddle a passel of land. And last Monday night Owner Wrigley announced that he had insisted upon Grimm's leaving town to rest his nerves and muscles. To further confuse the picture, Grimm showed up in Chicago last Tuesday morning.

The rumors which had been fabricated before and while Grimm was in St. Louis were quieted somewhat by his sudden return, but have flared several times, with the players the leading gossipers.

CLARK TO COACH CINCINNATI REDS' FOOTBALL TEAM

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Myers [Algy] Clark, former Ohio State player, has been named coach of the Cincinnati Reds of the National Professional league here, it was announced by Myron Greentree, the team's general manager.

Clark is quarter back of the Cincinnati eleven, and played football under Dr. J. W. Wilce at Ohio State for three years, 1924, 1925, and 1926. He will succeed Mike Palm, who goes to West Virginia. Clark previously played with the Brooklyn Dodgers, Boston Braves, and in 1931 with a Cleveland team.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Lon Warneke yesterday met the Giants and licked them with the kind of pitching the 43,000 fans present hoped he'd show the world champions. Licked 'em, 7 to 1, Lon and his associates did, and with a skimp allotment of three hits, two of which were knocked by Mel Ott.

Lon was magnificent as a pitcher and he was no slouch with his bat. He drove in the third run in the fifth and he drove in the fourth and fifth runs when he singled off Fitzsimmons with the bases full in the sixth. Nonessential runs, as it turned out, but great little comforters for the Cubs and depressers for the spirited champs.

Warneke walked no one and the Cubs made no errors. Only three runners reached base, therefore, and Ott, who scored the lone run, was the only New Yorker to reach second.

Three More for Charley.

Warneke was closely coupled with his boss for stellar honors in the fine show. Manager Charles Grimm, who got back in the game Saturday with a perfect day at bat against the Dodgers, turned in another perfect offensive under the exhileration of his reappointment as manager, announced just before the game, but which he probably knew about when he had his perfect day Saturday.

Grimm, just as he did on Saturday, made three hits and drew a pass in four trips to the plate. But they were much more productive hits yesterday than they were the day before.

In the second inning old creaking Charles, with the creaks all gone, drove George Stainback home with the first run of the game with a wicked line single to left. In the fourth he again scored Stainback with the second Chicago run and put Hartnett on third, whence he later scored. This time Charles knocked a double. In the sixth he was given an intentional pass and later scored, and in the seventh he wound up with a single. He made several fine plays at first, one of which was a bare handed stop of Watkins' potential double, which he converted into a side-retiring putout.

Stainback Has Perfect Day.

Stainback wasn't far behind Warneke and Grimm in the hero bracket. The speedy youngster also had a perfect day, with two singles, a sacrifice, and a walk. He scored three times and stole a base.

The Giants took their spanking rather calmly, which perhaps was the only way they could take it in view of the kind of pitching Warneke was firing at them. Then, too, they had the knowledge that they still are 5½ games ahead of the Cubs and soon will be back on their beloved Polo grounds for a long stand.

The Cubs can claim something or other in their hand-to-hand competition with the champs, however, no

ILLINOIS OWNERS TUNE HORSES FOR STATE HANDICAP

Stake to End Hawthorne Season Saturday.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Friends and neighbors quit speaking to one another. Royally bred horses in the barn of a rival owner were referred to as plugs. Jockies in rival stables had the ugly turf term "horsebacker" hurled at them. Stable boys began wagering their next month's wages on the horses they were allowed to exercise. Attendants rubbed kinks and sore spots out of bad legged horses to the tune of "There'll be a hot time in this old barn Saturday night."

Just for Illinois Owners.

Indeed there will be a celebration in some barn on the Hawthorne back stretch on that date for the Illinois handicap, to which only horses owned by a citizen of this state are eligible, will be up for its fifth running at that time. The summer racing season also ends at Hawthorne on next Saturday afternoon.

Few races run each year in Chicago attract more attention than this local fixture and few events develop into heavier betting affairs, not only through the pari-mutuel wagering machines, but through horse against horse bets. In one renewal a few seasons back one owner had a $1,000 wager on his horses against every other horse in the race. His nag finished second, so he lost one bet but collected a thousand dollars from every other owner in the race.

Marmion Likely Favorite.

C. B. Shaffer, wealthy Illinois oil magnate, will probably be represented by the favorite in the race. His colorbearer will be Marmion, which at some time or another has beaten most of the handicap performers at Hawthorne. Marmion also likely will carry top weight. Spiceon, owned by L. M. Severson, Charleigh, from William Schmidt's Superior stable, Jens Son, owned by Clarence Davidson, General Parth and Hoops from the stable of James Norris Jr., Pot au Brooms, owned by R. T. Watts, and Evergold and Minton, from the Nash brothers' stable, are others that will have their following.

A good light weight impost will likely find the consistent plater Curb Bit, owned by Sherif Lester Tiffany of Waukegan, in the struggle, and other owners of lower grade platers no doubt will try for the $2,000 added prize, provided Racing Secretary Francis Dunne gives they what they think is a break in the weights. J. D. Mikel has indicated he may send two horses from Narragansett to go in the race.

12 to 15 to Start.

Entries for the Illinois handicap close tomorrow. There is an entrance fee of $10 and a starting fee of $25. The race will probably attract from a dozen to fifteen starters.

The handicap, which is at a mile and a sixteenth, was first run in 1930 and was won by Martie Flynn, owned by Stuyvesant Peabody of Chicago. A year later Chief John, owned by John Marsch of Chicago, triumphed. Next came two downstate victories. My Dandy captured the prize for Reickert brothers of Bellville in 1932. Last year Indian Runner won it for George Ogle, who also hails from the southern part of the state.

Indian Guides Hold Meeting as Rain Falls

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NIPIGON RIVER, Ontario, Aug. 26.—A heavy rain is spattering on the roof of the little cabin. Peals of thunder roll over the hills and down the Nipigon river. Every few minutes brilliant flashes of lightning show through the small windows of the cabin, against which the rain maintains a steady beat.

Standing around in a semicircle inside of this cozy cabin are eight dark skinned Ojibway guides. Their evening conference is in session, and we have a ringside seat for this interesting meeting. It has as its sole objective bigger and better fishing trips for visiting anglers, and bigger and fatter specimens of giant brook trout for these same fishermen.

The question to be decided is which guide is going where and how long is he going to stay on his fishing trip with his party of dudes.

Tom Has a Round Face.

Looking around the semicircle we see Indians of all sizes and all degrees of conversation. Tom it sitting next to us. He is tall, round faced, rather jolly looking. Now and then he turns his head and speaks in the Ojibway tongue to the wiry young guide next to him. Then they both laugh. Tom apparently has a sense of humor.

Strange names are heard as plans are laid for the trips this coming week. For instance, we hear of Blue Dan and Red Dan, two guides now on St. Ignace island. They are due to return within 24 hours. Tom, the fat faced guide, is holding out for a companion guide who is noted as a good camp cook. Tom has a big fishing party and five guides will be needed to pack the duffel over portages, paddle canoes, and cook.

The next question is: Who knows the Steel river? This stream is east of the Nipigon. It flows into Lake Superior. After a couple of portages one gets into some beautiful trout water on the Steel.

Meeting Ends; They File Out.

One young Ojibway says he knows the Steel, so he gets the New York surgeon who is going to spend ten days on that river. This guide has a choice of three fellows for a helper. There is a quiet laugh and many smiles when he picks his partner without hesitation. It's 10:30 before the guide conference is over and every party is established. Then the Indians file out into the rain to get their outfits ready for an early morning start.

Joe Foley to Fly East to Seek Day-Sigilio Battle

Joe Foley, co-promoter with Soldier Mickey Farr of the Frank Sigilio-Davey Day battle at Mills stadium a few weeks ago, will leave by airplane this morning for New York. He will confer there with managers of Day on the completion of plans for the presentation of another contest between Sigilio and Davey late in September or early in October. At the same time Foley will offer terms to Paul Bowser, manager of Ed [Don] George, heavyweight wrestler, for a match with the winner of the Ed [Strangler] Lewis-Jim Londos title bout at Wrigley field Sept. 20.

Harvard Baseball Team Loses, 12 to 3, to Hosei

TOKIO, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Hosei university's baseball team defeated Harvard today, 12 to 3. The visitors' ragged defense kept their pitchers in trouble throughout the game.

Joe Louis and Buck Everett Clash Tonight

Joe Louis, Detroit, Mich., Negro boxer, tonight will get a good idea of his heavyweight championship possibilities in the professional field only a few months after winning Golden Gloves and National A. A. U. light heavyweight titles. For Louis, with only four pro battles under his belt, in all of which he was victorious, will meet the crafty veteran, Buck Everett of Gary, Ind., in his second contest at eight rounds at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

Whereas Lou fought a total of just fourteen rounds since leaving amateur competition July 4 when he stopped Jack Kracken in one round on the south side. Everett has extended some of the best boxers in the country during his four years' professional activity. Everett whipped Donald [Red] Barry of Washington, D. C., at Shewbridge field Aug. 9. This does not seem important, but when it is pointed out that last month Barry was ranked tenth in the heavyweight division the accomplishment is an outstanding one.

What appears one of the best encounters on the program will bring together Johnny Gaudes, chunky Milwaukee bantamweight, and Lenny Cohen of Chicago for six rounds in the semi-final. Other contests include:

Bill Treest vs. Ernie Evans [4], 170.
Milt Aaron vs. Eddie Smith [4], 137.
Rudy Kay vs. Jack [Bad Boy] Brown [wrestling].

Johnny Phagan, west side middleweight, tonight will engage in his first encounter in a month against Billy Hood, Orlando, Fla., for eight rounds at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Hood has demonstrated in previous Chicago matches that Phagan will have to be at his best if he expects to win. Another eight rounder between Tony Zale, Gary 160 pound boxer, and Wilbur Stokes will share honors with the Phagan-Hood bout.

Roughhouse Glover, Jacksonville, Fla., 155 pound fighter, will make his first local appearance in a six round bout with Bobby Millsap. One of Glover's best feats was a 10 round triumph over Sammy [Kid] Slaughter at Cincinnati, O., March 7. Two slugging middleweights, Jack Moran and Lou Bartel, will meet in a five rounder. A four round scrap pairs Jackie Dallas with Jimmy Richards at 130 pounds.

Promoter Sam Abruscato has arranged his program for tomorrow at Western stadium. Tommy Corbett, Omaha, Neb., lightweight, and Patrick Henry, Chicago 144 pound fighter, will clash in the eight round main event. Mickey Beal opposes Oscar O'Hanion in a bantamweight contest and Frank Knauer faces Steve Padon in a junior welterweight tussle, both of which are scheduled for five rounds. Millie Van Unick, Kewanee, Ill., 135 pounder, and Johnny Gould are matched at four rounds. Another at this distance brings into action Phil Pernice and Dave White, lightweights.

After an encounter with Frank Misko at Mills stadium on Sept. 7 Hayden [Young] Stuhley will meet Al Diamond at Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 11. . . . Dave Barry, Springfield, Ill., 126 pound boxer, probably will box Ross Fields on the card. . . . Allen Matthews, St. Louis, Mo., is being sought to fight Henry Rothier at Quincy, Ill., Sept. 6 at 150 pounds.

C. Y. O. SPONSORS TOURNEY TODAY AT BRAE BURN

Warren Dawson Breaks Glen Oak Course Record

Warren Dawson of Glen Oak, twice holder of the Illinois state amateur title, yesterday set a course record at Woodbridge, shooting a 71, two under par, to break the old mark of par held by Bert Sturm. His card follows:

Par out	554	353	544—38
Par in	434	345	435—35—73
Dawson out	445	453	433—35
Dawson in	433	364	535—36—71

Warren was sinking putts from all over, but encountered a bad break at the 14th, where his second shot landed on the green ten feet from the pin, in the print of a pitch shot, requiring four putts to hole out. He played with his brother George, Jimmy Woods, and Mel Noel. George had 74 and the others 78.

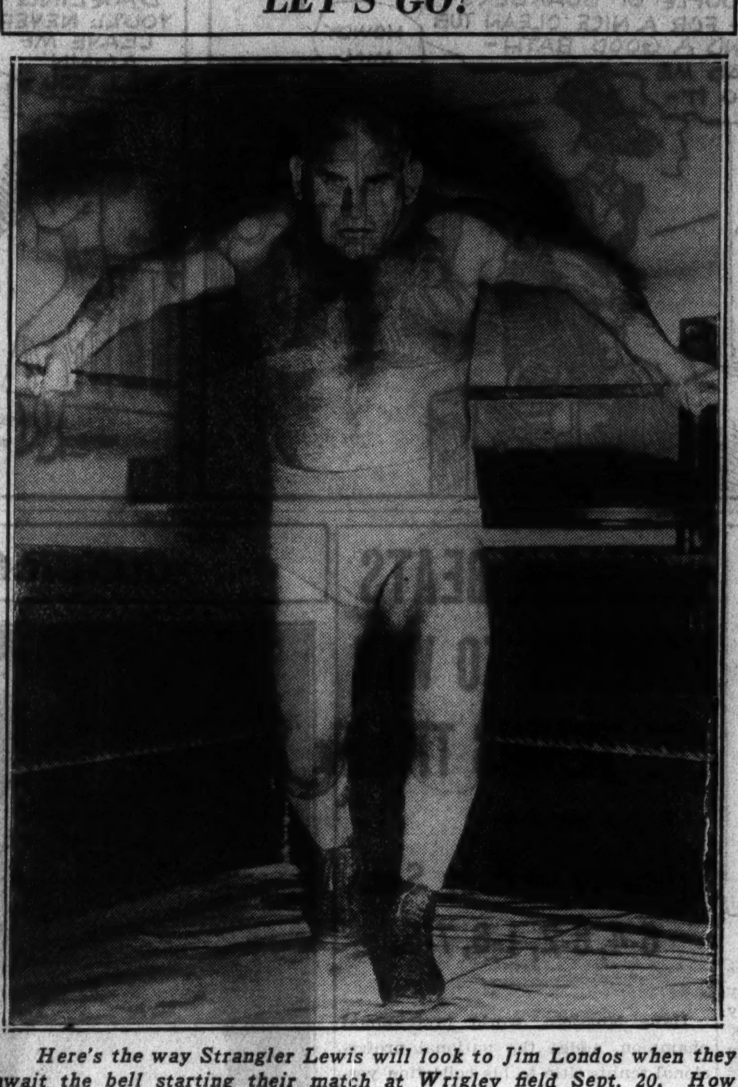
LET'S GO!



Here's the way Strangler Lewis will look to Jim Londos when they await the bell starting their match at Wrigley field Sept. 20. How would you like to be in the other corner?

Ever Hear of Bob Friedrich, the Pitcher?

Nekoosa home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Friedrich, sturdy natives of Oppenheim, Germany, first echoed to the robust bawling of Robert Herman Julius. It would be well for skeptics who have long been under the delusion that he is more than 50 to make a note of that date. It's less than two months ago, then, that the Strangler reached his 43rd birthday, which makes him a mere youth in wrestling, when you consider the Zbyszkos, who are just beginning to settle down to some serious work in their sixties.

Lewis ascribes the mistaken conception of his age to the fact that he has wrestled for more than a quarter of a century, beginning with his boyish debut at Pittsville, and possibly to a confusion of his name with that of the famed Evan [Strangler] Lewis. Ed has developed a remarkable self-control in answering queries as to his age, particularly when brash young journalists ask him, "What are you now, Strangler, 55 or 60?" Such questions, seriously asked, are without reason, for the Strangler does not look much over 40.

Quick! The Darning Needle!

The Friedrich boyhood in Nekoosa was a perfect beginning for the future champion, for he spent most of his time outdoors in the woods country adjacent to the town, developing the huge chest and shoulders and arms all of which were to prove integral parts of his prize hold, the headlock. He evinced quite early in life a relish for personal combat, frequently arriving at the parental manse with his clothes soiled and tattered.

These arrivals always were punctuated by a thorough whipping at the hands of the elder Friedrich, who could never discover where the torn clothes had their origin. He found out one day, to the Strangler's everlasting embarrassment. He was walking by the schoolyard during recess, when whom should he see atop a couple of other boys but his heir. So, said Herr Friedrich, and mounting the fence, hopped into the yard, and there, in front of the assembled teachers, boys and girls, seized his progeny and smote that one's pantaloons long and loudly. The Strangler hasn't lived down that episode to this day.

Young Friedrich's victory over Brown at Pittsville resulted in more profit than his team's expenses that day. It was presently followed by an offer from the Elks club of Wisconsin Rapids to wrestle no less than Fred Beal, who was then the state mat terror. Bob accepted immediately. Thus ended the roughhouse tactics of boyhood, and the career of the young Strangler was begun.

DICK METZ AND RENA NELSON WIN RIDGEMOOR GOLF

The Chicago district found in its first pro-woman golf tournament of the season, held yesterday at the Ridgemoor Country club, an event which met with such enthusiastic response that others may be held before the season is concluded. Eddie Gayer, Mrs. Korman Card 66.

YACHTS YANKEE, RAINBOW TAKE DAY OFF; NO WIND

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Absence of a breeze gave the surviving candidates for the defense of the America's cup—Yankee and Rainbow—a respite today. A scheduled contest between the two boats was called off after the race committee attempted to measure a nonexistent wind.

Owing to the elimination of Frederick Prince's Weetamoe, beaten in three successive races in the final trials, only the Boston boat, Yankee, sailed by Charles Francis Adams, and Rainbow, owned by a syndicate headed by Harold S. Vanderbilt, remain in the competition for the honor and responsibility of defending the cup against Tom Sopwith's British Endeavour.

Yankee has beaten both Weetamoe and Rainbow in the final trials and has suffered no defeat. Its long string of victories during the earlier observation races combine to put her far ahead in the defense quest.

GEHRIG'S THREE HOMERS WHIP SOX, 9-5 AND 2-0

Tietje Loses 5 Hit Game to Ruffing.

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—There are no pleasant tidings concerning the White Sox today. The Chicagoans were victims in both games of a double-header at Yankee Stadium, 9 to 5 and 2 to 0, and thus the New Yorkers still cling to hopes of a championship.

Columbia Lou Gehrig used the Chicago pitchers as foils for his home run quest, hitting two in the first game and one in the second to run his total to 42. In 1928, when Babe Ruth hit 60 home runs for a major league record, he hit his 42d on Aug. 29, but in the 121st game of the season. Gehrig's 42d came in the Yanks' 123d game, so he is two games behind Ruth's record pace.

Gehrig's homer in the second game came in the fourth inning and thus wrote another tragic story for young Les Tietje, who lost his third straight heart-breaker of the trip. The Yanks added another in the seventh on two walks, a single, and an outfield fly.

Tietje gave up only five hits, but he couldn't match the skill of Red Ruffing, who yielded only three hits. Al Simmons was the only Sox who reached second base against Ruffing. Tietje previously lost to the Athletics 2 to 1, and to the Red Sox, 3 to 2, both on errors. It was his 11th loss of the season, against five victories.

Simmons Has Sad Day.

It also was a sad afternoon for Simmons who made only one hit in nine times at bat, thus losing ground in his quest for the American league batting championship.

The Sox started off at a merry clip against Lefty Gomez in the first game, scoring two runs in the first inning and one in the second. But Gehrig's homer in the first inning off Sad Sam Jones after Ruth had tripled and a six run assault in the second off Jones and Joe Heving cinched Gomez's 22d victory of the season.

FIRST GAME

The White Sox set Gomez on his heels in the first two innings, but he and the Yankees quickly rectified matters with six runs off Jones and Heving in the second inning, removing all doubt as to the ultimate winner.

Swanson beat out a roller toward first to start the game. After Haas flied out and Simmons fanned, Appling walked. Dykes hit a drive to left center that crossed the cinder track, scoring Swanson and Appling. Dykes tried for a home run and was called out on a doubtful play at the plate. He stormed for several minutes.

Ruth Spears One.

There was more woe for Gomez in the second. Hayes singled, Hopkins walked, and Madjeski sacrificed. A pass to Jones filled the bases. Hayes scored while Lazzeri was throwing out Swanson, then a pass to Haas filled the bases again. It was all over, though, when Ruth galloped back to spear Simmons' drive.

Eleven Yankees batted in the second, Chapman starting the parade with a single to left. On the hit and run he went to third as Hayes tossed out Lazzeri. Gomez popped to Appling after Jorgens walked. Crosetti's fly to right bounced along the boards for a triple, scoring both runners. This was followed by walks to Saltzgaver and Ruth, after which Jones surrendered.

Heving's first act was to wild pitch Crosetti home and then Gehrig was purposely passed. Selkirk beat out a slow bounder to Hopkins good for another run, and Chapman, up for the second time, dropped a double in short center, scoring Ruth and Gehrig.

Gehrig Hits Another.

There were plenty of threats, but no more scoring until the seventh, when the Sox made two with the aid of Ruth. Haas doubled to left and advanced while Simmons grounded out, his fourth failure. Appling's third straight single scored Haas and when the ball escaped Ruth, Appling went to third. He scored on Dykes' single to right.

Gehrig got back one of these runs in the eighth by cracking his 41st homer into the right center field bleachers. Singles by Selkirk and Chapman and a walk to Lazzeri filled the bases, but Heving retired the next two men.

Deshong pitched the last two innings and cut the Sox down in order.

SECOND GAME

The Sox made a threat in the first inning, Simmons singling and Appling walking after two were out, but Dykes popped to Crosetti. They went down in order until the fifth, when Shea singled to left. Swanson opened the sixth with a single to right, but Haas grounded into a double play, started by Gehrig. Hopkins walked in the eighth, but was doubled on Shea's fly to right, Simmons thus being the only Sox reaching second.

When the Sox were retired one-two-three in the seventh, the score was 1 to 0 against them because of Gehrig's 42d home run in the fourth inning, a drive deep into the right field crowd. Lazzeri then singled and Selkirk was hit by a pitched ball, but Shea took Byrd's foul for the third out.

Outside of Gehrig's home run and Selkirk's triple with two out in the second, the Yankees were held in check by Tietje until the seventh, when the New Yorkers filled the bases with none out, but made only one run. Lazzeri walked and went to third when Selkirk singled over second. Ruth came in to bat for Byrd and walked. Lazzeri scored on Jorgens' long fly. Haas then pulled down Ruffing's long drive. Hoag, running for the Babe, wandered too far off first and was nipped by Shea.

WarnekeStops Giants with 3 Hits; Cubs Win

matter how weak the rest of the league has been against the Giants or how drowsy the Cubs have been in competition with the also rans of the circuit. The victory was the fourth straight the Cubs have won from the Giants at Wrigley field and the eighth in 15 games played with the Giants this season.

Ott First to See First.

Not a Giant reached first in the first four innings. The first arrival at first was Ott, who beat out an infield scratch to start the fifth. Mel was forced by Jackson and Jackson never got off first, thanks mostly to a great leaping catch by Galan of Watkins' drive toward right, the second time George had been robbed by superior fielding.

It was three up and three down for the Giants in the sixth. Critz fanned and Warneke tossed out Terry to start the seventh but Ott doubled into the overflow crowd in center for his and the Giants' second hit. Jackson then delivered the Giants' third and last hit, scoring Ott. Galan then tossed out Watkins. It was three up and three down the rest of the way for the New Yorkers.

Stainback Scores in Second.

Stainback led off the second with a single to left and stopped at second while Hartnett was beating out a single which bounced away from Jackson. Grimm then got his first hit, scoring Stainback. Jurges hit into a double play and Warneke grounded out.

Babe Herman walked to start the fourth and moved up on Stainback's sacrifice. Hartnett also walked. Then Grimm doubled to left, Herman scoring and Hartnett sliding into third. Fitzsimmons gave Jurges an intentional pass, filling the bases. Warneke flied to Moore, Hartnett scoring after the catch because Mancuso juggled the ball after Moore's perfect throw. The official scorer did not give Mancuso an error, however. The inning ended with Hack's fly to Moore.

Warneke Drives in Two.

Stainback got the sixth under way with a single past Jackson and advanced on Hartnett's sacrifice. Grimm was given an intentional pass. The bases were full when Jurges beat out a hit to Jackson. Warneke singled to left, Stainback and Grimm scoring and Jurges stopping at second. Hack was called out on strikes and Vergez threw out Galan.

Cuyler opened the seventh with a single to left. Herman lined to Fitzsimmons but Stainback walked. Cuyler and Stainback put on a double steal and when Mancuso threw the ball past Vergez, Cuyler scored and Stainback reached third. Stainback scored on Hartnett's fly to Ott. Grimm rounded out his perfect day with a single over second but was forced by Jurges.

It was Warneke's 17th victory of the year and Fitzsimmons' 10th defeat. Each entered the game with a record of 16 won and 9 lost.

Cardinals and Dodgers Split; Braves Beat Pirates, 8 to 5

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Brooklyn's Dodgers came to St. Louis today and greeted the Cardinals with a hitting splurge in the first inning of a double header that produced six runs and enabled them to win the first game, 11 to 5, only to have the tables turned in the second game, which they lost to the home team, 7 to 2.

On their first time at bat the Dodgers hammered Carleton from the Cardinal mound after two outs were made.

The Cardinals opened the scoring in the second game with a first inning run, made another two innings later, and maintained their safe lead. In the seventh inning singles by Frisch, Medwick, Davis, and Fullis produced four runs to settle the contest and close the scoring. Scores:

Hubbell Pitches Today; Lee Gets Cub Nomination

Bill Lee and Carl Hubbell are scheduled to hook up this afternoon in the second game of the Cubs-Giants series. The last time these gents met, in New York on July 17, Lee and the Cubs were the victors, 2 to 1, Hubbell going out for a pinch batter in the seventh inning. Lee allowed only seven hits. Terry went hitless that day and the great little Mr. Ott got only one hit, a single with one out in the eighth. This would seem a good basis for today's quota, say Mr. Lee's constituents.

Manager Bill Terry was given a big hand when he went to bat the first time yesterday. Even those who dislike Mr. Terry are obliged to admit he is a pretty swell manager.

It was an early crowd. The stands were virtually full at 2 o'clock and the overflow onto the field began before 2:30 o'clock.

EAST ALL-STAR TEAM WINS, 1-0, BEFORE 25,000

Pitching triumphed over slugging yesterday at Comiskey park as the East defeated the West, 1 to 0, in the second annual All-Star game between picked teams of the Negro National league. A crowd of 25,000 saw the game which evened the series started last year.

Foster Yields Run.

The winning run was scored off Foster in the eighth inning after Trent and Brewer had held the Eastern club in check. A base on balls to J. Well, who led off the eighth, a stolen base and a single by Wilson accounted for the only run.

The West might have won had it not been for the pitching of Paige. He entered the game in the sixth inning after the first batter had doubled. Paige fanned the next batter and two lifted easy flies.

West's Threat Stifled.

Only two hits were made off Paige. Foster beat out a bunt for the first hit off him in the eighth and Mule Suttles, the Babe Ruth of the Negro league, made his third hit in the ninth. In the meantime Paige, whose fast ball was working effectively, struck out five.

A brilliant play in the fourth inning stifled the West's best scoring chance. Suttles had tripled with one out. It seemed a run was forthcoming when Parnell smashed a drive to deep right. But Crutchfield speared the ball and rifled it home to catch Suttles. Score:

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WHENEVER Brooklyn wins a ball game the folks down in Kankakee throw out their chests and tell the world that Manager Casey Stengel was discovered there when he performed with the town's club in the old Missouri league. . . . Zeke Bonura's runs batted in percentage per times at bat is .223. . . . Although Al Simmons is hitting more than 50 points higher than Bonura, his runs batted in average is 21 points lower. . . . Gabby Hartnett is leading the Cubs in this respect with a mark of .209. . . . Three golfers at the Davenport, Ia., Country club recently had their putting disturbed by the sight of a bull snake eating a rabbit. . . . Thirty-four years ago Ardo W. Mitchell of Rock Island played his first golf match at the Arsenal course. . . . He recently won the championship for the eighth time, defeating a 19 year old rival. . . . Hub Pruett, the southpaw who struck out Babe Ruth nearly every time he faced him, is practicing medicine in St. Louis. . . .

When the late William Veeck was president of the Cubs he instructed Jack Doyle, club scout, who was on the Pacific coast at the time, to stop off at Fort Worth, Tex., on his return to Chicago and look over a player named Washington. . . . Doyle, thinking it a good joke, wrote back that he would stop off at Fort Worth to see Washington and that when he reached Springfield he would stop off to see Lincoln. . . . "I was almost fired for that bit of fun," Doyle explained later. . . . In 1925 Fred Marberry, then of the Senators but now with the Tigers, worked in 55 games without pitching a full contest. . . . Victor Barna of Hungary has held the world's table tennis championship for the last four years. . . . Sailors on the Endeavour never pose for pictures until they have had permission of their skipper, T. O. M. Sopwith. . . . Jimmy Foxx twice this year has spoiled no hit games for Yankee pitchers, Jimmy De Shong and Lefty Gomez. . . .

If bases on balls were counted hits, as they were in 1887, Babe Ruth would have a lifetime average of .473 and an all-time high for a single season of .543, based on his performance during 1923. . . . Soccer football is the most popular intramural sport at Bradley Tech. . . . The feature of the Illinois football poster, soon to be displayed over the state, is a picture of Coach Zuppke in a characteristic pose talking to the Illinois captains, Chuck Bennis and Jack Beynon. . . . There will be at least one radio announcer at the football game between the Bears and College All-Stars who will know whether the collegians are maneuvering correctly. . . . He is Elmer Layden of Notre Dame, who will be at the mike for W-G-N. . . . The college team is using the Notre Dame offense as taught by two of its outstanding disciples, Noble Kizer of Purdue and Jimmy Crowley of Fordham. . . .

There will be three Peterson brothers from Long Beach, Cal., out for football at the University of Chicago this fall, Bartlett and Gordon with the varsity and Kendall with the frosh. . . . Brutus Hamilton, California track coach, is a Phi Beta Kappa. . . . Followers of Jimmy Phelan's University of Washington eleven will have to grapple this fall with such names as Sulkosky, Starcevich, Muczybski, Lazarevich, Papajani, Nowogroski, Rohrscheib, and Mondolla. . . . Julie Bescos, captain of the Southern California team, is doubling for Robert Young in "Death on the Diamond," a movie now in production. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—George Lott Jr. of Chicago advanced to the fourth round of the national men's singles championship. . . . Jocky Earl Pool rode three winners on the six race program at Hawthorne. . . . Gerald Cudahy of Chicago bought the 3 year old filly Glide from the Harned Brothers of Kentucky for a reported price of $25,000. . . . Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals was hitting the ball at a .430 clip. . . . Young Stribling and Paul Berlenbach fought a six round draw in New York.

Blues Defeat Whites, 13-9, in East Polo

Port Washington, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Led by Mike Phipps, who scored eight goals at No. 1, the youthful Blues further strengthened their chances of being the eastern quartet in the coming east-west polo series by whipping Earle Hopping's Whites, 13 to 9, in an eight chukker match today.

It was not until the seventh period that the combination of Phipps, Jimmy Mills, Ebby Gerry, and Bill Post gained a commanding lead. As a result of the victory this lineup now seems definitly slated to start for the east in the opening match against the west, Sept. 8, unless Tommy Hitchcock recovers sufficiently from a concussion to supplant Gerry at No. 3.

Hopping was tossed from his pony in the first period, but was unhurt. Mills added a novel touch by hitting a goal for each side. In the fourth period, he accidentally sliced the ball through his own goal trying to make a save.

Lineup:

Michael Phipps....No. 1.....Seymour Knox
James P. Mills.....No. 2.....E. A. S. Hopping
E. T. Gerry..........No. 3....Stewart Iglehart
R. E. Strawbridge ..back.....William Post II

Score by periods:

Whites ....1 1 2 1 2 1 1 0— 9

Goals—Phipps, 8; Gerry, Post, 3; Knox, Hopping, 2; Iglehart, 3; Strawbridge, 2; Mills [scored one for each side]. Free hits—Strawbridge, 2 in 2; Post, 1 in 1.

WEST BLUES WIN, 10-7.

Old Westbury, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP)—A crowd of 3,000 polo enthusiasts today saw Cecil Smith, a ten goal Texan, lead a team of Blues to a 10 to 7 victory over the Whites in a test match involving candidates for the western team which will meet the East next month.

Smith, playing at No. 2, was all over the field, feeding long drives to his No. 1, Eric Pedley, and scoring three goals. George Pope and Frank Fuller, who shared the No. 3 spot for the Blues, and Lindsay Howard, at back, played well on defense.

Aidan Roark was the mainspring of the White attack, scoring four goals. Riding with him were Tom Mather, No. 2; Elmer Boeseke, 10 goal Californian, at back, and Dunbar Bostwick, No. 1.

Hardin's Hurdle Record Approved by Officials

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The world record of 51.8 seconds, established by Glen Hardin, Louisiana State, for the 400 meter hurdles, was approved today by the subcommittee of the International Amateur Athletic federation now meeting here. Hardin set his record in winning the national 400 meter hurdle championship at Milwaukee June 30. The former mark of 52 seconds was made by F. Morgan Taylor in 1928 and tied by Hardin in 1932.

John H. Cummings, a civil war veteran who knew Abraham Lincoln and who was a schoolmate of Grover Cleveland, died yesterday at the home of his son, 707 Hinman avenue, Evanston. He was 92 years old.

Born in Arcade, N. Y., Mr. Cummings' family moved to Black Rock, N. Y., when he was a boy, and he went to school there with Cleveland. At the first call for volunteers in the civil war he joined the 136th New York infantry, and was in most of the major battles fought by the Army of the Potomac.

Knew Lincoln Personally.

As a messenger between the Army of the Potomac and the White House he came to know President Lincoln personally. He emerged from the war a captain of infantry. For a time he was a civil engineer for the Union Pacific railroad in the building of the line west, where he engaged in several Indian battles.

In 1872 Mr. Cummings was married to Miss Anna Shreffler, who died many years ago. In the middle 70's he owned and operated the old Briggs house at Randolph and Wells streets. In that period he became a friend of Buffalo Bill Cody.

Pioneer Trolley Engineer.

Later he entered the electrical engineering and construction business, and built the first street car line at Tacoma, Wash., retiring from active business 40 years ago. He had lived in Evanston for 9 years and in Chicago the preceding five years.

Mr. Cummings was a member of the George Thomas post of the G. A. R. He joined the Blaney lodge No. 271, A. F. & A. M., here 65 years ago.

A daughter, Miss Florence Cummings, and a son, John H. Jr., both of Evanston, survive.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Willard Robison has been elected to direct the musical portion of the program when Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt returns to the air in her sponsored series over NBC Tuesday, Sept. 4, from New York City. The choice of Robison, a notable interpreter of American folk music, is a happy one inasmuch as Mrs. Roosevelt has been active in encouraging the sort of music he will play. Last spring the First Lady invited a group of native musicians from the Virginia hill country to the White House to present a musicale which was broadcast. Robison is one of the authorities on primitive American music. Born in Missouri he has been conducting an orchestra ever since he was sixteen—in the rough and ready southwest, mining camps and boom towns. Then for years he penetrated into countless mountain villages of the hill country of the south and gathered much musical lore.

A Robison spiritual will be a feature of the first broadcast with Mrs. Roosevelt. If he is retained for the remainder of the series he will introduce many unusual vocal presentations. Robison will also inaugurate a new sponsored program over NBC early in October with Mildred Bailey, another able interpreter of contemporary folk music.

Mrs. Freeman Gosden has returned to Chicago from her Alaska vacation but her husband [Amos] is still on the west coast debating another jaunt back to Juneau for a couple of days of Kodiak bear hunting. The season opens Sept. 10. He could go hunting two days, return to Seattle in three days and take a plane to Chicago to get back to work on Sept. 17. But perhaps he will content himself with the black bear skins he already has. Mrs. Gosden, the former Leta Schribber, revealed her husband is visiting the movie lots in Hollywood at present. Speaking for Amos, Mrs. Gosden said they were delighted with their fishing adventures in northern waters and hope to return next season.

Irene Rich, film, stage and radio actress, is back on the boards with a new play. She opens in New York tomorrow night in "Any Woman," a new opus by Wilbur Daniel Steele. Her theatrical engagement will not interfere with her radio broadcasts. She appears at 6:30 p. m. Wednesdays over NBC in the serial, "Jewels of Enchantment."

Carl Noble and Carson Dennelly, one of W-G-N's new double piano teams, will begin a new series of programs at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning on The Tribune station. They will be heard at the same hour on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

Several of the big names of Hollywood will be featured in a series of four programs to be broadcast over NBC the next fortnight in connection with which producers and distributors will set forth measures they are taking to present constructive pictures. Irene Dunne, Lionel Barrymore and Meredith Willson's orchestra will be heard on the first of these at 8 p. m. Wednesday.

SALVORS SILENT ON GOOD YIELD OF 'TREASURE' SHIP

Old Paper Says Craft Held but $250,000.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—If the men who pulled the "treasure" ship Islander out of 365 feet of water found much more than enough gold dust to pay for their trouble, the rosiest reports at the time she sank were belied.

The salvors finished their raising job near Juneau, Alaska, a couple of weeks ago at an estimated cost of $200,000, but they still are secretive about what they discovered.

In the Library of Congress were found today files of the Daily Alaska Dispatch published at Juneau the day the steamer sank—Aug. 15, 1901. And the highest estimate was that there was $250,000 of gold aboard the ship.

Gold is worth about twice as much in dollars now as it was in 1901, but even that would make the total a far cry from the $3,000,000 fortune that was being sought.

The Islander struck an iceberg at 2 a. m. and sank after 107 passengers and a crew of 17 scrambled for lifeboats.

That day the Dispatch said: "The amount of gold dust lost by her heavy list of returned Klondikers cannot be estimated at this writing."

THOMAS BRACKEN, FORMER RECEIVER, IS FOUND DEAD

Thomas J. Bracken, 48 years old, formerly receiver for a chain of filling stations at Elgin, was found dead yesterday in a room at the Mira Mar hotel, 6218 Woodlawn avenue, where he had registered under an assumed name for days ago. Several bottles which had contained liquor and a box of whitish powder were found on a bedside table.

A bellboy discovered the body when Bracken failed to answer a telephone call from his sister, Mrs. Carl Hoper, 5510 Sheridan road. Mrs. Hoper told the Woodlawn police her brother had been drinking heavily and was under the care of a physician. He left no notes. A bank book with a balance of $4 indicated Bracken had made heavy withdrawals recently.

CORN ADVANCES AS TRADING IN GRAINS SHRINKS

Wheat Unchanged; Market Erratic.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A sharp curtailment of speculative enterprise was witnessed last week in grain markets. With the notable exception of corn futures the market displayed an erratic trend. At the close of the week wheat was selling at approximately the same prices quoted at the end of the preceding week.

Conflicting influences were at work in the market and as far as wheat was concerned the result was just about an even draw. Corn moved up rather sharply and attracted a greater speculative following than the customary market leader. The basis for the advance was the growing realization that the country faces a serious shortage of feedstuffs. With cash corn commanding prices at some country points above Chicago quotations there developed a speculative demand in futures which made the corn pit the center of activity during most of the week.

Import Ruling Ignored.

The announcement early in the week by the government that it would lift the import duties on Canadian feedstuffs had only a fleeting effect on corn prices. Normally such a step would be considered a bearish influence but the fact that corn prices continued to move ahead attests to the critical interpretation which the grain trade places on the feed situation in this country. The dominion government was quick to make it known that it would assiduously safeguard the Canadian supply of feedstuffs by regulating exports by license.

Extension for five months of the maturity dates on the government's corn loans came as a buttressing support for the market. There is still a large amount of corn tied up as government collateral and with the maturity extended it appeared likely that this grain will be slow in finding its way to market.

Damage Reports Grow.

Reports of damage to the corn crop by chinch bugs and ear worms were more plentiful during the week and contributed to the bullish sentiment in this grain. In another week the private crop experts will make public their Sept. 1 forecasts on the crop and there is little room for believing that earlier gloomy estimates will be revised upward.

The listlessness of the wheat market is explained largely by one condition—lack of speculative trading. The worst was known about the wheat crop when the week began and there was no news of a startling nature to cause a stampede of buying. With the government keeping a watchful eye on activities of traders there was little inclination to attempt to generate a speculative boom in the grain. Most traders and the majority of grain firms are predicting higher prices eventually but the immediate market future is admitted by all to be an extremely uncertain matter.

Foreign News Bullish.

Foreign markets again gained ground on Chicago and Winnipeg prices. Labor trouble in Argentine caused a stiffening in the Buenos Aires market. From Russia came indications that the crop there will not meet domestic needs although that country is still the great enigma of the world wheat situation.

Oats and rye futures moved up moderately although speculative operations were at low ebb. Transfer of hedges in oats from September to later deliveries was an important factor.

The Chicago and North Western railway yesterday reported net operating income of $551,863 in July, compared with $80,225 in June and $1,803,307 in July, 1933. Gross operating revenues for the month were $6,743,503, a decline of $69,695 below June and $937,526 under July of last year.

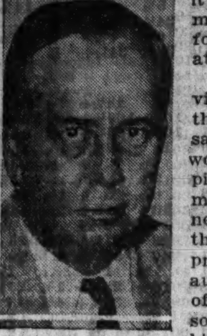
Chicago Great Western net operating income during July amounted to $88,470, against $285,498 in July, 1933, a decline of $197,028. Gross for the month at $1,251,655 was $176,283 below July, last year.

Net railway operating income of the Great Northern in July amounted to $1,244,967, compared with $1,581,184 in the same month a year ago.

Chicago's Lake Passenger Trafic Reported Larger

Great Lakes passenger trafic out of the port of Chicago this summer shows 11 per cent increase over 1933, owing to the larger number of ships operating this year and increasing interest in water travel, W. K. Greenbaum, passenger trafic manager of the Chicago Roosevelt Steamship line, reported yesterday. The number of passengers carried out of the port exceeds $65,000, he said.

Power Study, Aimed at Rate Level, Starts



BASIL MANLY.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The federal power commission set out today on a national survey which it hopes will mean more electricity for more people at lower rates.

Basil Manly, vice chairman of the commission, said the survey would enable compilation and submission to the next congress of the "most comprehensive and authentic exhibit of our power resources and possibilities ever made in this or any other country."

To obtain the necessary data the commission sent a questionnaire to private and municipally owned power plants throughout the nation.

Will Ascertain Needs.

Each item covered in the survey, Manly said, was "essential to a complete and accurate showing of our generating system, transmission lines, present capacity, development possibilities, and future demands."

"Determining the nation's power requirements and how they can be most economically and advantageously supplied is the primary purpose," he explained. "Markets must be considered, as well as power sites that can be developed at reasonable cost, either by government enterprise or private capital.

Want Lowest Rates.

"One purpose is to establish and maintain that balance between steam and hydro-electric power which will give America the most dependable sources of energy at the lowest possible rates."

The survey will include individual reports on all existing generating plants; maps showing location of plants, reservoirs, transmission lines, and substations; locations of proposed hydro-electric plants, operating expenses, and the like. Net energy available for ultimate consumption in each state also is called for.

NEW YORK MEN TO FIGHT BIG BUSINESS TAX

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—Mayor La Guardia is due to witness the "greatest protest of business men in New York's history" tomorrow afternoon against his proposed tax of one-half of 1 per cent on gross business incomes when a public hearing is held on the measure by a committee of the board of aldermen in the city hall.

Under the leadership of Grover A. Whalen, former police commissioner, the business men are scheduled to descend on the meeting en masse, many of them "fighting for their business lives," Mr. Whalen said, and will make a finish fight to prevent passage of the measure.

The protesting business men are to appear before the local laws committee of the board of aldermen to make only one request—a week's delay in the tenfold multiplication of the present city tax of one-twentieth of 1 per cent on gross business.

NRA TAKES STEPS TO END MOVES TO LOW WAGE AREAS

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The first move under the NRA to prevent employers from moving their plants from this city to communities with lower work and wage standards and to escape higher union obligations was announced today by the regional labor board. The board, in a report to the national labor relations board, dealt with the removal of a company in the lether goods industry.

The report asked the national board to rule on the legality of the removal and recommended that "steps must be taken to prevent employers from escaping their obligations to national recovery by moving to a community where with impunity they can pay a far lower wage."

The concern in question is the Enterprise Accessories, Inc., which moved its plant to Greenfield, Mass., after the International Pocket Book Workers union declined to consent to a reduction in wages.

GERMANY PUTS MORE DRASTIC CURB ON TRADE

Tightens Check on Importation.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Aug. 26.—Germany's economic dictator, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the reichsbank, today announced new drastic restrictions on imports and the reorganization of trade to bring it "into sound balance with Germany's exports." The announcement was in the course of his speech at the opening of Leipzig's autumn fair.

Only importers who receive foreign currency certificates from the German government are entitled to buy abroad. Anybody selling to a German who has no official permit does so at his own risk, it was pointed out.

Dr. Schacht again emphatically denied that Germany plans to devaluate or deflate German currency or to place a tax on her imports. Devaluation would increase Germany's foreign indebtedness and make it still harder for her to buy the raw materials she needs. A tax on imports in favor of exports would increase prices in Germany and reduce internal consumption, he said.

"Driven to Self-Support."

"Germany is being driven to a policy of self-support by the refusal of other countries to buy from Germany," he said. "We must restrict our imports. We must by all means increase the production of raw materials at home. They are more expensive than raw materials bought in foreign markets, but from a financial viewpoint it is the same, whether we support the jobless with public funds or make them work to produce raw materials."

Dr. Schacht is convinced that foreign producers are to suffer most by Germany's import restrictions. His threat reads:

"If our wares are boycotted, the foreign bondholder and the foreign exporter are the main victims. If Germany is defamed, it will be the Australian wool producer and the American cotton grower who will bear the burden."

Dr. Schacht gave assurance that Germany is determined to fulfill obligations "like a true business man." He sees only a temporary solution in the forced financial clearing worked out by a dozen nations.

Says Trade Is Ruined.

"This splits up the world into isolated fortresses, completely ruining the remaining world trade, paralyzing business, stifling initiative," he declared.

"Germany wants no credit which is not given to us gladly and voluntarily. Those who believe that Germany will be eliminated from world trade should keep their hands off Germany. Those who are of different opinion will find ways and means of keeping up trade relations. Trade is possible only if both parties profit by it."

Barter agreements will be used to help Germany get the raw materials she needs, Schacht said. If the restriction on imports and other economic measures, which Germany is planning, and which will be announced soon, collide with existing treaties and negotiations they will be taken up to "adapt the treaties to the new situation."

ILLINOIS RELIEF UNIT REQUESTS BIDS FOR BEEF

Bids for slaughtering and processing drouth cattle to be packed for distribution to the idle of Illinois are requested by the Illinois emergency relief commission, according to Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary. Separate bids for manufacture of sausage from beef and veal also are asked.

Several million pounds of beef and veal products will be purchased by the Illinois commission from the federal surplus relief commission, the exact amount remaining to be determined. Specifications covering the beef bids include slaughtering, boning, making of beef cuts, roasts, and pot roasts, freezing, storing, and canning. Bidders are at liberty to consider all the operation or any one phase of it.

Steel Output Dips Slightly, but Upturn Is Expected Soon

With steel operations during the last week down one point to 20½ per cent of productive capacity the industry looks forward to Labor day as marking the turn in the seasonal slump, the magazine Steel says.

It is believed there will be considerable improvement in spot orders during September to complete present manufacturing programs and to fill fall requirements. At present the market reflects only the urge toward further public construction works. Of 36,000 tons of structural and reinforcing steel placed during the week it is said most of it was for federal and municipal projects.

Award Naval Contracts.

The eagerness of the administration to expedite construction was indicated when contracts for 11 naval vessels were awarded to private yards and 13 to navy yards within a week from the opening of bids. Private yards, requiring 35,000 tons of steel, bid at open market prices, although delivery will be extended over two years. Navy yards will take bids in September on 25,000 tons of steel.

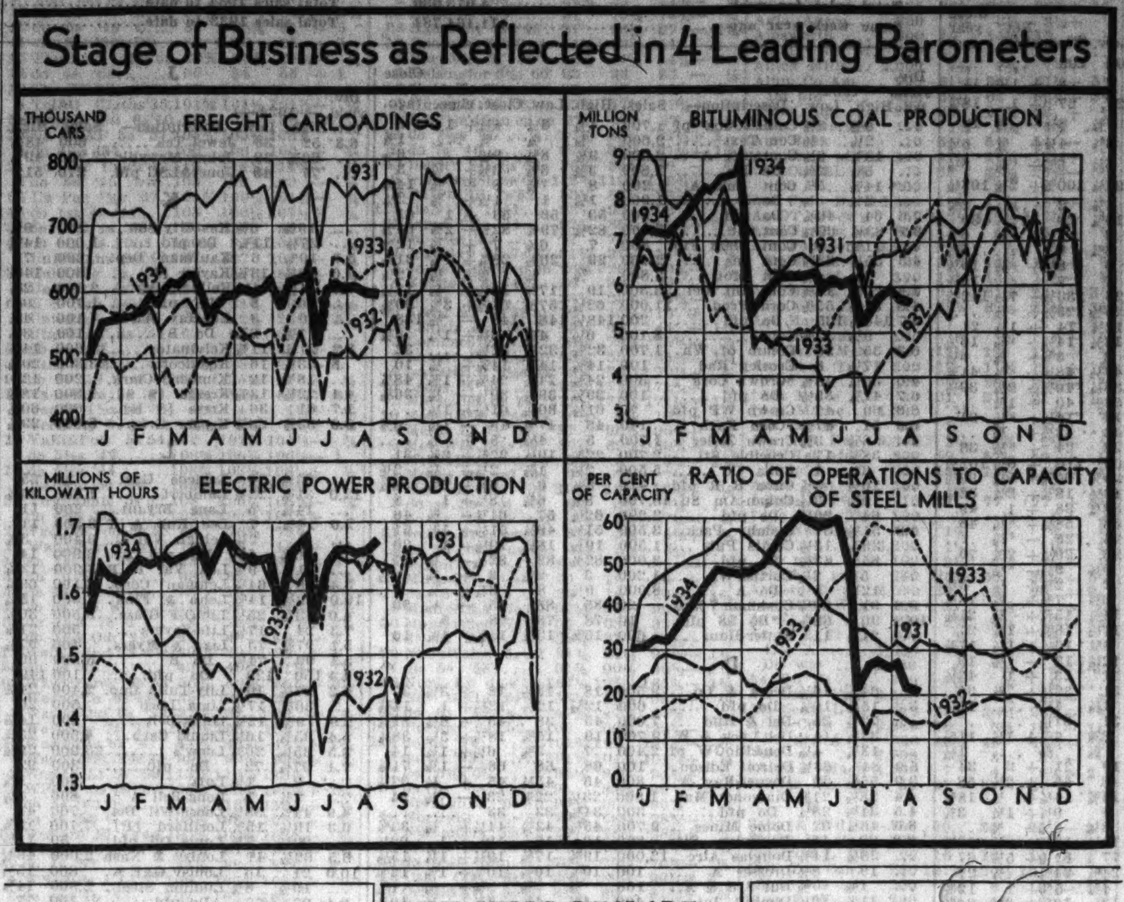
Standard Oil of California has entered the market for 2,500 to 5,000 tons of plates for tanks. Among the cast pipe awards are 3,400 tons for New York and 2,228 for Chicago. Heavy finished steel awards included 17,228 tons of reinforcing bars for a government dam at Bonneville, Ore., and five Pacific coast bridges, with 3,000 tons of bars for Columbus, O., and 2,600 tons for Cleveland. Structural shape awards of 10,670 tons during the week compared with 12,662 in the preceding week.

Tinplate Output Down.

Government buying of cattle for the canning program has not developed in volume yet with the result that tin plate production is scheduled to be reduced 10 points to 40 per cent this week. The international tin plate sales agreement just signed allows 55 per cent of the world's market tonnage to Wales, 22 per cent to the United States, 16 per cent to Germany and the remainder to Italy and France.

Steel operations at Pittsburgh were down 5 points to 10 per cent last week, in eastern Pennsylvania ½ point to 20 per cent, and at Youngstown 1 to 21 per cent. Chicago gained 1½ to 29½ per cent, Cleveland 3 to 15 per cent, while Detroit remained unchanged at 77 per cent, New England 29, Wheeling 26, Buffalo 23½ and Birmingham 25.

Steel's iron and steel scrap composite is down 13 cents to $9.83 a ton, the iron and steel composite is 1 cent lower at $32.22 while the finished steel index remains at $54 a ton.



Hope for Fall Business Rise Gains Slightly

New York, Aug. 26. — (AP) — With Labor day now close at hand, the nation's business is making more vigorous efforts to whet the appetite of the consumer, and in this normally quiet month, the results have been encouraging.

Labor day is usually regarded as the turning point from the vacation season to the brisker activity of autumn, and the moderate quickening in retail trade. During the last week or two cooler weather and extensive promotional events have boosted hopes for the fall season.

Thus far, however, hopes hinge chiefly on consumers' goods, for heavy industry continues to drift.

Auto Activity Holds Up.

The automobile industry has held up better than expected through August, but some plants will shut down for a week or more around Labor day. and sales of both new and used cars last week, according to Cram, declined rather sharply. The last week's decline in production, however, was only 1,503 units to 52,351, which was a little above the corresponding level for last year.

The cotton textile industry is still under the threat of a general strike, but inventories have been substantially reduced by the curtailment of production during the summer, and higher operating schedules are planned in several lines. The silk industry, however, has arranged to curtail to a four-day week schedule until Sept. 28, owing to the light demand, and production of woolen fabrics remains dull.

Shoe Output Dull.

Shoe output remains well under the levels of a year ago. Quickened operations are reported among food processors, however, and a few other lighter lines have picked up a little.

The weekly report of freight movement showed a slight contraseasonal decline. The total of 600,564 cars was .3 per cent under the previous week and 6.7 per cent under the same week of last year. Electric output again rose more than seasonally, showing a margin of 1.5 per cent over last year, but heavier use of power for pumping in the drouth areas appears to be a factor in this showing, since the total for the west central part of the country was up 12.3 per cent compared with 1933, and for the central industrial region only 1.1 per cent, while New England was off 7 per cent from the same week of last year.

REGISTRATION OF 44 STOCKS REQUESTED HERE

Forty-four companies with stock listed on the Chicago Stock exchange have filed applications with the exchange for registration of securities as required under control legislation passed at the last session of congress.

This was regarded as an excellent record for the first week since applications were requested, M. J. O'Brien, president of the exchange, predicted that all of the 351 companies now listed would seek registration except a few whose securities have not been traded in the last year or two.

"Some are not paying any attention to registering," said Mr. O'Brien, "because they have until Sept. 12 to file with us. If all of them wait, however, it would make a tremendous job for us to turn the applications over to the commission by the 15th. I have little doubt that nearly all will register because securities traded over the counter will be subject to regulations fully as stringent as if they were traded in on an exchange."

July Unemployment Total Estimated at 8,609,000

The total number of unemployed workers in July was 8,609,000, according to an estimate made by the National Industrial Conference board. This is an increase of 675,000, or 8.5 per cent, over June, and a decline of 4,594,000, or 34.8 per cent, from the total in March, 1933, when unemployment was at its highest point.

German-Polish Wartime Food Pact Plan Denied

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—A denial of a report that a German-Polish trade agreement was pending in which Poland would assure the reich a food supply in event of war, was issued today by the Polish Telegraphic agency through Dr. A. Morawski-Nawench, its general representative here.

SILK MILLS DECLARE NRA UNFAIR, SUSPEND CUT IN PRODUCTION

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—As a result of what it termed "unfair discrimination" by the NRA at Washington, changing market conditions and other developments, the silk code authority tonight announced suspension of its production curtailment order.

Under the order, issued Aug. 18, all producers of silk, rayon, and other synthetic textiles operating under the code were to close down for six successive Fridays beginning Aug. 24 and including Sept. 28. In addition, they were to limit production on other days during that period to a maximum of 80 per cent of the hours per week permitted by the code.

Peter Van Horn, chairman of the code authority, said that at the request of a Paterson, N. J., attorney and "without consulting the code authority," Washington authorities last Thursday granted a special temporary exemption from the curtailment to approximately 17 concerns, representing about 40 mills situated principally in Paterson.

"The members of the code authority," he said, "strongly resented the effect of the policy of the NRA administration on the large number of mills which, either having the best interests of the industry as a whole at heart, and having full knowledge of the serious overproduction problem, had not applied to the code authority for exemption, or had, upon rejection of their exemption, in a splendid spirit of coöperation made no effort to go over the head of the code authority and make an appeal to the administrator in Washington."

ICKES REDUCES SEPTEMBER OIL OUTPUT QUOTAS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—The national allowable crude oil production for September has been set by Secretary Ickes at 2,341,700 barrels, a decrease of 107,600 barrels from the August quota of 2,449,300 daily.

The allowable was reduced chiefly because of the usual seasonal decline in gasoline consumption and unexpected drop in gasoline demand due to the drouth. Another contributing factor was a desire to reduce gasoline inventories which were described as still considerably above a sound economic level.

The cut in the quota was distributed among all producing states except Colorado, Louisiana, and Montana, whose allowables were not changed.

Texas, California, and Oklahoma, the leading producers, were cut 32,900, 33,200, and 19,100 barrels to respective daily averages of 968,400, 457,000, and 461,000. Among other reductions were: Illinois, 500 to 12,000; Indiana, 100 to 2,200; Michigan, 3,900 to 29,300; Ohio, 800 to 12,000.

Stocks of domestic and foreign crude oil were reported at 338,762,000 barrels on Aug. 18, a reduction of 1,625,000 from the 340,387,000 barrel total a week before. Domestic crude stocks declined 1,460,000 and foreign 165,000 barrels.

The indicated daily average crude production last week was 2,580,000 barrels, compared with 2,560,000 in the preceding week. Daily average imports fell off some 20,000 barrels and crude runs to stills increased again. The daily average runs were 2,580,000 barrels for the week.

Two Rockford, Ill., Banks Cut Interest Rate to 1½%

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Two of Rockford's three banks will reduce interest rates on savings accounts to 1½ per cent on Sept. 1. Officials of the banks state they are unable to employ deposits to bring returns with which to pay the present 2 per cent rate. The reduction will be the second in the last 15 months, rates having been cut from 3 to 2 per cent May 1, 1933.

Customs Service Group to Meet Here Sept. 4 to 8

The National Customs Service association, composed of customs authorities of the United States and its possessions, will hold its annual convention here from Sept. 4 to Sept. 8. Headquarters will be at the Congress hotel, where 150 delegates are expected to gather.

Palatine, Ill., Bank to Pay 22 Per Cent of Deposits

Edward J. Barrett, state auditor, yesterday announced that he has authorized payment of 22 per cent, amounting to $29,011, to the depositors of the State Bank of Palatine. This is the first payment since the bank closed.

Inflation Fears Send Treasury Bonds Lower

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Appraisals of bond market movements during the last week were somewhat confusing owing to the erratic tendencies displayed by United States government securities.

A fresh crop of inflationary rumors, all of which were officially spiked by treasury authorities, brought heavy selling into the federal division Wednesday and some of the home loan and federal farm mortgage bonds dropped to record lows. There were numerous recoveries later, but the trading volume dwindled.

Sober consideration of inflation gossip, which included further depreciation of the dollar to the extreme limit of 50 per cent of its former gold value, found most banking circles highly skeptical.

Immediate Inflation Unlikely.

These pointed out that, no matter what the ultimate intentions of the administration concerning monetary manipulation, currency inflation in the near future was hardly likely inasmuch as the treasury has financing operations in September and October involving some $1,700,000,000 and a good bond market is a necessity.

Prime corporation loans did not pay as much attention to the renewal of inflationary psychology as did the governments and the majority of these were only a bit easier at their worst. In the latter part of the week a number of utility issues displayed strength.

Secondary loans, led by the rails, probably gave the best performance, and many of these moved substantially higher in comparatively quiet trading. While the latest car loading report showed a more than seasonal decline in traffic, carrier lines apparently were aided by the move for higher freight rates, steps taken to combat the recent pension law and a revival of hope that Washington will "do something" to rescue the transportation systems from their present state of uncertainty.

Amusement Issue Strong.

Amusement bonds were among the strong spots, reflecting reorganization plans of some of the companies and reports of a pickup in business.

Due to the activity in federal lists, total transfers on Wednesday amounted to $23,463,000, par value, the largest since Aug. 9. On Monday, however, trading volume dropped to $6,245,000, the smallest total since Sept. 13, last year.

Interest in foreign obligations was principally centered in South Americans. Most of the Argentines advanced to new highs for the year and substantial gains were scored by loans of Uruguay, Brazil, Colombia, Peru, and Chile. German government issues were heavy.

FOREIGN TRAFIC OF AMERICAN AIR LINES INCREASES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—The increase in air passengers carried over foreign extensions of American operated companies has so far outbalanced the decrease shown in the number carried over domestic lines during the first six months of 1934, the bureau of air commerce reported today. It said that the 1934 period showed a total increase of 6,633 passengers flown over both sections of airways.

Express carried during the first six months showed tremendous gains. The domestic poundage increased from 660,028 in 1933 to 916,063 pounds for the 1934 period, while foreign extensions carried 656,951 pounds, against 395,794 pounds in the 1933 period.

The survey also showed that American operated air lines employed 5,942 persons on July 1, 1934. Gasoline consumption by the scheduled air lines was 11,054,014 gallons, and fuel oil consumed amounted to 408,628 gallons.

RFC to Grant Extension on Boston and Maine Loan

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—The interstate commerce commission has approved the extension for one year of loans aggregating $7,569,437, maturing Sept. 6, which the RFC had made to the Boston and Maine railroad and stated in a decision that it had found the railroad "not to be in need of financial reorganization in the public interest." The railroad had applied for the extension of the loan for three years.

Only Initiative Can Aid Trade, Bank Declares

Business revival for which the federal government is striving so arduously can come about only through individual initiative, now being stifled, rather than encouraged, by restrictions and limitations placed on it and the threat of further obstacles to come, the Guaranty Trust company of New York declares in its business survey, issued yesterday. It says the time is now ripe for reëxamination of the basic principles underlying the political and economic system.

"Under a régime of individual liberty, individual initiative, and strictly limited governmental powers the United States recorded a growth of population, wealth, and welfare that has no parallel in world history," the review asserts. "Little by little in recent years the powers of government have expanded while the field reserved for individual activity has shrunk.

Time for Investigation Here.

"Under the pressure of extreme emergency this process has been greatly accelerated. It is now opportune to inquire whether a few years of adversity should be allowed to erase the memory and experience of a century and a half of amazing progress and whether the moment has not arrived for the individual American to reoccupy the ground he has temporarily relinquished."

Intervention of the government into business has taken two courses, the bank says. These have been regulation, involving an extension of regulatory powers governments have always exercised over private business, and active participation which carries the government directly into the business field in competition with privately owned industrial, commercial, and financial enterprises.

"Observant citizens have been uncomfortably aware for many years that public expenditures, taxes, and borrowings have increased faster than population, wealth, and income," the survey says. "It has been only imperfectly realized that this increase is due in considerable measure to the extension of governmental activity along lines that bring public agencies into direct competition with private business, to the injury of the latter."

Cite TVA Activities.

The survey reviews the administration's inroads into the public utility field through its $310,000,000 investment of the Tennessee Valley authority. It cites as "interesting" the methods used to acquire a market.

"TVA, by threatening competition with the already established private power company in Knoxville, Tenn., forced the company to sell its entire transmission and distribution system," it says. "This transaction was accomplished through an offer by the Public Works administration to lend funds to the city for construction of a new distributing system to compete with the private system already in operation. The Tennessee state board of PWA had previously refused to lend money to the city on the ground that the latter's credit was not good enough."

Other federal agencies compete in various ways, the review continues. It says the Agricultural Adjustment administration buys and sells farm products, the Federal Surplus Relief corporation deals extensively in food stuffs and recently announced a project to purchase cotton and ticking to make mattresses and quilts for the unemployed.

Herrick-Heinzelmann Announces Expansion

Herrick, Heinzelmann & Ripley, Inc., yesterday announced the enlargement of the personnel of its trading department and the extension of its facilities on a nation-wide scale to provide wire connections to twenty-three cities throughout the country. L. D. Sherman, who becomes manager of the trading department, will have associated with him D. E. Wilson, Jules Bean, E. J. Hall, J. F. Hatfield and S. J. Waintrob, all of whom were formerly with the trading department of Ewart & Bond, Inc.

STOCKS REVIVE AND REGISTER GAINS IN WEEK

Hope of Trade Rise Believed Cause.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—Still gripped in the stupor of summer hibernation, the stock market raised itself on an elbow last week and showed signs of returning to active life.

The dullest day in twelve years started the week on a continuing note of deep gloom, but the price line was soon bent upward with a complementing spurt in activity, and the market, after some hesitation, finished nearly 5 points above the closing levels of the previous week, as measured by the averages. The sharpest gain was registered by the industrials, with the rails advancing almost as well and the utilities lagging somewhat.

Turns Sharply Higher.

After the extremely dull and lower session Monday, the market turned sharply higher Tuesday and the rise was continued Wednesday. Thursday, however, reaction set in and prices were easier, but the rally was resumed Friday on a subdued scale and trading came to a halt on a steady level Saturday.

Observers were put to a test to distinguish an incentive for the advance, but seemed satisfied with the theory that it was based on widely held hope for an autumnal trade improvement. There was little discernible encouragement from Washington, governmental developments having done little to dissipate the fog of uncertainty overhanging business and finance.

Business continued slowly down hill, as important indices of production showed.

More than two weeks have now passed since President Roosevelt returned to the White House, but business still awaits definite sailing orders. Rather than lifting the summer's veil of uncertainty, it is held, events in Washington have tended further to confuse the outlook.

No News on NRA Program.

The administration let it be known that the NRA and other phases of the New Deal are due for revamping, but that was all the country was told about the reorganization plans. Announcement of the new program will have to wait until two weeks from tomorrow, following discussions between the President and Gen. Johnson, NRA administrator.

It is the reported understanding in Washington that the President is less concerned with the question of revising the NRA as a temporary set of statutes than he is with the problem of preserving its major phases in permanent law after the recovery act ceases to exist next June. Provisions of the NRA which the President is reported to desire to make permanent include those of child labor, minimum working hours and sections governing fair trade practices.

Apart from business prospects, strength in stocks had another strong root in rumors concerning the government's monetery plans. The strongest one was that further dollar devaluation was about to take place.

JEWEL TEA CO. SALES INCREASE 24.87 PER CENT

Jewel Tea company, Inc., sales for the four weeks ended Aug. 11 were $1,275,078, compared with $1,021,086 for the corresponding weeks in 1933, or a gain of 24.87 per cent. The average number of units was 1,527, compared with 1,435 a year ago.

For the first 32 weeks of this year sales amounted to $10,220,845, against $8,426,227 for the corresponding period of last year, up 21.3 per cent. The average number of units was 1,508, compared with 1,432 in the corresponding period of 1933.

JOBS, PAY ROLLS DECLINE IN 7TH RESERVE AREA

June-July Downturn More than Seasonal.

Employment declined 3.8 per cent and pay rolls 8.7 per cent in the seventh federal reserve district from June 15 to July 15, according to the monthly report issued by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

While industrial activity usually declines at this season it is stated that the 1924-'33 average shows contractions of less than 1 per cent in employment and only slightly more than 4 per cent in pay rolls for this period. All of the five states in the district contributed to the decline. Michigan was the most severely affected, due to the curtailment in the automobile industry.

Four groups of manufacturing industries showed gains in employment during the period, these being 20.3 per cent in the rubber products industry, 6.2 per cent in food and food products, 2.4 per cent in stone, clay, and glass, and 2.1 per cent in lether.

Decline in Textiles Largest.

The greatest decline was in the textile trade with a drop in employment of 9.8 per cent. Other large declines included 7.3 per cent in the metals and products trade and 7.1 per cent in the vehicles' industry.

Pay rolls gained 6.7 per cent in food and food products, 1.2 per cent in lether products, and 1 per cent in rubber products industries. The rest of the manufacturing groups showed declines in pay rolls ranging from 1.1 per cent to 17.5 per cent. Large losses among other groups included 13.1 per cent in metals and products, 12.2 per cent in wood products, and 11.9 per cent in textiles.

As a whole the ten manufacturing groups showed declines of 4.5 per cent in employment and 10.9 per cent in pay rolls. The four groups included among the nonmanufacturing industries had a decline of 0.6 per cent in employment, but a gain of 0.4 per cent in pay rolls.

Gains in employment were shown by all members of the nonmanufacturing group except the merchandising trade which had a loss of 3.2 per cent. Gains included 4.6 per cent in coal mining employés, 1.5 per cent for public utilities, and 1.2 per cent for the construction industry.

The coal mining industry reported a substantial gain of 20.9 per cent in wages paid during the period. Public utilities paid 3.2 per cent more in wages, while the construction trade showed a decline of 6.1 per cent, and the merchandising group 3.1 per cent.

Total employés as of July 15 were 966,354, of which 788,187 were in the manufacturing industries and 178,167 in the nonmanufacturing establishments. These employés were paid a total of $20,204,000 in wages, of which $15,839,000 was paid by manufacturers and $4,365,000 by other industrialists.

Assails HOLC Procedure.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 17.—I have had an application with the Home Owners' Loan corporation for more than a year. There has been uncalled for delay, some seemingly intentional. I have written the president three letters but it made no difference to the personnel of the HOLC. By the results the president never saw my complaints and I received no reply. Following is an excerpt from a letter I wrote to Senator James Hamilton Lewis on July 18.

"The HOLC, with its political pork barrel personnel, is not aiding or helping me in my distress. It is helping political satellites, lawyers, real estate dealers, and contractors. But they do not help the poor home owner in distress, who cannot even buy food to eat regular meals. The way the HOLC has handled my application is proof of the great lack of honest executive supervision.

Do you know of a real American who will refinance a loan and aid me?

FRANCIS A. BARNES.

The Vacation Sounds Fine.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—No man is better qualified to comment on productive capacity of modern machinery than Mr. Babson, the statistician, who is not a technocrat nor a Socialist.

After completing an investigation Mr. Babson made the statement that if every able bodied man were employed in actual production, and if every machine were utilized each worker would produce in wealth the equivalent of $10,000 annually. And this result would be attained in a four hour work day and each worker would receive a vacation of two months a year.

J. B. CARROLL.

Another Middle West Plan.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 19.—Reorganization plans of the Middle West Utilities company noteholders seem inequitable to me.

Middle West was promulgated as a banking institution and derived its earnings principally through the keen wits of Sam Insull in selling securities to the public. It now appears the noteholders wish to protect themselves by getting complete control of the company and selling securities to the already deluded common stockholders or squeeze them out.

In the case of a deficiency of assets it would seem reasonable to substitute an item representing "good will" to assure common stockholders a continuity of interest in the reorganized company and the issuance to them of new common stock.

Secured and unsecured creditors and noteholders should be given in exchange for their present holdings preferred stock with a definite callable price over an indefinite period with a noncumulative prior dividend rate contingent on the company's ability to earn such dividends and retire such preferred stock at a fair price through future earnings on refinancing.

QUICKSILVER TRADE FIRM.

The quicksilver market reflects a firm tone based on a favorable statistical position, according to trade interests. Sellers are reported disinclined to accept orders for forward delivery at currently quoted prices.

ROADS ESTIMATE BILLION LOST TO RIVALS IN 1933

Freight Trafic Fails to Equal Trade Gain.

How railroads may well have lost a billion dollars in 1933 through the diversion of freight trafic to highway and waterway competitors is pointed out in Railway Age, which contrasts the trends of national industrial production and railway freight movement.

It is stated that in the years 1923-'25 the railroads hauled an average of 404,163 million ton-miles of revenue freight. Those are the same years taken by the Federal Reserve Board as 100 in the compilation of an index of average industrial production. Taking the average revenue ton-miles ot the railroads for these years as 100 the following comparisons can be made:

1926	108	110
1927	106	106
1928	111	107
1929	119	111
1930	96	95
1931	81	77
1932	64	60
1933	76	62
May, 1934	89	68

Fall Behind Business.

In 1933 the railroads moved 249,779 million net ton-miles of revenue trafic. It is stated that if their business had shown the same recovery as business in general [76 per cent of the 1923-'25 level] freight trafic last year would have been 307,164 million revenue ton-miles, or 57,385 million revenue ton-miles, approximately 23 per cent, more than it actually was.

This volume of freight would have produced $572,000,000 of revenue if carried at the average rate of all railroad freight last year, which was 9.97 mills. It is said that most of the business lost to competitors is high rated trafic, bearing double or more the average rate. It is concluded, therefore, that the 57 billion ton-miles lost to competitors in 1933 may represent well over one billion dollars in gross revenue.

Calls Railways Necessity.

"General economic recovery cannot be achieved in this country independently of railroad recovery," the magazine states. "In the case of the railroads, no hokus pocus of any kind is needed for revival. Every expert who has studied their difficulties agrees that their fundamental difficulty is one arising from competition expanded far beyond its natural economic sphere by the lack of adequate governmental supervision and by lavish subsidies from the public treasury."

Deere & Co.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me what information is available on Deere & Co. stock? I am a widow and am desirous of investing a little money, and, if possible, would like to hear from some one disinterested.—Mrs. F. C. J.

Answer: Deere & Co. is the second largest manufacturer of farm implements in the United States. Its business is largely domestic, although Canadian sales account for from 7 to 10 per cent of the total and some business is done in South America.

Sales in any one year are heavily dependent on farm conditions. Of equal importance is collection of accounts for goods sold. A large proportion of sales is on credit. Receivables on Oct. 31, 1933, accounted for $31,759,000 out of total assets of $68,719,000, and the ease of collection depends on the prosperity of the farmer.

A press dispatch dated Aug. 4 said that the company will probably make a better showing for the current year than it did for the Oct. 31, 1933, year, when a loss of $4,335,000 was reported. Current sales are dull and the outlook is not bright, but the company had a good season in the early months of the current fiscal year.

The loss of $4,335,000 in the Oct. 31, 1933, year compared with loss of $5,167,000, excluding a $534,000 inventory adjustment, for the preceding year. Net income for the Oct. 31, 1931, year was $407,000, or only 26 cents per preferred share, against $8,199,000, or $6.07 per common share, for the year ended Oct. 31, 1929.

On Oct. 31, 1933, current assets, including cash of $2,539,000, totaled $45,444,000, and current liabilities were $2,425,000. There was no funded debt. Capitalization consisted of 1,550,000 shares of 7 per cent $20 par cumulative preferred and 1,003,480 shares of no par common. On Sept. 1, 1934, a dividend of 10 cents per share of preferred, against 5 cents three months prior, will be paid. Unpaid accumulated dividends will then total $2.80 a share. Nothing has been paid on the common since July 1, 1931.

Given a return of agricultural prosperity, the company should be able to earn good profits. Profits seem to be outside its reach when agriculture is in the doldrums.

The preferred is speculative and the common more so.

Public Life Insurance.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate it very much if you would tell me the value of shares in Public Life Insurance company. I am inclosing a self-addressed envelope.—Mrs. L. G.

Answer: The company was incorporated in Illinois. It went into receivership in 1908 and was dissolved. No value was found for its stock as of Feb. 15, 1917, for inheritance tax purposes.

MOTOR MAKERS DEBATE LETTING NRA CODE LAPSE

May Not Renew Program Expiring Sept. 4.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—The advisability of permitting the code of fair competition for the automotive industry to lapse on Sept. 4, its expiration date, is being discussed in automobile circles, it was reported here today.

The industry has as yet given no indication to the NRA that it would move to have the code continued in its present form or in amended form. A meeting of the new National Automobile Manufacturers' association was held in Detroit several days ago, and it is understood that the problem facing the industry on Sept. 4 was canvassed, but that a definite decision was put off until a later date. The directors were empowered to make a decision on the question of code renewal.

Code Brings Up Questions.

The question of continuing the code, as viewed by the industry, is tied up with these two problems:

Will President Roosevelt by executive order renew the code if the industry fails to act?

What will be the status of the national automobile labor board in the event the industry fails to have the code extended?

Corollary to these two questions is another one: Will the industry have to live up to section 7a, the collective bargaining provision of the recovery act, in the event that Sept. 4 finds it without a code? This section is inserted in every code by a mandatory provision of the recovery act.

Except for the labor provision, the automobile code, it is admitted in the industry, is "without teeth." It contains no fair trade practices. The labor provision is qualified by the so called "merit" clause, giving the employers the right to hire, promote and discharge men according to their individual merit and efficiency.

Debate Collective Bargaining.

The discussions concerning the validity of section 7a, if the automobile industry fails to renew its code follow the same trend as the parleys concerning a similar situation that faces the steel industry. The latter's code, expiring next June, may be rescinded by vote of three-quarters of those affected by it.

Those in the automobile industry who favor dropping the code argue that they would not have to obey section 7a if they were without a code. Other advice offered the manufacturers states that section 7a, the collective bargaining provision, must be obeyed, code or no code, by every employer.

In some automobile quarters indications have been that assent to renewal of the code would be forthcoming, provided the status quo as to the industry's labor relations were continued. By this is meant the continuation in its present form of the three man labor board.

ROOSEVELT AIDS TELL HIM NRA BOOSTED TRADE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The President was told today by his executive council that although the connection could not yet be established statistically there was a peculiar coincidence between business improvement and NRA codification. The council's first report on accomplishments of the Roosevelt administration was submitted to the President by Donald R. Richberg, executive secretary.

After citing figures to show the extent of business improvement, the report added:

"The coincidence of business improvement with the NRA codification and the obvious, direct effects of NRA in preventing destructive price cutting, in stabilizing business operations, in improving the total purchasing power by providing increased employment without reduction of compensation, and in the increase of prices from loss levels to profit levels, demonstrate the dominant influence of the NRA in this industrial advance."

The council estimated that "total wages in manufacturing industries increased from $96,000,000 a week in June, 1933, to $132,000,000 a week in June, 1934, or 37.5 per cent. When this increase of 37.5 per cent is compared with an increased living cost of 9.6 per cent," the report said, "there remains despite increased cost of living a net increase of 25 per cent in the total purchasing power of manufacturing wage earners." The average increase of per capita weekly earnings was found to be only 8.5 per cent.

3 SCHOLARSHIPS TO BE AWARDED BY TRADE GROUP

An offer of three scholarships for the first semester course in purchasing at the school of commerce, Northwestern university, will be made by the Purchasing Agents' Association of Chicago.

The first will be awarded to the student submitting the best paper of approximately 1,000 words on some pertinent purchasing subject by Sept. 12. The second scholarship will be awarded to a deserving store or purchasing employé recommended by a member of the association, and the third will go to a student in the school recommended by the dean's office.

Judges are: George A. Neesham, president; John Mohr, second vice president; J. L. Burgess of the educational committee of the association, and Prof. Fred Clark of Northwestern.

Immediate Openings for Men who are awake—are seeing signs of business improvement and are connecting with companies who are making the most rapid progress.

This company, a powerful international institution enjoying the highest credit and financial ratings, is opening many new offices in the middle west and our business is expanding rapidly.

Our expansion program demands more representation immediately, and these positions are genuine opportunities at high earnings for those who will work hard and learn [from our teaching] the right way to work. Men with us just a few weeks are earning cash commissions of $100 a week and their incomes are as stable and certain as any business or professional opportunity.

We hesitate to present earnings of our dealers—they are unbelievably high. However, read what this man thinks of this NEW business—what it has meant to him.

R. B., formerly an advertising man and a responsible man, but unable to get a job, entered our business 7 months ago. His average income has been above $70 a week—has paid his back bills, purchased neglected necessities and this month a new $1,000 automobile. His story is one of great interest to a man that needs a job.

Another man with us just 9 days, formerly an insurance man, A. H. J., earned in 9 days $187.44. Having tried many different types of business, he finds our business a real money maker for him. Meet this man; you'll enjoy his enthusiasm.

P. L., another man in the business only a few months has earned in the last four weeks $527.10. This man is finding it comparatively easy to earn over $100 a week.

Our electrical products are in a field by themselves. They are extensively used by the U. S. government, passed by and used by the U. S. Bureau of Standards. They have to do with Hygiene, Health, Sanitation, Air-conditioning, also heating and cooling.

We have a limited number of opportunities and can't hire everybody who reads this story, but we will give every applicant a personal interview and lay our cards on the table. We'll show you a list of pay checks like the following for one week HERE IN CHICAGO.

W. C.	$114.00	P. G.	$ 90.85
F. L.	331.09	G. M.	183.14
O. K.	130.15	P. L.	312.00
B. R.	184.00	A. F.	82.93

The above startling facts are true because of new products we have created, patented by us, distributed solely by us and perfect for distribution NOW. Investigate immediately. You have nothing to lose but your time, and I sincerely believe that you will enjoy your investigation. Of course, we are only interested in sincere men of character and good references.

Come down Monday and listen to our story—talk to our men. They are happy, making money and being successful is a sure road to happiness. So don't delay. Investigate immediately. We need determined men NOW. This is the best time to get started; next week may be too late. Call at 75 E. Wacker-drive, Room 1002, Monday ONLY at 11 a. m. or 3 p. m. Ask for Mr. Welsh.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Due to low volume of business and greatly increased operating costs during the past six months, and considering the uncertainty of prospects for the future, in the light of these increased costs, the Company finds it necessary, in order to conserve its cash resources, to defer 50 per cent of the interest payment due September 1, 1934, on its 4% First Mortgage Bonds.

The Company plans to pay the remaining 50 per cent of such interest on September 1, 1935, or prior thereto if in the judgment of its Board of Directors its financial position warrants. The September 1, 1934, coupons will be stamped to indicate the payment of 50 per cent and the postponement without interest of 50 per cent to September 1, 1935, upon which date such balance will become due.

Bondholders may obtain at the office of the Company, 122 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, or at the office of the Paying Agent, Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street, New York City, forms which must accompany coupons due September 1, 1934.

Upon receipt by the Paying Agent of such coupons, accompanied by the necessary form executed either by the owner or his agent, payment of the coupons to the extent of 50 per cent will be made and the coupons, stamped as above indicated, will be returned with the 50 per cent payment. These coupons after being stamped should be retained by the bondholders with the bonds from which they were detached.

The remaining amount of the coupons as extended will become immediately due and payable if, prior to September 1, 1935, any Receiver for Chicago Great Western Railroad Company shall be appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction, or if any District Court of the United States shall take possession of the Company and its property under Section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act as amended, or if the Trustee under the mortgage shall take any action to enforce the provisions of said mortgage.

We ask that you present your coupons promptly to Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street, New York City, Agent for the Railroad Company, accompanied by duly executed form of agreement covering your acceptance of the proposal.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY,
By P. H. Joyce, President.
